Axis Retreats as Americans Enter Mateur

SUPREME COURT VOIDS CURB ON RELIGIOUS SECT

Licenses Held Peril to Free Press.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—Reversing itself, the United States Supreme court today upheld in sweeping terms the Constitutional immunity of religion and the press from all forms of licensing the dissemination of the spoken and written word.

Justice Douglas.

Divided five to four the court, in an opinion delivered by Associate Justice William O. Douglas, invalidated the exaction of license fees by four cities from Jehovah's Witnesses, a religious sect, for distribution of its tracts.

In a five to four decision a year ago the court upheld such licensing ordinances in the cities of Opelika, Ala., Fort Smith, Ark., and Casa Grande, Ariz. In the opinion today the court announced the vacation of the judgment in these cases and invalidated the application of a similar ordinance by the city of Jeannette, Pa., to Jehovah's Witnesses.

Rutledge Stand Shifts Court.

The court's right about face on the issue of freedom of speech arising from the first amendment to the Constitution was brought about by the resignation of Associate Justice James F. Byrnes to become economic stabilization director and his replacement by Associate Justice Wiley Rutledge. Byrnes held with the majority a year ago, Rutledge with the majority today.

The majority of the court in the decision today was composed, in addition to Douglas and Rutledge, of Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone and Associate Justices Hugo L. Black and Frank Murphy. Associate Justice Stanley F. Reed delivered a dissenting opinion, in which he was joined by Justices Owen J. Roberts, Felix Frankfurter, and Robert H. Jackson, who together with Byrnes constituted the majority a year ago.

Seldom has the court spoken more forcefully in interpretation of the Bill of Rights than in the Douglas opinion today. It found in the license tax applied to Jehovah's Witnesses a threat not only to the freedom of religion but an opening wedge to the censorship and suppression of the press.

Difference of Levies Described.

"We do not mean to say that religious groups and the press are free from all financial burdens of government," said the majority opinion. "We have here something quite different, for example, from a tax on the income of one who engages in religious activities or a tax on property used or employed in connection with those activities.

"It is one thing to impose a tax on the income or property of a preacher. It is quite another thing to exact a tax from him for the privilege of delivering a sermon. The tax imposed by the city of Jeannette is a flat license tax, the payment of which is a condition of the exercise of these constitutional privileges. The power to tax the exercise of a privilege is the power to control or suppress its enjoyment.

"Those who can tax the exercise of this religious practice can make its exercise so costly as to deprive it of the resources necessary for its maintenance. Those who can tax the privilege of engaging in this form of missionary evangelism can close its doors to all those who do not have a full purse.

Held Vital Power of Press.

"Spreading religious beliefs in this ancient and honorable manner would thus be denied the needy. Those who can deprive religious groups of their colporteurs [those who distribute religious tracts or books] can take from them a part of the vital power of the press which has survived from the reformation.

"It is contended, however, that

YANKS GAIN 14 MILES IN PUSH FLANKING TUNIS

Peril Foe's Position in Bizerte Area.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, May 3.—The American 2d army corps, after days of continuous pressure which drove axis forces from hill after hill, today forced the enemy to withdraw from Mateur, key rail, highway, and supply center 18 miles south of Bizerte, the great Tunisian naval base.

The Yanks took several hundred prisoners altho the main German forces retreated so rapidly that the Americans lost contact with them.

The capture of Mateur has outflanked Tunis, 35 miles to the southeast. However the Germans may fight a delaying action in the range of mountains separating the two big valleys in which Mateur and Tunis lie. Meanwhile the enemy's entire position in the northeastern corner of Tunisia is threatened.

[Advance elements of the American forces pushed on and contacted the retreating foe southeast of Mateur, an Associated Press dispatch said. An artillery barrage failed to halt the Yanks as the enemy withdrew to new strong points, the dispatch reported.]

French Advance on Coast.

The general axis withdrawal was accompanied by an advance of the French African corps and Moroccan Goums [native troops] along the Mediterranean shore to a line about 15 miles west of Bizerte.

Yesterday forward elements of allied forces on the right of the French occupied a range of hills called Kef Rdjal Touila, 10 miles northwest of Mateur, overlooking the broad and fertile plain about Lake Achkel.

A dispatch from Seymour Korman, THE TRIBUNE's correspondent in the field with the American 2d corps, said the Yanks entered Mateur this morning after bursting thru the "Mousetrap"—a natural defensive position southeast of Sidi N'Sir—and dashing 14 miles along the road to Mateur, which was reported to have been evacuated by the Germans.

Lose Contact with Foe.

The dispatch said that before the occupation of Mateur, the Americans had lost contact with the retreating enemy in most of the southern sector. In taking one hill the Yanks captured six Germans who were fighting as a rear guard.

Korman reported that the capture of Green and Bald hills and Hill 609—Djebel Tahent—last Friday was a definite cause for the German retreat all along the line.

Mateur had been under fire from American "Long Toms" [155 millimeter guns] for several days while the American doughboys slashed with their bayonets and fought with machine guns and mortars against the stubborn foe attempting to hold his strongly fortified positions in the mountains around Sidi N'Sir, Jefna, and the Sedjenane river valley.

Gen. Alexander Pleased.

Gen. Harold Alexander, commander of all ground forces under the direction of Gen. Eisenhower, said he was particularly satisfied that the important advance fell to the credit of the American 2d corps after the severe fighting in which it had engaged.

It was the farthest advance made by any allied troops in the northern fighting and carried American soldiers farther east than at any time since the campaign opened on Nov. 8. Late in November Yank armored forces and British lancers had reached a point seven miles west of Mateur before the Germans stiffened and drove them back.

The Yank advance came as no surprise to this reporter who has been watching our troops become battlewise all the length of Tunisia. The Yanks learned the enemy's tricks and how to meet them and developed some of their own.

The Yanks' success was particularly heartening because the American 2d corps had been given one

U. S. SENDS TONS OF TEA TO ARABS

Half Pound Gifts Bear America's Greeting.

BY ROY GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 3.—Hundreds of thousands of packages of green tea, a product no longer available to the American consumer, are being shipped by the government from this port as free, good will offerings to the Arab and other native populations of North Africa, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE learned today.

The tea is being prepared for shipment by a combined force of about 300 workers employed by General Foods corporation and 25 other warehouses here.

Approximately 2,000,000 pounds of tea were acquired six months ago under a federal freezing order which turned over almost the entire American supply to the United States Commercial company, a government lend-lease agency.

Tea Cost U. S. $800,000.

The tea cost the government an average of 40 cents a pound, or $800,000 for the lot. Much of it still is being held in warehouses here, altho chain stores say they cannot buy an ounce of green tea.

In addition to freezing the available supply, the order turning over almost all the green variety to the federally operated agency also cut wholesalers and packers to 50 per cent of the amount of all tea they had handled during any quarter during 1941.

Guiding the shipments which have been going out in half pound packages adorned with an American flag is T. Harvey Swenarton, head of the tea department of Balfour Guthrie & Co., Ltd., a British owned firm with offices in Wall street here.

From "Good Friends."

Swenarton said that size of the gifts is soon to be reduced to a quarter pound each. He said he didn't understand the Arabic messages imprinted on the packages.

But from another source it was learned that the messages tell the Arabs in their own tongue that the tea is "from their goods friends in America."

Reluctant to discuss the shipments, saying he had "talked too much," Swenarton referred most questions to the New York offices of the United States Commercial company.

Bruce Watson, public relations counsel for General Foods corporation, said: "We were ordered not to discuss the subject."

Lewis Renews His Demands for Increase in Mine Wage

New York, May 3 [Special].—Mine Leader John L. Lewis declared tonight that the 15 day truce under which members of his United Mine Workers union were resuming soft coal production meant no retreat from their original demands which are headed by a $2 a day wage increase. The basic wage for miners is $7 a day.

The UMW president also reiterated the miners' stand they no longer are bound by the no strike pledge and that labor representatives at no time agreed to any set formula for the mass settlement of labor disputes. He charged that the war labor board, by adopting the Little Steel wage formula, breached the understanding labor had entered regarding strikes in war time.

Awaits Move by Ickes.

In addition to heaping new criticism upon the WLB, which he previously has snubbed, ignored, and condemned, Lewis indicated his lack of any intention to deal with it by his comment that his union was standing by awaiting the next move of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

[Text of Lewis' statement on no strike pledge and WLB is on page 15.]

However, dispatches from Washington said that Ickes, who was named boss of the government controled fields, has neither the power nor the desire to negotiate the wage contract, that his job is to get out the coal, and that the ball is being passed back to the WLB, with which Lewis repeatedly has indicated he will not deal.

Lewis' belligerent statement, issued after a meeting of the union's national policy committee here, elicited no statement from the WLB, Ickes, or any other government agency.

Ickes Running Mines.

A spokesman for Ickes, in explaining that he would have no statement, intimated that his only interest was in operating the mines. He indicated that Ickes was interpreting President Roosevelt's Sunday night address to mean that settlement of the wage controversy still was up to the WLB.

And the WLB, after spending the entire afternoon apparently debating what its next step should be, told reporters held all day to receive a statement that "it would have no announcement until after all of the miners returned to work."

Meantime, members of the board privately expressed the conviction that the board's position had not been altered one whit by the week-end developments and strongly implied that they will resign if there is any change from normal procedure in handling the case.

Paul V. McNutt, WMC chairman, tells plans for new job freeze order to cover Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. Details on page 27.

Will Resume Hearings.

When coal production is resumed, a board member said, the three man fact-finding panel will resume the private hearings it started last week, with or without the participation of UMW representatives.

Despite the negotiations apparently being stuck in the same confusion in which it was mired a week ago, the nation's miners were slowly, but steadily going back to the pits. Predictions were general that all of the 480,000 miners idle over the week-end in the 15 state shutdown would be back to work and full scale production resumed tomorrow, the restarting day set by Lewis in his armistice declaration.

The principal issues in both the bituminous and anthracite controversies, and which Lewis said still stand, are for underground travel pay and unionization of minor bosses in addition to a $2 a day wage increase.

It was announced that wage contract negotiations in the anthracite coal dispute, involving 80,000 workers, will be resumed tomorrow morning.

A QUIZ BEE AWAITS CHURCHILL'S NEXT PARLIAMENT BOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 3.—More than 200 questions which members of parliament formulated shortly before and during the Easter holidays will call for answers when parliament next reassembles, political sources disclosed today. Questions intended for Prime Minister Churchill include:

Will you propose to the allies a universal system of measurement, including money, based on the metric system? Can you give particulars of our casualties since the war began? Before we use poison gas will there be a certification by a neutral observer that it has been used by the enemy?

Will you make a statement about the war in Burma? Will flying squads be used to provide labor transportation, and material for the building of 3,000 cottages for agricultural workers?

Monroe Gave Parties for 'Conversation'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—"Sometimes the food's terrible. My guests don't come for food, but for interesting conversation."

John Monroe, the genial host of the big red house on R street, had that to say tonight of the parties to which he invites top flight Washington officials. Then he bit into a golden crumbly piece of southern fried chicken and beamed as if he might be a little facetious—about the food, at least.

For a moment he commented dourly upon the ingratitude of those who'd taken pot luck with him, because so many officials had denied today that they'd ever eaten his chicken, and some had solemnly announced that they didn't even know him.

Chuckles About Denials.

But he chuckled when he thought about his pictures. The pictures, he said, show some of the very same gentlemen who say they've never met him smiling upon him in festive moments. And one of the pictures is autographed.

Monroe, a somber gentleman of middle age with a sparkling wit, explained that he never invited officials to his home to arrange war contracts. He invited them, he said, because he has always entertained as lavishly as he could, in his six years in Washington and in earlier years at his home in Jamaica Plains, Mass.

Studying production from the over-all point of view, he said, has always been his avocation. When the war came, he went on, he decided to put his knowledge of production and government procurement to use in speeding the war program.

Speeded Negotiations.

Negotiations that used to require months, as he explained it, were accomplished in weeks under the guiding Monroe hand.

But Monroe said all that had nothing to do with the parties he gave in his $500 a month mansion. A former West Point cadet who was for a time an army captain, he said he had been entertaining army officers for 22 years.

Part of his reason for refusing to testify before the house military affairs subcommittee last Wednesday, Monroe explained, was his desire to avoid embarrassing those who had been his guests. But he promised that he and Mrs. Eula Smith, who shares the big red house with him and his wife, will testify freely at the full committee hearing next Wednesday. Mrs. Smith also refused to testify last Wednesday.

Never Invited War Broker.

Monroe said he chose his guests because they were entertaining conversationalists, in order that they might partake of one another's ideas. And he never knowingly invited a war contract broker.

Washington hosts have been entertaining more than a hundred years, Monroe said, and it's no crime. He expressed wonder that he had been singled out, between telephone calls, arrivals of telegrams, and notices to appear at the hearings

Monroe pictured himself as a modest manufacturer's representative who had been singularly unsuccessful himself in getting contracts from the war department. He had enjoyed some success, he conceded, in selling the department of agriculture some grain bins as vice president of Sheboygan Woodworking Industries, Inc., of Sheboygan, Wis.

Defends $500 Rent.

But he insisted that the $500 a month rent he pays is not so impressive in view of the $350 rent that he said some congressmen pay for a house on a $10,000 a year salary.

Explaining the Perkins Foundation, about which the subcommittee sought to question him, he said that it is a defunct Boston organization of manufacturers' agents, of which Mrs. Smith was treasurer.

He exhibited a contract from the Dominican republic, authorizing him to buy it 3,000 Sheffield rifles and a million rounds of ammunition in February of 1941, and explained that he is licensed by the state department to deal in arms.

Monroe denied that he was the son of a wealthy junk dealer, and declined to discuss why he changed his name from Monroe Kaplan.

He lives with his wife and ten year old daughter. Mrs. Smith, who he said is now in Florida, is the wife of a government official at Jacksonville, Fla. Monroe said she lives in the mansion with her daughter, nine years old.

KNOX EXPLAINS HIS DINNER AT MYSTERY HOUSE

Denies Discussing War Contracts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox headed a list of high Washington officials who explained today why they had accepted the hospitality of John Monroe in the big red house on R street. This house bobbed into the limelight last week when it was mentioned at a hearing of a house committee on the procurement of war contracts.

John Monroe.

The big red house today was receiving as much attention as was once accorded the little green house on K street, gathering place of political leaders before the days of the Teapot Dome oil scandal. Official attention too was focused on the house and its host when the federal bureau of investigation announced thru John Darsey, head of the war frauds unit, that Monroe's activities have been under scrutiny for months.

Statements Pour Out.

Bigwigs of the capital were busy thruout the day issuing statements that they had visited the big red house on R street and telling why, or denying that they had been there. Some who hadn't even been mentioned among its guests held press conferences at which they announced they had dined in the big red house and asked that their disclosures be withheld in case their names were never mentioned.

Some, like Knox, issued formal statements of denial or "no comment!" and then confided to reporters that they really had attended Monroe's parties. A call to some offices brought the prompt inquiry from the official's secretary:

"Do you want his statement about the big red house on R street?"

The House on R Street.

This puzzled some callers who were not reporters and had merely telephoned on business.

The big red house, spacious enough for a hotel, was only a beautiful Georgian mansion to many Washingtonians until last Wednesday.

Then a house military affairs subcommittee, investigating the procurement of war contracts, summoned Monroe and Mrs. Eula Smith as witnesses. The subcommittee began asking Monroe and the attractive Mrs. Smith about dinners in the home. And both witnesses risked punishment for contempt of congress by refusing to answer.

Some Admit Visits.

The word promptly leaked out that high government executives and army and navy officers had been guests at the big red house. And speculation arose as to whether others at the parties might have approached them regarding war contracts. A Washington columnist brought the question to a head today by speculating on the names of Monroe's visitors and then came the deluge of statements and denials.

Those who reported that they had visited the mansion included Secretary Knox, Maj. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, chief of army ordnance; Sen. Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.], and Rep. James H. Morrison [D., La.].

Several Issue Denials.

Denials of visits to the big red house came in formal statements from Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, and William M. Jeffers, rubber director. Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war; Henry Morgenthau Jr., secretary of the treasury, and Majority Leader John W. McCormack [D., Mass.] of the house denied visiting the R street home in interviews with newspapermen.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the draft, declined to comment on reports that he had been a guest of Monroe.

Sen. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.], frequently mentioned as one of the guests, was on a speaking tour in of the toughest sectors to hold. It was a mass of mountains, gullies, and scrambled hills which proved to be the enemy's best defense during the winter campaign.

AXIS RETREATS AS YANK TROOPS ENTER MATEUR

Americans' 14 Mile Gain Flanks Tunis.

Some observers thought the Yanks would merely butt their heads against this mountain wall as usual as a holding force, while more spectacular advances would be made in other areas. But it seems the Americans had ideas of their own about offensive warfare.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., commander of the 2d corps, pointed his forces in two long prongs. One [on the north] started toward Green and Bald hills near Jefna with a strong force in contact with the French on their left. The other [on the south] began battering against the Germans on the sheer hills to the east and south of Sidi N'Sir which fell in the first few days of the drive.

A Costly Operation.

It was an operation which became costly as the days passed, but it also cost the enemy heavily in men and materials. By this time the Yanks knew much of mountain fighting and, tho often supplied only by mule trains, kept working their way up and around the enemy's hills until the break came.

The regular communique today said merely that "there was a lull on the front yesterday [Sunday]. Our patrols were active and two local attacks made by the enemy were repulsed. Some prisoners were taken."

Some hint of the forthcoming events came when the headquarters spokesman talked in general terms of enemy movement east of the Sidi N'Sir sector.

Issues Special Communique.

Then in the afternoon Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters issued a special communique saying:

"After heavy fighting and maintaining pressure during the last few days, American troops have forced the enemy to make a withdrawal in the coastal areas and occupied Mateur this morning. Several hundred German prisoners have been captured."

In his retreat Col. Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim was favored by the weather. Fog and rain hampered allied air forces. As a result the enemy probably was able to move much of his force out of its precarious position by day as well as night.

The Tunisian topography offers certain possibilities for the new axis line in the northern sector. The enemy can fight among the hills north of Lake Achkel to defend the coastal plain west of Bizerte or use the lake as his front and fight among the other hills east of Mateur which run in a southerly direction.

If this hill mass, which also runs east of Mateur around the southern edge of Lake Bizerte, is pierced, the enemy's next obvious position is to defend the bottleneck between Lakes Achtel and Bizerte and the bottleneck between Lake Bizerte and the Mediterranean.

While the Americans were fighting thru the hills toward Mateur the British 1st army to the south was fighting bitterly east of Mejez-el-Bab and on the broad Goubellat plain east of Bou Arada against strong German forces which were able to check the British after initial advances.

Now that Mateur has fallen, the British 1st army probably will be able to move forward more easily, altho the Germans as usual are making extensive use of mines in this area.

Action Near Pont du Fahs.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, May 3 (AP).—South of the Tunis-Bizerte zone indecisive fighting was reported today about the axis supply base at Pont du Fahs, 34 miles southwest of Tunis.

A French communique said that a German counterattack supported by tanks southeast of Pont du Fahs had made a slight gain.

However, to the east of this area, Gen. Marie Louis Koeltz's troops occupied Djebel el Dib, near Saouf, and thrust out to the outskirts of the town itself.

From the British 8th army in the far south no action had been reported beyond its earlier repulse of an axis counterattack in the coastal region northeast of Enfidaville.

American A-20 [Boston] bombers assaulted an enemy tank formation on the Tunis road east of Mejez-El-Bab and the pilots said they observed four explosions.

TELL OF COUNTER-ATTACKS.

The German high command communique, broadcast from Berlin, said "local enemy attacks on the Tunisian front were frustrated, partly by counter-attacks." The Italian communique reported only reconnaissance activity in Tunisia. Axis bombers, it said, raided allied transport concentrations in the allies' rear and one plane was reported shot down by German fighters.

Yanks Capture Mateur and Sweep Forward in Tunisia

MATEUR CENTER OF NO. TUNISIAN ROADS AND RAILS

Mateur, small Tunisian town which American forces entered yesterday in their drive toward the great naval base of Bizerte, is more important than its size would indicate because of the railroads and highways that center there.

Railroads lead northward from Mateur to Ferryville, the dynamo of the Bizerte naval base. On the southwest they run to the inland town of Nebeur, crossing the vital Tebessa to Tunis line. From west to east, other rail lines pass thru Mateur from the border port of Tabarka to the Tunisian capital of Tunis and beyond.

Roads radiate from Mateur in all directions, with highways connecting it with Bizerte, Tunis, and other important coastal and inland points.

The town of Mateur and its immediate environs had a prewar population of about 4,000, one-third of whom were Italians. The old city still is inclosed by the walls of the Roman period.

DESERT ERASES SCARS OF WAR AS ARMIES MOVE ON

Wind and Sands Cover White Crosses.

ON THE EDGE OF THE LIBYAN DESERT [Delayed]—(AP).—The thousands of soldiers' graves strung from El Alamein to the borders of Tripolitania are slowly but surely being wiped out by the shifting sands which are erasing one by one the marks of the terrific struggle that surged over the face of the desert for more than two years.

Another "desert victory" is following hard behind the victorious British 8th army which has pushed axis Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa corps westward across half the margin of northern Africa.

The desert is peaceful again and traces of most of the great tented towns which were air bases and camps have been wiped out by the winds and dust. Supply and maintenance depots have disappeared as the army moved forward.

Crosses Almost Buried.

The graves are still marked by white crosses, but even many of them have been almost buried by the swirling sands.

The Bedouins, who had to move nimbly to avoid the fighting, are beginning to sift back to their accustomed haunts, enriched by an occasional windfall of food and clothing which includes British jackets, German caps, Italian trousers, and prized tins of sardines.

The desert coastal road over which supply vehicles once moved bumper to bumper now has little traffic. It is not practical to haul supplies such a long distance overland, and the juncture of the western desert army and its British and American comrades of the 1st army has now permitted the southern force to be supplied in part from the west.

Rest for Engineers.

The single track railroad, extending 300 miles from its peacetime terminal at Mersa Matruh to the long-besieged allied stronghold at Tobruk, is now operating on a reduced scale.

Its New Zealand engineers and native laborers are getting a rest as Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's men have progressed beyond the point at which it is an important supply line.

The dummy railhead which allied camouflage experts set up at the inland Libyan town of Fort Capuzzo to throw axis air scouts off the track from a nearby important railhead has its tin tracks nearly buried under sand.

PREACHER, CHEMIST FIND WAY TO USE P-38'S AS BOMBERS

AT AN ADVANCED U. S. FIGHTER-BOMBER BASE SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA, May 3 (AP).—Two southern flyers, a former preacher and a chemist, developed a weapon now giving Adolf Hitler a headache—bomb carrying Lightning [P-38] fighters used to attack shipping.

The first target was a Flying Fortress which the Italians had captured almost intact. Leaders of the flight were Lt. Col. John W. Welton, Rowlesburg, Va., and Capt. Davis Stentz of Waynesville, N. C. Welton is a former chemist and Stentz is fresh from college, where he helped pay his way by preaching. The pilots were not sure that the bombs would clear their propellers, but they did.

The bombing of the fortress was a complete success and the experiments started by the two pilots soon disclosed the size bombs the Lightnings could carry and how they could be aimed at ships.

HOW WE BOMBED TOKIO: FLYERS CHEER FOR NAVY

Learn Coral Sea Victory While in Hospital.

Chinese Vignettes

Strange bits of Chinese life are pictured by Lt. Charles L. McClure in this eighth instalment of his story, "How We Bombed Tokio." He is now stationed at Mather field, California.

BY LT. CHARLES L. M'CLURE.
As told to William Shinnick.
[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Sacramento, Cal., May 3.—We of the crew of the Ruptured Duck—our name for the plane in which we had bombed Tokio and crashed in the China sea—were almost immediately in touch with other American flyers once we had reached our hospital refuge.

Capt. David Jones [now a major] communicated with us from a nearby town. He had escaped without injury. He had the accurate count on the planes and knew what happened to all of them but two. Before we left he had only one to report unaccounted for—the one that was interned in Russia.

He wanted us taken away from the hospital long before we went, but Doc White [navy surgeon] wouldn't hear to moving Ted Lawson [pilot of McClure's plane] until his leg was better, and it had been decided we should stick together until he could travel with some assurance of safety.

Thrilling News of Mates.

From Capt. Jones and Doc White we learned the adventures of the other crews that survived were about as dramatic and dangerous as our own, except that most of them had only minor injuries or none at all. Some of the details reached us there in the hospital; others came to us later, and it was invariably a thrill to hear that some comrade was safe.

Planes piloted by Lt. Dean Hallmark, a Texan, and Lt. William Farrow, a South Carolinian, went down in Jap-held territory, and were believed to have been captured. These pilots were among the best in the bombing group. Luck just didn't break their way.

Chicagoan's Narrow Escape.

Lt. [now captain] Charles J. Ozuk of Chicago, navigator, bailed out of one of the planes in rugged country. His parachute caught in a tree and he was smashed against the face of a cliff. He suffered a leg injury and was so weak that he had to stay there all night. With a crutch and the help of the natives he got to a safe place.

Corp. Leland D. Faktor, in the same crew as Lt. Ozuk, was killed, altho his parachute opened. He was the only one known to have lost his life in a smashup or parachute jump.

Sergt. Waldo J. Bither of Louisiana had a narrow escape from death when he leaped from a bomber piloted by a Texan, Lt. Thad H. Blanton. It seems that when he landed it was completely dark and he had no idea what direction he should take. So he sat down, smoked a cigaret, and flipped away the butt. He must have had quite a shock when he saw the blowing butt fall hundreds of feet. I understand that after that he attempted no movement in the dark.

Sign Language Used.

From another plane leaped Lt. Jack E. Manch, a Virginian, who landed safely and wrapped his chute around him to keep off the rain. He started with several pistols, but lost all but one on the way down. The story is that Manch met a Chinese who showed him a small Jap flag, a British emblem, and a picture of President Roosevelt. By expressing horror at the Jap flag and shaking his head at the British insignia, while smiling at the picture, he established his identity. Later guerrillas helped him along.

The plane that reached Russia, and the only one not smashed up, was commanded by Capt. Edward J. York. He and his crew were, of course, interned.

I never knew what had become of the Ruptured Duck after we left. When we left, it was lying in the sea, bottom up, and Corp. Thatcher was unable to break into it. We did see some souvenir bits of wreckage in Chinese hands; that was all. There have been reliable reports that the Japs raised the plane, patched it up, and exhibited it around Japan. I never knew for certain whether the Japs got it, but it seems likely if they were patroling the coast.

War Takes Its Toll.

Many of the men of the Tokio mission are again putting in hard licks against the enemies of their country. Some of them can't. Davy Jones, who did so much to keep us informed while we were hospitalized, is now a prisoner of war in Germany and Lt. Clever, after surviving the perils of Japan and China, lost his life in a plane crash in Placid, O. He was a good friend and a great fellow.

Lt. Donald Smith, with whom the good Lt. White had flown, also was killed fighting in Europe last November. Bombing is no cinch at best and the percentages are immutable; some must die, but I think all of the Tokio group who are alive would welcome another chance at the Japanese capital.

Enjoy Baseball and Sea Victory.

Settled down for the long stay, we found the radio a great help. From KGEI in San Francisco we got news broadcasts daily. Being from St. Louis, I kept close watch on the Cardinal baseball scores and was kidded by the other lieutenants who were from the west coast. The Cards turned out pretty well. [The St. Louis Cardinals won the National league pennant and subsequently dethroned the New York Yankees as world champions.]

The greatest kick we got out of the broadcasts was the description of the Coral sea battle. We whooped and yelled like Indians when we got the score on that one. Any time we could hear of bad fortune for the Japs the day was a success.

Home News Treasured.

Every last word of the news from home was kept and treasured in our memories. These messages and the never failing variations of the Chinese character and means of getting things done furnished our entertainment day and night.

We recalled the litter bearers: How they would gather at dawn, apparently all ready for work, and then spend nearly an hour arguing. The arguments were [1] about what wages they would get and [2] which pair had to carry me. I was biggest and heaviest and often the carriers who got me were the smallest. Perhaps they were not able to defend themselves.

Smell Beats Sight.

The arguments would inevitably end up with the government man on the scene setting the pay. It was interesting after that to see the coolies march along until they smelled a town. Coming out of the hills you could smell 'em before you could see 'em.

It seems now, looking back, that the early part of our hospitalization was humdrum and dull. The dullness was to be relieved soon in an unusual way.

[Tomorrow: Injured flyers decide to travel on as Jap advance threatens their refuge.]

GERMANS CLAIM 84 ALLIED SHIPS SUNK IN APRIL

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A German communique broadcast yesterday by the Berlin radio claimed that Nazi air and naval forces sank 84 allied ships totaling 423,000 tons during April, less than half the tonnage the Germans said they sent to the bottom in the previous month. There was no allied confirmation.

The broadcast said the vessels sunk were 63 merchantmen and 21 war ships ranging from motor torpedo boats to one aircraft carrier. An April 25 announcement by Berlin that a Nazi submarine had sunk the 14,500 ton United States aircraft carrier Ranger in the North Atlantic was denied by the United States navy.

U-boats were credited in the communique with the sinking of a crûiser, three destroyers, and a submarine and 415,000 tons of merchant shipping. for March, the German claim was 149 allied merchantmen totaling 926,000 tons and 21 war ships.

FRENCH LEADERS NOW DIVIDED ON WHERE TO MEET

'Algiers,' Says De Gaulle; 'No,' Says Giraud.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, May 3.—Gen. Henri Giraud made public today the message he has sent to Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, in London, disclosing that he has suggested a meeting to be held in North Africa on Wednesday or as soon thereafter as Gen. De Gaulle can arrive.

At the same time it became apparent that the two leaders, while mutually anxious to get together to conclude an agreement, are in a disagreement over the city in which they shall meet.

De Gaulle insists, it is reported, that the meeting take place in Algiers, seat of French North African authority. Giraud, however, would prefer to conclude their agreement in some "neutral" town such as Biskra, Algeria, or Marrakech, Morocco, rather than risk the likely possibility of a demonstration in De Gaulle's favor in Algiers.

Giraud's Statement.

This disagreement over one town, seemingly trivial after their long negotiations which are now reaching the stage where agreement seems possible, developed early today a few hours before Giraud's statement, which read as follows:

"Gen. Giraud delivered to Gen. Catroux [Gen. Georges Catroux, Fighting French emissary in North Africa] on April 27 his reply to the note of the [French] national committee, dated April 15. He considers that an agreement should now be reached by direct meetings; that this work should be accomplished rapidly and calmly.

"Therefore, in his reply to Gen. De Gaulle, dated April 27, he proposed to meet him in a North African city as soon after May 5 as possible for the latter and then—the agreement concluded—that they proceed together to Algiers."

Fear Build-Up for De Gaulle.

Even this announcement appeared to indicate a rift between two groups was still present in other matters. It had been planned to make a simultaneous disclosure of Giraud's reply and invitation at the two headquarters after all members of the national committee had had time to digest the facts.

However, some of the committee members, it has been reported here, have been making public their discussions in London of the contents of Giraud's reply. Consequently, it appears that Giraud's group decided to make public their position now rather than wait for future London developments.

The group around Giraud has been determined to keep De Gaulle from being built up as a dominating figure in French North Africa. De Gaulle knows his strength is in the cities, particularly a metropolis like Algiers, and would like to appear under the most favorable light this time.

JOE FOSS GETS HOME FOR TARDY BIRTHDAY MEAL

Relatives Intercept Ace's Train.

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 3.—Capt. Joe Foss, the marine ace who shot down 26 Japanese planes over Guadalcanal, braced himself today for the wildest civic welcome this city of 41,000 ever has given a native son.

The program will get under way at 11:45 a. m. tomorrow with a 15 minute nation-wide broadcast. It will continue with a parade thru streets hung with bunting and will end tomorrow night with a homecoming dance in the Municipal coliseum. There'll be something doing all day.

Capt. Foss fortified himself for the strain at a belated birthday dinner today [his 28th birthday was April 17] at the farm home of his mother, Mrs. Mary Lacey Foss, four miles east of Sioux Falls.

His Favorites on Menu.

The menu included his favorite dishes—roast chicken and mashed potatoes. Reporting his appetite as excellent, relatives said "it looked as if he wanted to get back those 37 pounds he lost at Guadalcanal."

The meal ended with the cutting of a pink angel food birthday cake decorated with the words "Capt. Foss—Welcome home." Foss blew out the 28 candles with a single breath.

Afterward the ace, whose bag of enemy planes tied him with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker for all-time American honors, visited the well stocked farmyard. He shouted "oooo-ie" at the pigs and stroked a steer while friends shouted "bulldog him, Joe." He refused to milk a cow for photographers.

Then he mounted a new tractor—the property of Brother Clifford, who with the widowed mother operates the 160 acre family farm. He tried the unfamiliar controls and finally succeeded in killing the motor.

Relatives gathered from many cities for the homecoming. They included a sister, Flora Mary, employed in the Vega aircraft plant at Burbank, Cal.; an uncle, L. D. Lacey, 29 East Division street, Chicago, and three cousins, Walter White, Rochester, N. Y.; Staff Sergt. Le Roy Foss of the army air base at Casper, Wyo., and Don Foss, who is attending navy pre-flight school at Iowa City, Ia.

Downtown streets in Sioux Falls will be cleared of parked cars for the parade this afternoon. Thousands of soldiers from Sioux Falls field, an army technical school, will march abreast and motorized equipment will run in two parallel lines. A fighter plane will be in the line of march. Squadrons of fighters and bombers will roar overhead.

Dozen Bands to Play.

Capt. Foss will ride in the parade and will watch it, too. After riding near the head of the procession, he will return to the reviewing stand to watch.

Music will blare from a dozen bands. Curiously, they will include two in which Foss once played his alto saxophone. During his school days he was a member of the Washington High school band, and pay checks from the municipal band met the cost of his first flying lessons.

A public reception at Howard Wood field will consume most of the afternoon. The ace will be introduced by Rep. Francis Case [R., S. D.], a marine in the World war. Gov. M. Q. Sharpe and mayors from 35 surrounding towns will be on the platform. So will Comm. Douglas M. Campbell, commanding officer of the naval air station at Minneapolis, Minn. Comm. Campbell was Foss' instructor at the Pensacola, Fla., naval air station.

Popping with civic pride, the marine's home town will present his mother with a huge photograph of her son at the reception. A copy will be hung in the chamber of commerce.

Flyer to Leave Sunday.

Sporadic outbursts of ceremony will occur thruout the week until Capt. Foss leaves Sunday. The flyer admitted some qualms at the scheduled number of public appearances.

"All this makes me a little scared," he said.

Flight mates have said fear was something he never showed at Guadalcanal.

Capt. Foss and his bride of last August, the former June Shakstad of Sioux Falls, arrived home today after visiting Washington, D. C., and Chicago. To avoid a raucous welcome, they arranged from Chicago for relatives to meet the train at Canton, S. D., 20 miles southeast of Sioux Falls. But the secret leaked out and a throng of photographers, newspaper men, and well wishers met the train.

The hero's mother, whose hair is black despite her 64 years, got a big hug and kiss from her son. She blinked as photographers' flash bulbs went off and there were tears in her eyes. It had been a year to the day since her son had been home.

"Some of the nights since then I didn't sleep very well," she admitted, "but I knew Joe would come back to me."

Capt. Foss will leave Sunday on a tour of war plants and navy schools which will continue till June 3. He will visit Chicago May 11-12. After the tour—on which he will not be accompanied by his wife—he will be given a 30 day furlough.

His future after that is uncertain, but he is expected to be assigned to the rôle of instructor and inspiration to naval and marine flyers for several months before being permitted to return to active duty.

U. S. MUST OPEN DRIVE ON JAPAN, SAYS ADM. FITCH

Outlines Attack by Air, Land and Sea.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT AN ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC FLEET BASE, April 29 [Delayed.] — The whole desire of the men and officers serving in the United States forces in the South Pacific is to drive ahead and carry the war to the Japanese instead of sitting back on the defensive, Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, commander of combined air forces in the South Pacific area, said today in an exclusive interview. A veteran naval officer who commanded the task force with which the aircraft carrier Lexington operated in the historic battle of the Coral sea, he was emphatic in his belief the war must be pushed against Japan.

Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch.

"We cannot just sit back on the defensive and win this war with Japan," Fitch said. "We must take the offensive and smash toward Japan by land, sea, and air in aggressive and determined operations to assure victory."

Asked for his opinion on the oft-repeated statement that it will take a hundred years to defeat Japan if we attempt to drive the Japanese back island by island, Fitch laughed and explained his theory of the method to be used against them.

Must Isolate Isles.

"Certainly it would take an immensely long time to win the war island by island," he said. "But we don't have to do it that way. What we must do is drive a salient, or offensive shaft, of troops, planes, and ships deep into the Jap island holdings. Such a salient would cut between Japan and the islands. By such a drive we would cut the Jap supply line to these bases, isolating them, and they would then fall in time by their own weight.

"To drive such salients across Japan's logistic lines we must have unquestioned command of the air in order to protect our own supply lines."

Fitch pointed to the Guadalcanal campaign as a small scale example of this system.

"After we became firmly established on Guadalcanal, we were able by the use of planes and ships to prevent fresh troops and supplies in large quantities from reaching the Japs on that island," he explained. "In time Jap resistance ended there. The same thing can be done on a large scale by cutting off groups of island bases without attacking them directly.

Drive Toward Malaya.

"I see Rabaul as the apex of a triangle. The western side of the triangle extends to New Guinea."

Fitch said he visualizes Gen. MacArthur's forces driving westward thru the Japanese island holdings toward Malaya. At the same time the British forces should drive east and south thru Burma in a gigantic pincers movement.

"Clearing Burma is tremendously important in another aspect," he said. "We must drive out the Japs there in order to reopen a large scale supply line to China, so that eventually we can strike at Japan across the China sea."

Another great objective is the Island of Truk, Japan's huge fleet base in the Carolines, north of New Britain, Fitch said.

Truk Must Be Reduced.

"Truk is the Jap's Pearl Harbor of the South Pacific," the admiral said. "Reducing it is going to be a tremendous job. Truk is not one, but several strong bases in a great big archipelago of islands and is fully equipped to handle an attack by land, sea, or air. Because of the numerous reefs, coral atolls, and the like, the task of getting at Truk will be a big one. It is really harder to attack than Pearl Harbor would be. But it must be overcome or isolated."

Vice Adm. Fitch has served with the navy 41 years and has three sons who are navy officers in the Pacific area. When the war came, he left San Diego on Dec. 8, 1941, commanding a carrier task force and subsequently commanded various carrier task forces. He now commands the combined army, navy, marine, and Australian air forces in the South Pacific. He was made a vice admiral last December.

CALL GUNSHOT DEATH SUICIDE.

A coronor's jury returned a verdict of suicide yesterday over Edwin J. Parker, 35 years old, a tool and die maker, who was found shot to death early yesterday morning in a garage in the rear of 3558 Cermak road, after a quarrel with his wife, Helen.

One Idea on How to Carry the War to Japan

U. S. BOMBERS SCORE HITS ON JAP SIGNAL STATION IN BURMA

NEW DELHI, India, May 3 (AP).—Liberator bombers of the 10th United States air force scored probable hits on military establishments on Diamond Island, 140 miles southwest of Rangoon and about 725 miles southeast of Calcutta, in a raid last Tuesday, it was announced today.

A communique said Japanese signal installations were hit, but detailed observation was precluded by haze.

American formations on Friday, the bulletin said, reported heavy damage to buildings and warehouses in an attack on the Sule Pagoda wharf area, while a 200 foot vessel was believed sunk by hits and near hits.

From these operations one American plane was missing while one Japanese fighter was claimed as probably destroyed and a second damaged in the air.

ALLIES DESTROY FOUR PLANES AT JAP AIRDROME

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, May 4 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Two Japanese bombers and two fighters have been destroyed on the ground at Koepang, Timor, the allied high command said today.

"Our long range fighters raided the airdrome, destroying two enemy bombers and two fighters caught on the ground," the noon communique said. "The airdrome personnel and barracks buildings were also strafed in numerous passes over the target."

Three allied pilots are missing as a result of the Japanese attack on Darwin Sunday, the high command reported.

LADY MARINES HAVE LANDED —AT CITY POST!

3 CHICAGO YANKS IN ALASKA WIN THE AIR MEDAL

AN ADVANCE BASE IN THE ANDREANOF ISLANDS, Alaska, April 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—Maj. Gen. William O. Butler, commanding general of the 11th air force, bestowed eight distinguished flying crosses, 79 air medals, one oak leaf cluster, and one Purple Heart today.

Those receiving the D. F. C. included Capt. Howard W. Millard, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Air medals were presented to: Lts. John T. Rodger, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Norman R. Savignac, Wauwatosa, Wis.; Technical Sergts. Robert A. Rish, Lawrenceville, Ill., and Kenneth C. Webb, Alta Vista, Ia.; Sergt. William R. Hunt, 741 N. La Salle street, Chicago; Corp. Harold H. Angelroth, West Allis, Wis.; Pvts. Godfrey W. Tucker, 2222 W. Jackson boulevard, Chicago, and Daniel J. Barnicle, 5508 Shubert avenue, Chicago.

British Men Soon May Get Shoes with Wooden Soles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 3.—Wooden-soled footwear for men probably soon will be introduced to Britain, it was learned tonight. This newest measure, it was said, will be aimed at relieving the leather shortage which is particularly affecting children's shoes. Wooden-soled women's footwear already have been in use for some time.

Dublin Potato Shortage Brings Market Queues

DUBLIN, Ireland, May 3 (AP).—A shortage of potatoes due to virtual failure of last year's crop and transport difficulties brought the first potato market queues in Dublin over the week-end. Deliveries have been delayed by transport problems, including a gasoline shortage. A 50 per cent reduction in suburban bus service was ordered to conserve gasoline.

Jap Submarines Called Just as Effective as Nazi U-Boats

Take Toll of 2 Pct.

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, May 3 (AP).—An allied spokesman asserted today that the efficiency of the Japanese submarine campaign in the southwest Pacific and that of the German operations in the Atlantic are about the same.

"Our naval forces have been very successful in protecting traffic within this area bound for Australia from the United States," he said. "Adm. Andrew B. Cunningham, commander of the British Mediterranean fleet, recently gave figures for the Tunisian campaign as 10,500,000 tons shipping for five months with a loss of about 2½ per cent. Comparable figures for this area for a similar period would be something less than one million tons of shipping with a loss of approximately 2 per cent.

"Judged by results the relative efficiencies seem to be about the same."

[Japanese imperial headquarters said in a statement broadcast by Berlin that three large vessels had been sunk in the southwest Pacific by Japanese submarines recently. The broadcast said a 12,000-ton tanker was sunk in the second half of April. Since May 1, a 12,000-ton troopship and an 8,000-ton freighter were reported destroyed.]

Smash 93,300 Tons

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, May 2 [Delayed] — (AP). — Gen. MacArthur's Liberators and Flying Fortresses sank, otherwise destroyed, or damaged 93,300 tons of Japanese shipping during April — a month marked by almost incessant bad weather.

Allied air officers, making this report today, disclosed also that heavy bombers, fighter planes, and anti-aircraft batteries destroyed 68 enemy planes during the month and probably destroyed 28 more.

Of the 93,300 tons of shipping lost by the enemy, 27,500 tons were sunk or destroyed and 65,800 damaged to bring the grand total of Japanese vessels sunk, destroyed, or damaged in this sector to 654,980 tons since last August.

Majority Merchant Ships.

The Japanese ship losses for April included vessels of all classes, but the majority were merchantmen. None of our heavy bombers was lost.

In Japan's heavy April raids against Port Moresby, Oro Bay, and Milne Bay, New Guinea, and thru allied attacks on enemy bases, 26 bombers, 36 fighters, and six dive bombers were destroyed. Probably destroyed were 13 bombers, two dive bombers, and 13 fighters. Eight of the enemy planes were brought down by anti-aircraft fire.

U. S. SHIP SUNK BY TORPEDO IN NORTH ATLANTIC

Washington, D. C., May 3.—A medium size United States merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk in mid-March in the North Atlantic, the navy announced today. Survivors have been landed at New York City. The ship was struck by a torpedo early in the morning and the crew of 42 was rescued, the navy said. The attack brought to 651 the number of vessels lost in the western area since Pearl Harbor, according to an unofficial tabulation.

BOMBERS IN NEW OFFENSIVE RAID KISKA 13 TIMES

Washington, D. C., May 3 (AP).—A renewed aerial drive against the Japanese air and submarine base on Kiska island in the Aleutians was reported today by the navy, which said bombers struck at enemy installations 13 times Saturday.

Fires were started, holes were torn in the runway carved out on the mountainous island and heavy smoke was seen rising from bombed installations.

Other bombs hit at North Head—the northern side of Kiska harbor—and a heavy explosion resulted. Other heavy bombers attacked Attu, secondary Japanese base.

In the South Pacific, Munda, target of American bombers 115 times, was hit again yesterday, this time by Avenger torpedo bombers and Wildcat fighter escorts.

Grant Wood's famous painting "American Gothic" reproduced by permission of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Beneath the stern and unyielding righteousness of the men and women who conquered the soil of America, Grant Wood has depicted their fixed belief in a better tomorrow . . . an undying patriotism . . . a readiness to sacrifice, that their sons and daughters might go forward!

Dear Senator:

We went over to the schoolhouse the other night, Mother and I, for a sort of social. Up on the blackboard (I suppose during the day) some pupil had written "Peace Treaties must be ratified by the United States Senate."

On the way home I spoke to Mother about it. She had noticed the words, too. And with Jim overseas, I knew she was thinking about the same thing I was.

We're sure we're going to win this war, Senator. But we're not interested only in winning; we don't want a war like this one ever to happen again.

This is the way Mother and I feel, and we know, as you do, that every mother and father, sister and wife feels just the same.

Why, Senator, you know one of these days soon you and your 95 fellow senators are going to decide the fate of nearly all the people in this world. You are going to have to pass on the kind of peace we are to have.

What you decide on is going to determine what kind of world we are going to live in. If your judgment is good, we shall have a good world. But if your judgment is bad, the cost to us, the pain, the suffering here in this country—and maybe all over the globe—will be on your conscience.

So it will be up to you. You will have to see through any bad schemes, if there are any; you'll have to know a lot about our own country's needs and wants and a great deal about the needs and wants and hopes of all the other countries. Yes, I guess you will have to come pretty close to knowing human nature.

Senator, this peace we're talking about isn't a small thing, it isn't anything you can get a hold of in a few minutes, or a few days!

It's something so big and so awful you and Mother and me and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill and Chiang Kai-shek and Joe Stalin and, I guess, all of us, ought to work and pray and hope and labor over it, every waking hour we can spare.

I wish Mother and I could help you, but we know we can't. We don't even always know what is good for ourselves, let alone good for the whole country or for a couple of billion other struggling souls in this world.

I think, though, you can count on two things, all the way through.

First, the folks who put you on the team. They're pretty fine people, by and large. They'll back you and root for you and try to make a go of anything you say is right.

Second, Mother and I believe that God is willing to lend a hand when the questions get so complicated mortal man can't answer them.

Remember what honest old Abe Lincoln said about "These shall not have died in vain"? Well, we want you to act like he did there at Gettysburg. Noble. Above all the little, petty human jealousies and meannesses that make us do the easy, everyday things.

Yes, Senator, you and your fellow senators happened along at a time when your names are going down in the history books.

God guide you to write your page in large and shining letters!

Respectfully,

John and Jane Smith

BERNT BALCHEN SAVES 7 ON ICE CAP 5 MONTHS

Five Airmen Killed in Rescue Effort.

Washington, D. C., May 3 (AP).—The grim story of the rescue of seven airmen from the Greenland ice cap after five months of persistent attempts in which five men died was told today by the war department.

After the failure of various attempts to bring the men out, including use of motor sleds, Col. Bernt Balchen, noted flyer and arctic explorer and hero of two previous rescues on the ice cap, succeeded in landing a navy flying boat and taking off on three different occasions—not on water, but on snow.

Three of the rescued airmen, accompanied by Gen. H. H. Arnold, air forces commander, visited President Roosevelt today—Capt. Armand L. Monteverde, Anaheim, Cal., Lt. Harry E. Spencer, Dallas, Tex., and Staff Sergt. Don T. Tetley, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Live in Fuselage.

Monteverde was pilot and Spencer co-pilot of a Flying Fortress which was being ferried to Great Britain, but was diverted last Nov. 9 to search for another plane reported overdue. The other plane never was found, and while they were engaged in the search, their own plane crashed.

The plane broke in two, and the radio was wrecked. Sergt. Paul J. Spina, Frankford, N. Y., was the only one injured. He broke one arm and his hands froze.

The crew rigged quarters in the tail of the broken fuselage, but there were only limited rations aboard and no heat or lights. High winds and driving snow kept the men inside the crumpled Fortress for 10 days.

Gets Radio Repaired.

Despite the intense cold Corp. Lo.en H. Howarth, La Crosse, Wis., got the radio repaired and the stranded men established communication with would-be rescuers.

On the 15th day Balchen flew over and dropped supplies. At about the same time Tetley and Lt. Max H. Demorest, Flint, Mich., set out with two motor sleds from a small weather station not many miles from the crash. They finally reached the scene on foot, went back for their sleds, and then Demorest disappeared with his sled into a crevasse less than 100 yards from the plane.

Meanwhile Lt. John A. Pritchard Jr., Burbank, Cal., a coast guard flyer, landed a Grumann plane near the wreck and then flew back to the cutter Northland, taking with him Sergt. Alexander F. Tucciarone, New York, and Staff Sergt. Lloyd Puryear, Lebanon, Ky. He returned to the wreck but was ordered to take off immediately because fog was closing in. His plane crashed in the takeoff, killing all aboard—Pritchard, Howarth, and Radioman Benjamin A. Bottoms, Salem, Mass.

Falls Into Crevasse.

The feet of Lt. William F. O'Hara, Scranton, Pa., had frozen and were gangrenous, so Capt. Monteverde put him on a sled and sent him off, Tetley driving the sled and accompanied by Spencer and Pvt. Clarence Wedel, Canton, Kas.

A mile and a half from the wreck, Wedel dropped into a crevasse and was lost. Four miles farther on, the sled broke down, and the survivors were stranded in two camps. They were kept alive by supplies dropped by the air transport command.

A ski plane attempted to reach them, but was forced down. The pilot and co-pilot made their way back to the rescue base.

In February, Balchen succeeded in landing the navy flying boat beside the sled camp and rescuing all the men there, including O'Hara, who lost both feet. Bad weather prevented a return trip by Balchen until early in April, when he made a second trip, carrying a dog team and several men experienced in arctic work. These succeeded in bringing Monteverde and the others from the plane to the sled camp, and on April 6 Balchen landed his PBY in the snow a third time and flew out with all survivors.

CHICAGO FLYER, 3 OTHERS DIE IN BOMBER CRASH

Del Rio, Tex., May 3 (AP).—Two officers and two enlisted men were killed in the crash of a medium bomber 25 miles northwest of Laughlin army air field today.

C. A. P. Flyer Killed.

Albert Lea, Minn., May 3 (AP).—Edward M. Siessmen, 38, of Alexandria, a civil air patrol captain and a flight instructor at St. Cloud, was killed at 10 a. m. today when his plane crashed on the takeoff from the local airport and burned. Siessmen had come from Alexandria this morning to get his plane, which had become stalled here during a heavy snow storm last winter.

Bomber Crashes, Burns.

Shreveport, La., May 3 (AP).—One flyer was killed and five others injured, two of them critically, when a bomber crashed and burned this afternoon during a takeoff on the landing field at Barksdale field. The dead man was Staff Sergt. Thomas J. Greir, 27, aerial engineer, of Philadelphia, Pa. Critically injured were Second Lt. John R. Beattie, 24, navigator-bombardier, of New Haven, Conn., and Staff Sergt. Roger J. Thompson, 28, radio-gunner, of Fruitland, Wash.

Marine Flyer Killed.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 3 (AP).—Second Lt. Gayle J. Johanson, 22, U. S. M. C aviator, of San Francisco, Cal., was killed yesterday when his plane crashed during a routine training flight, officials of the Jacksonville naval air station announced.

It also was announced that naval Lt. [JG] Walton Threlkeld Jr., 21 years old, has been missing since Thursday on a training flight. He is the son of Mrs. H. Threlkeld of Tonkawa, Okla.

Army Airman Killed.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 3 (AP).—Pvt. Henry D. Eynon of Bergholz, O., was killed in a combat training accident at Camp Carson Saturday, it was announced tonight.

REPORT IL DUCE ASKS HITLER FOR IMMEDIATE HELP

LONDON, May 3 (AP).—The Morocco [Africa] radio in a report credited to "Berlin correspondents of neutral papers" asserted tonight that Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, in a note to Adolf Hitler, had asked for immediate military and economic assistance. It said that the note also asked that Italian troops be removed from Tunisia simultaneously with and under the same conditions as German troops. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

'Steady Stream'

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 3 (AP).—The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Tidningen cabled today that Russia would receive a steady stream of war material from the United States via Alaska and the Arctic ocean during the summer along a route free from the menace of German submarines and planes.

The report said the convoys would leave United States and Canadian west coast ports and travel more than 6,000 miles to Khabarovo on the Kara sea and "will not lose one small thing."

The Russians were said to be pushing completion of a 200 mile railroad line from Khabarovo to Vorkuta to complete a connection with the supply line from Archangel, which already is served by convoy routes which sail past the Norwegian coast.

Yanks Score Direct Hit on German Field Kitchen

WITH THE U. S. ARMY SOUTHWEST OF MATEUR, May 3 (AP).—The crew of an American long range field gun was credited today with a direct hit on a German kitchen truck and a mess line of Nazi soldiers. "We were shelling a small road leading to Lake Achkel and got several vehicles, including the kitchen truck," an officer said.

SHIP YARDS SET NEW MARK WITH 157 VESSELS

Washington, D. C., May 3 (AP).—American merchant ship yards established another new record for ship production in April by delivering 157 ships totaling 1,606,600 deadweight tons.

This, announced today by the maritime commission, brought 1943 production to 536 ships aggregating 5,370,200 deadweight tons, the four month total exceeding the total tonnage constructed during the first nine months of 1942.

April construction was at an annual rate exceeding 19,000,000 tons, the approximate goal for the year. A west coast yard, California Shipbuilding corporation of Wilmington, Cal., broke all previous records for a single yard by delivering 19 Liberty ships.

Nazi Troops on Rhodes Island, Istanbul Reports

LONDON, May 3 (AP).—The British radio broadcast reports from Istanbul tonight saying that German troops had arrived at the Italian island of Rhodes. [The office of war information added that the broadcast reported observers were associating the German troop movement with the invasion exercises carried out in Cyprus by British troops last week.]

CHINESE BEAT 3 JAP ATTACKS ON MOUNTAIN TOWN

Parachuters and Planes Driven Off.

CHUNGKING, China, May 3 (AP).—Japanese parachute troops and planes attempted to capture the strategic village of Tofuchen three times, but were driven out each time by Chinese troops in the bitter campaign for the Taiheng mountains, the Chinese high command said today.

"The Chinese now have the situation in hand," the communique added, altho the combat in the rugged hills continued intense. Hand to hand encounters were reported frequent.

Jap Thrust Repulsed.

Employing familiar infiltration tactics, the Japanese captured another strategically important town in the west range of the Taihengs but were driven out, the communique said.

A Japanese thrust south from Hwajung in north Honan province was reported repulsed. Hwajung was captured by the Japanese last month and intermittent fighting has resulted since.

In Yunnan province in the south, the Chinese said they lost a small town April 20 to a Japanese column pressing north from Tenghung, west of the Salween river. The Japanese then moved against two other points and were engaged in fierce fighting, the communique said.

[Japanese headquarters asserted that 20,000 Chinese troops were encircled on the Peiping-Hankow railway, and that picked Japanese units, strongly supported by air, were advancing north and east of Tanghsien, northeast of Hopei province, against communist troops and the third Chungking division.]

U. S. General Wounded.

Washington, D. C., May 3 (AP).—Gen. Edgar E. Glenn was wounded slightly, the army said today, when he was struck by a bomb fragment April 28 during a raid by Japanese planes on a base of the 14th air force in China.

Immediately after the raid, the department said, nine P-40 Warhawks pursued the Japanese planes, destroying three bombers and ten Zeros and probably destroying five additional Zeros. All the American planes returned safely. Glenn is a native of Kansas City, Kas.

THE INDIAN ROPE TRICK CONVINCES OUR MR. SMALL

Bag Vanishes, So Now He Has a Bearer.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW DELHI, India, April 2 [By Mail].—For more than three months I have been a living scandal to a small part of the European-American community with which I come in contact here. The reason was I had no bearer.

A bearer, you should know, is a personal servant, and the name probably harks back to the days when such a man's job was to bear the belongings of any East India company employé, or possibly carry the man himself, in a litter or on the bearer's shoulders.

People who pried the horrible fact out of me lifted their eyebrows as if saying, "It takes all sorts of people to make a world." Well meaning friends have dropped hints about the bad taste of making one's self conspicuous by cheap eccentricity. The more earnest have exhorted me not to be ridiculous, and told me it simply wasn't done, and that I was causing the whole western world to lose face in Indian eyes.

Even Americans Stare.

These pleas often have been so piteous they have made me waver. For moral backing I have gone around among my own people, of whom there is a good crowd in Delhi. But I found they all had bearers and they regarded me with hardly less reprobation than the Britishers.

Don't give me too much credit for strength of character in fighting this four months' fight against the bearer system. You must understand how incredibly primitive the accommodations are in India. Any one traveling takes his bedding with him. Most hotels give no room service. Each customer is supposed to have his bearer.

I was able to get along four months without one because my needs are few and simple, and the big hotel in Delhi which I inhabit maintains roomboys. Mine could do the main service I asked, which is to act as intermediary profiteer between me and the "dhobi" or washerman.

At Last He Falls.

It was just this prospect of my helplessness when in other spots which made me strike the flag, and for the last 10 days I've been the puzzled, if not proud, possessor of one bearer.

Friendly pleaders against my recalcitrancy had gloated as they told me that I would meet my downfall; that I'd find myself unable to get even a glass of water; that I'd spend every moment and every atom of energy trying to find the most ordinary necessities; and above all that I would find out how I would score trying singlehanded to get into trains thru the mad mobs which now beset them, and that I'd lose all my possessions.

It was this last point which got home. I remembered how four months ago I had made a train journey from Karachi to Delhi with no bearer.

Indian Suitcase Trick.

I fought my way thru a seething, smelly mass of people to the train platform. There the coolie dumped my stuff and dashed off madly somewhere into the mob. I was left keeping a steady eye on the little mound of packages which were mine. On my pile of belongings lay a small suitcase which had accompanied me thru about 17 countries.

I never had my eyes completely off that pile of packages. Yet as I turned to ask a railway official if I would be permitted to enter the carriage, that little suitcase vanished.

What happened to it? The only explanation that occurred to me is that some one did the famous Indian rope trick with it.

If you have never heard of the Indian rope trick, it's the one in which a boy throws a rope into the air and then climbs up it and disappears [supposedly] into the clouds. Out here nobody claims ever to have seen it and it usually is dismissed as a myth. I am the only person who entertains a belief it may be possible.

After this convincing example of Indian skill at converting the visible into the invisible, I feel less positive about not having some one responsible for my belongings.

War Bond Sales Total Soars to 625 Millions

Additional subscriptions for government securities in the second war loan drive which ended Saturday were received at metropolitan Chicago headquarters yesterday and pushed the area's total purchases up to 625 million dollars. They had stood at 560 millions at the close of the week. At headquarters it was predicted the final figure will be about 630 millions. Orders mailed before midnight Saturday will be counted in the campaign total. The metropolitan quota was 370 million dollars.

U. S. CITIZENSHIP ROLLS OPENED TO AEF ALIENS

Young Greek Immigrant Flyer Sworn In.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 3.—Henry Bernard Hazard, director of the immigration and naturalization service of the United States department of justice, has arrived in Britain to naturalize aliens in the United States army. Today he introduced to American correspondents Greek born Lt. Spiros Nickolas Pissanos, 23 years old, who migrated to America in 1938 to learn to fly and spent most of the $13 he made each week as a bakery employé to pay for flying lessons.

Pissanos, who is "Steve" to his friends, was a licensed pilot when the war broke out. He joined the royal air force in America in 1941 and has flown in 19 operations over Holland and France as a fighter pilot. At his own request he was transferred to the United States army's 8th air force in Britain. The rule permitting only Americans to transfer from the British and other allied armies here to the American forces was waived on the ground that he had enlisted in the R. A. F. in America and had applied for citizenship papers in the United States.

His Proudest Moment.

Pissanos made quite a speech today describing the opportunities that are open to all in the United States and said when American citizenship was conferred upon him that "it is the proudest moment of my life."

He had arrived in New York from Athens with $8 in his pocket, took a bakery job and began flying lessons immediately despite the fact he knew no English. Today he speaks with hardly a trace of accent.

Hazard, a leading American authority on immigration laws, already has naturalized under the President's emergency powers 300 persons in the Panama Canal Zone, 15 in Canada, 267 drawn from various countries in Iceland, and even 17 on board ships on the high seas.

Speed Service for Wives.

He explained that wives of naturalized aliens are not affected under this scheme, except in that they will be given permission outside of quota limitations if they wish to enter the United States and that there their naturalization will be facilitated.

All naturalizations are voluntary; that is, aliens in the American forces are not compelled to become United States citizens. Refusal to apply for citizenship will not, however, prejudice their future intentions.

Must Not Oppose Government.

The only applications refused, other things being equal, are those from persons who declare themselves to be against organized government. Anarchists are barred, but it was explained that Communists believe in an organized society and are against the illegal destruction of property and that therefore being a Communist does not constitute a barrier to American citizenship.

Only those aliens who have been in America, however, are eligible for naturalization.

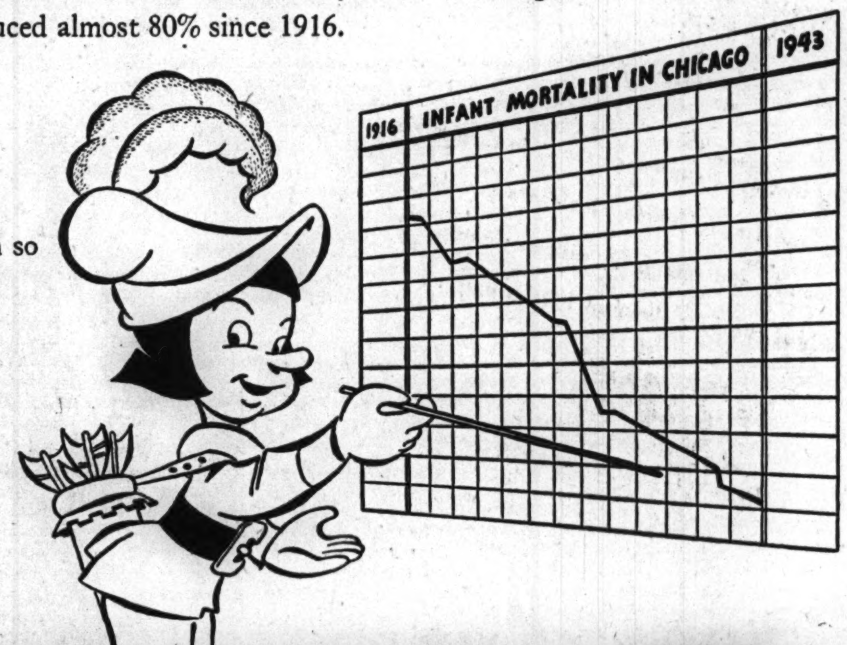
BABIES SURE LOVE BEING BORN HERE!

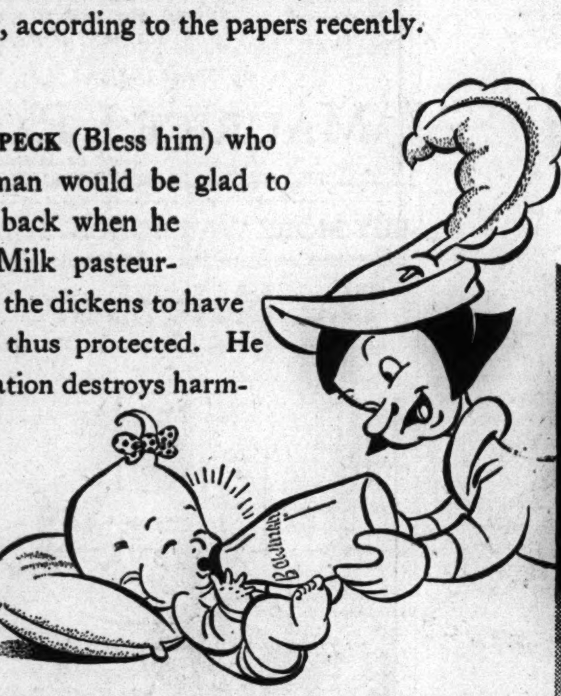
YOURS SINCERELY
Bud Bowman

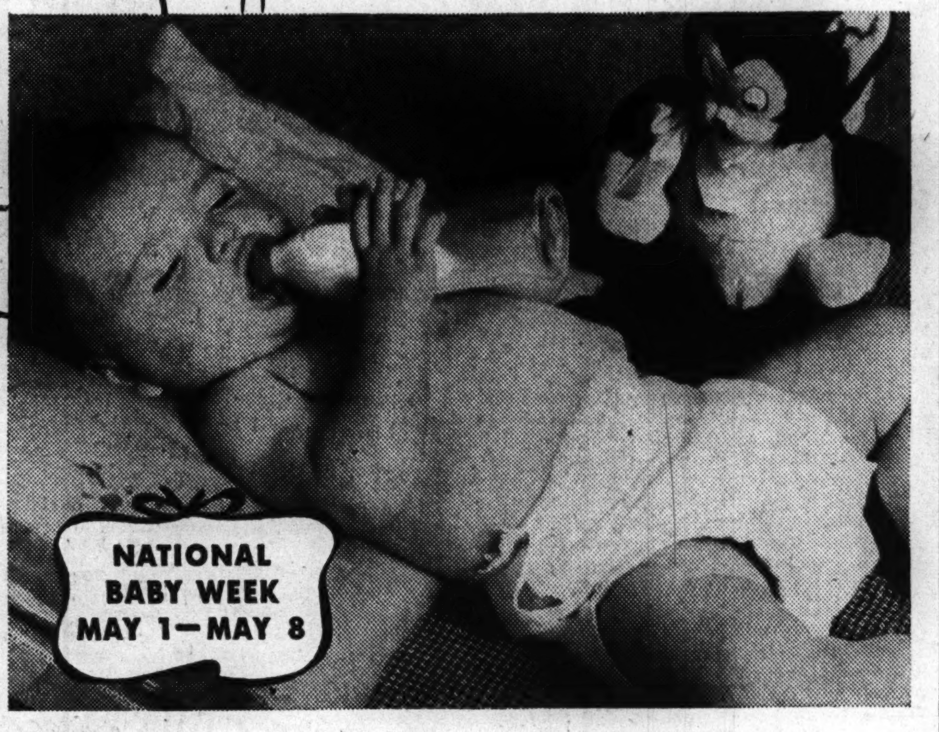
BABIES TAKE TO CHICAGOLAND like baby ducks to water. Right from the very first. Guess it's 'cause they get such swell care in our clean-white hospitals. Our doctors and nurses must rate tops with Old Man Stork, too... statistics show that infant mortality here in Chicago has been reduced almost 80% since 1916.



THAT'S SOME FINE RECORD for a city that's grown and grown so fast as ours. Means we've licked a lot of public health problems—including a pure milk supply. As a matter of fact, our milk supply's the purest in the whole country, according to the papers recently.

OUR FIRST DOCTOR PECK (Bless him) who helped found Bowman would be glad to know this. 'Way back when he had Bowman Milk pasteurized—he fought like the dickens to have all Chicago milk thus protected. He knew that pasteurization destroys harmful bacteria. He finally won, too. Today all grade A milk here is pasteurized.





BABIES LOVE BOWMAN'S. Just like you and me—babies go for that very special country-fresh flavor and richness. And my boss, the Dr. Peck who now heads Bowman, makes sure they always will. He has our laboratory 10 times test all Bowman Milk, so it's purer, richer, better-tasting than the official standard for fine milk.

FIND OWI TOPS OTHER AGENCIES IN DEFERMENTS

But Davis Denies Unit Is Slackers' Haven.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information, today vigorously denied that the OWI is a haven for draft dodgers.

He told a house military affairs subcommittee that such insinuations, as he termed the charges which have been made frequently in and out of congress, are "untrue and unjust to the many loyal men who work tirelessly and faithfully for OWI."

At the same time, the subcommittee, headed by Rep. John M. Costello [D., Cal.], released a detailed analysis of the draft status of OWI employés showing that 163 occupational deferments have been granted out of a total of 1,047 male employés between the ages of 18 and 38. This, the report noted, is 15.06 per cent, the highest reported by a federal agency to date.

National Average Under 3%.

The national average is slightly less than 3 per cent, the committee reported, while the deferments allowed civilian employés of the war department was only 1.8 per cent as of November, 1942.

In addition to the 163 occupational deferments, the report continued, the OWI has requested permits for 106 more employés to leave the country for foreign propaganda assignments. Adding these together would boost the total deferments to 25.6 per cent, said the committee.

Permits to leave the country, it was explained, are tantamount to occupational deferments, since the President's committee on deferment of federal employés has recommended that men sent overseas for civilian work should not be returned for active military service and that draft boards adopt a liberal policy in approving qualified applicants for overseas assignments.

Run Danger at Front.

In his testimony, Davis declared that men serving in battle areas in civilian capacities are subject to all the dangers of the front lines.

"When American troops landed in North Africa, OWI propaganda teams landed with them," he said. "Now, with the projected military operations based on both England and North Africa, we are going to have to send more and more people into combat areas. Our radio technicians will be in particular danger because radio installations are a primary target. I think we may expect serious casualties among OWI personnel."

Davis emphasized that the OWI hands out foreign assignments only when the men are requested by the army and that assignments to battle areas must be approved by the war department. Then he declared, with just a trace of belligerency in his voice, that whenever the agency receives such requests it is going to find the men "even if it involves deferments." For example, he went on, if radio engineers are needed, the OWI is going to have to ask for the deferments. . . .

Plans No Apologies.

". . . And we are not going to apologize for doing so," Davis said.

The OWI chieftain said it "annoys" some of his employés to be criticized as draft dodgers and he made a point of the fact that newspapers and radio, from whom most of them are drawn, are on the list of essential occupations ahead of the government service. He urged the Costello committee to dispel "the widespread misunderstanding of deferments in government service."

Davis, who was accompanied to the hearing by Robert E. Sherwood, Broadway playwright and head of the OWI overseas branch, was questioned closely on a number of deferment cases including a 23 year old language specialist, a 22 year old typewriter mechanic, a "multilingual monitor," and a youthful employé holding the title of "supervisor of the ditto department," 19 years old, and unmarried.

Chairman Costello also showed some curiosity over an OWI language editor, 24, unmarried, who was listed as a former shop worker. The OWI head replied that this individual is a college educated Filipino who translates and announces programs beamed to his native land. His loss, said Davis, would be a serious blow to the programs in Tagalog, native language of Luzon.

Hunt Owner of Suitcase and Sawed-Off Shotgun

Police last night were attempting to trace the owner of a suitcase which was left in a parked taxi Sunday night at Illinois and Clark streets. The valise contained a sawed-off shotgun wrapped in a quantity of soiled clothing.

8 YANK AIRMEN SAVED IN PACIFIC BY DEAD GUNNER

Flyers Ride Victim's Raft to Safety.

WITH THE U. S. AIR FORCE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, April 19 [Delayed] (AP).—Capt. L. F. Krebs of Fonda, Ia., pilot of a big B-24 [Liberator], looked anxiously out the plane's window for a place to land.

Henderson field on Guadalcanal Island was closed in tight by rain and fog and darkness, and Co-Pilot Jack Nowell of Columbia, Mo., called out that there was practically no gasoline left.

Krebs had but one choice—set her down and hope they were over water. He ordered the radio antenna reeled out 200 feet as a feeler for land or water or jagged mountains that form the southern Solomons. Then he started down thru fog and rain.

Each Says Silent Prayer.

Every man in the nine-man crew said a silent prayer and waited for death or a fighting chance in the water, if they were lucky. They had donned life preservers and huddled together in the radio compartment amidship, ready to release life rafts and then crawl thru the top hatch when the plane hit the water.

The bomber descended a 1,000 feet a minute. Two engines quit. Out of gas. Rain and clouds obliterated everything, even the darkness of night.

Suddenly there was a blinding flash below. This is it, thought every man. The antenna had hit something and the bomber had but 200 feet to descend. Was it land or water?

Lets Ship Down Slowly.

Krebs let her down ever so slowly, repeating to himself each foot that he would never make it. Sergt. A. S. Hatfield of Salt Lake City, reached for the handle to release the big life raft. The tail gunner moved to release the small raft.

Then she hit with a big splash. The bomber broke into three pieces. The tail sank with a blurp. With the tail went the tail gunner and the raft for which he was reaching when last seen.

Hatfield was knocked out by the shock. The nose of the plane flipped downward and Krebs and Nowell were trapped inside the cabin while the water rushed in. They managed to crawl outside the windows and swim to the surface. All of the bomber then sank from sight. It was black as pitch and an hour before dawn. Krebs called to the swimming men. All were there but the tail gunner. He didn't get out.

None of the life rafts had been released. It was sink or swim and nobody knew where or how far.

Krebs rounded them up: Lt. James Reed of Nashville, Tenn.; Lt. J. D. Newman of Lake Charles, La.; Sergt. Gustafson, Sergt. M. E. Hatfield, Sergt. Sheehan, Sergt. Hatfield, and Lt. Nowell.

One enlisted man said he saw the tail gunner almost reach the raft's release when the crash came.

Suddenly the water ripped and up shot a small raft from the deep. Krebs saw it first and yelled. Then they all yelled. It was the raft the tail gunner had been trying to release when he died.

Land—20 Miles Away.

The men piled into it and sighted land 20 miles away. They fought a strong current for two days and nights and reached safety on an island, where they were rescued later.

Back in the harness now, each of the fortunate eight will tell you that it wasn't fate that released that raft below water but the dead hand of the tail gunner, whose name cannot be released because the war department won't permit the publishing of the names of the war dead, except as released in Washington.

BIRTHDAY TRIBUTES PAID TO POLAND BY F. D. R. AND CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., May 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt, in a message on the occasion of Poland's constitution day, told President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz that the American people deeply admire the continued courageous struggle waged by the Poles against the common enemy.

"I desire on this day, the national anniversary of Poland," the President said, "to send to you and the people of Poland my sincere and heartfelt greetings."

It was on May 3, 1791, that Poland after a bloodless revolution adopted a democratic constitution.

In the house Majority Floor Leader John W. McCormack told his colleagues that it was fitting the house should pay its respects to the Polish people.

Minority Floor Leader Joseph W. Martin asserted Poland and the United States are tied together by similarity of ideals and that Poland continues to fight "because of the unconquerability of her soul."

HANDPICKED NAZI BOARD AT 'GRAVE' OF SLAIN POLES

Report Victims Killed Before War with Reds.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A hand picked German commission reputed to have been drawn from 12 countries — all but one conquered or dominated by the axis—was reported by the Berlin radio yesterday to have charged that Polish officers, who the Nazis alleged were killed by the Russians and buried near Smolensk, were shot in March and April of 1940, more than a year before Germany invaded Russia.

"Seven of the mass graves have been opened and from them 982 corpses were recovered and examined," the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said. "An inquest was held on part of the bodies, 70 per cent of which were identified. The cause of death was due to shooting in the nape of the neck."

Nazis Exploit Rupture.

The German propaganda agencies continued to exploit the rupture of relations with the Polish government in exile by Russia. Moscow has charged that the Germans killed the Polish officers.

Poland was partitioned by Germany and Russia in 1939.

The German selected commission was announced after the International Red Cross refused German and Polish requests to investigate the alleged mass murders. The Red Cross took the position that all interested parties must make the request, and none was received from Russia.

The Berlin radio said the commission was composed of "leading representatives of the judiciary, medical, and criminal boards from European universities, and other famous medical men."

One Neutral on Commission.

Only one of the 12 countries from which the Germans asserted the board was drawn was neutral. That country was Switzerland, but other sources said the Swiss on the commission was a resident of Germany.

The other countries are under German domination or outright occupation: Belgium, Denmark, Bulgaria, Finland, Italy, Croatia, the Netherlands, the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, Rumania, Slovakia, and Hungary. German accounts last week said Spain and Portugal also would be represented on the commission, but there was no mention of their participation today.

Their finding was read to newspaper reporters at the German foreign office. The Germans have charged that 10,000 Polish officers were shot to death by the Russians and buried near Smolensk. That city, more than 200 miles southwest of Moscow, has been in German hands for more than a year and a half. The Germans never have explained why the graves were discovered so recently.

Tomorrow and every Wednesday at 2:45 p. m. during May there will be a free class in Parliamentary Law, conducted by Mrs. Gertrude Lieber, in Mandel Brothers' Tea Room—Ninth Floor—Wabash.

2D ARMY READY FOR NEW PHASE OF MANEUVERS

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Field Headquarters 2d Army, Lebanon, Tenn., May 3 [Special].—Young men of the 2d army, learning their final training lessons in the maneuvers here, turned to with a will today on preparations for the second problem since the current phase opened on April 26.

Morale in the ranks is soaring over news that observers, many of whom have witnessed real action, agreed that 2d army personnel acquitted itself surprisingly well in last week's problem. That is language these soldiers like to hear, for it tells them they will be formidable scrapping outfits under competent leadership when the big time comes.

The present exercise is a direct application of military knowledge gained on our fighting fronts. It will afford excellent opportunity to measure the resourcefulness of untried unit commanders against strategy proved effective under fire.

CUT REQUIRES 56 STITCHES.

Surgeons at County hospital took 56 stitches last night to suture a jagged cut on the scalp and neck of Stanley Castle, 39 years old, 2159 Monroe street, a painter, who told police a man struck him with a beer stein in a tavern at 1849 Madison street.

REDS KILL 900 MORE NAZIS IN KUBAN BATTLE

Fighting Flares in Many Sectors of Front.

LONDON, May 4 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Russian troops have killed 900 more Germans in fighting in the Kuban sector of the Caucasus, the Russians announced early today, bringing the toll of enemy dead within the last week in that area to nearly 8,000.

Actions flared all along the vast front from the Caucasus north to Leningrad, with a total of 1,280 Nazi troops killed on Monday in land attacks and by artillery actions, said the midnight communique as recorded here by the soviet radio monitor.

Dog fights swirled in the air over the Caucasian battle fields, the Moscow radio reported, with 54 German planes shot down in combats "west of Krasnodar" Sunday and Monday against a loss of 21 Russian planes.

Seek to Widen Hold.

These aerial battles apparently accompanied the German assaults to broaden their bridgehead around Novorossisk, attacks which the Russians reported yesterday had been beaten back after six days of fighting.

In the Sevsk sector, northwest of Kursk, Russian scouts in a surprise raid swarmed into German trenches, killing the defenders and capturing arms before returning to their positions.

On the western front near Smolensk Russian artillery fire wiped out more than a company of German soldiers, destroyed eight machine guns and silenced four artillery batteries, the communique reported.

On the Leningrad front snipers "exterminated more than 100 Hitlerites," while artillery and mortar fire "destroyed eight blockhouses and seven dugouts, silenced two artillery batteries, and blew up an ammunition dump."

CLAIM ATTACKS REPULSED.

A German high command communique, broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, said the Russians launched several attacks on the Kuban bridgehead, all of which were reported repulsed. The communique said several planes, the nationality of which was not listed, were over East Prussia Sunday night and that one of them was shot down. The Germans also claimed that their forces had destroyed 1,082 Russian planes during April, 902 of them in aerial combat.

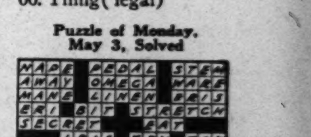
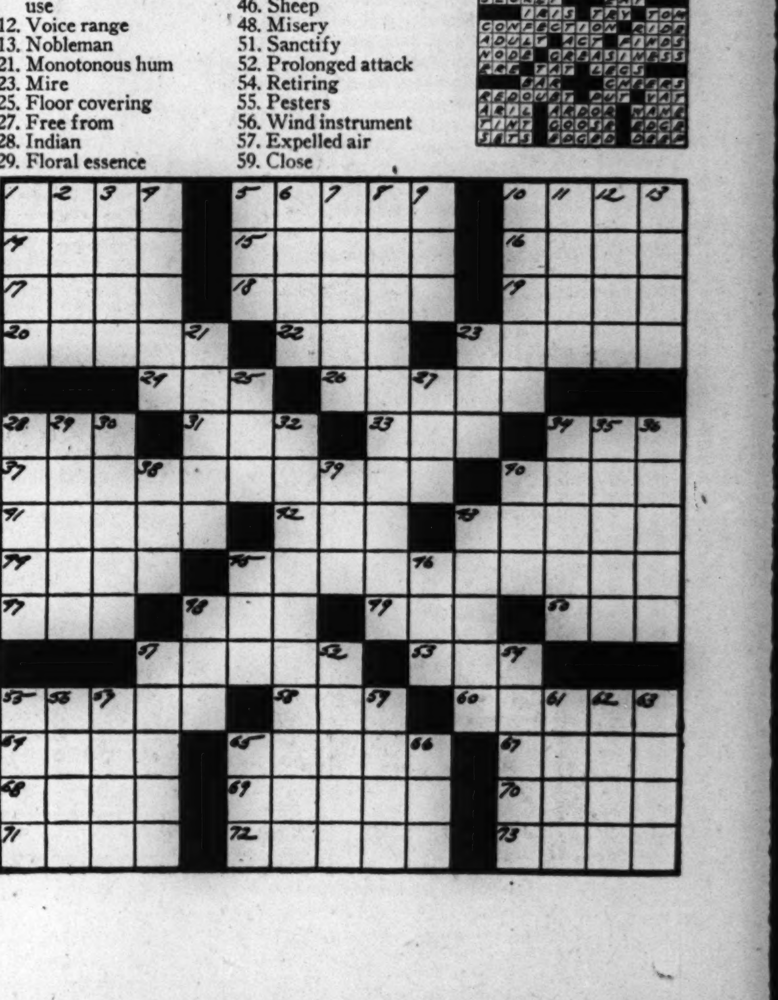
Puzzle of Monday, May 3, Solved





VARIED CAREER OF EULA SMITH TOLD BY FAMILY

Served as Labor Picket, Nursery Founder.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 3 [Special]. —A glamorous and colorful background for Mrs. Eula Smith, mystery woman of the big red house on R street, was revealed today by inquiries here and in Dothan, Ala.

Her husband, Gus, a World war veteran, and their daughter, Caroline, 9 years old, were located in a neat residence on fashionable Old Hickory road where they live with Eula's mother and with Eula herself on the now infrequent occasions when she runs down from Washington for a visit.

"She's leading her own life, and anything she has to say about it she can say for herself," said Gus when asked about the career of his suddenly famous wife. Gus suffered injuries in the war which prevented him from working during his married life until a short time ago when he obtained a position with the bureau of internal revenue's Jacksonville office.

Launched Nursery Plan.

Eula's career in Jacksonville prior to 1941, when she transferred her activities to Washington, was well remembered, however, by many Jacksonville residents and was found to have been well documented in the files of local newspapers. As director of personnel for the King Edward Cigar company here she devised an industrial nursery plan which gained nation-wide acclaim in social service circles.

This nursery plan brought Eula to the attention of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was invited to attend the dedication of the nursery in 1939 and whose letter of regret was referred to in accounts of the ceremony.

When labor troubles flared in the cigar factory in 1940, Eula was discharged by the company, it was recalled, to reappear as a leader of the strikers, who elected her to the presidency of their union. She was said to have cut a striking figure in the picket line, where her slender and modishly dressed figure was an outstanding feature.

Married Mayor of Dothan.

The beginnings of Eula's career were found in Dothan, however, where as an attractive girl of 19 she startled the inhabitants by marrying the city's wealthy and colorful mayor, Joe [Buck] Baker, then 51 years old.

A sister of the late mayor recalled tonight that Buck, as the whole community knew him, had just been reelected to his fourth term when the marriage took place. Eula was the daughter of a vegetable peddler while Buck was the big man of the town, builder and owner of its largest hotel and with varied real estate and banking interests in addition to his political prominence.

To celebrate his marriage, the sister recalled, Buck gave a set of chimes to the Foster Street Methodist church, but these were installed a year later just in time to be played for the first time at his funeral. A widow at 20 and possessed of a sizable fortune, Dotham residents recalled that Eula expressed a longing for education and enrolled at exclusive Brenau college at Gainesville, Ga., where she remained "about a year."

Made Home for Mother.

Eula went to Savanah, Ga., after leaving school, and subsequently went to Jacksonville where she established a home for her mother, her sister-in-law said. She recalled that there were two brothers in the family, Olen, now also living in Jacksonville, and Clarence, a printer, who made his home in Dothan until recently.

Located in his Jacksonville home, Olen, who holds an administrative position with the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, said that his sister has largely supported her husband, daughter, and mother thru the years. He was asked how Eula described the work she has been doing in Washington and replied she referred to it as "lobbying" and writing speeches "for senators." She never mentioned the names of any senators, he said.

Backed Cone Campaign.

Members of the family in Jacksonville said that Eula displayed an interest in politics as early as 1936 when she was an enthusiastic worker in the successful gubernatorial campaign of Fred P. Cone. She became active in real estate dealings during the Florida land boom days of the early '20s and was on friendly terms with the state's political and business leaders, they said.

One of the family members recalled that when Eula was attending school in Dothan one of her teachers for a brief period was a young man about her own age named Claude Pepper, now one of Florida's United States senators. [Sen. Pepper said in Washington today that altho he taught school for a year in Dothan he does not remember Mrs. Smith as one of his pupils, but does recall her activities in connection with the nursery school in Jacksonville.]

The family was unanimous in describing Eula and her husband as a devoted couple.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—DELIBERATE MISPRINT

KNOX EXPLAINS HIS DINING AT HOUSE ON R ST.

Denies Discussion of War Contracts.

New Hampshire and could not be reached for comment.

Secretary Knox in a formal memorandum to the press said that he and Mrs. Knox had attended a dinner in the big red house on March 25.

Knox's memorandum to the press follows:

"My only contact with Mr. John Monroe was relative to invitations to dinner with Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, who is an old friend of mine, at Mr. Monroe's house. The first two or three times I was invited I was compelled to decline, but finally I received an invitation reading as follows:

"'Could you and Mrs. Knox have dinner with Mrs. Monroe and myself and Sen. Bridges next Thursday evening, March 25, 1943, at 7 [informal]? Mr. and Mrs. John Monroe.'

Very Glad to Accept.

"I had no acquaintance whatever with Mr. Monroe and had never seen him, but as I had been invited several times to dine with Sen. Bridges at Mr. and Mrs. Monroe's home I sent the following note:

"'I acknowledge with pleasure your letter of March 18 in which you invite Mrs. Knox and myself to dine with Mrs. Monroe and you on Thursday evening at 7. We are very glad to accept.'

"Mrs. Knox and I attended the dinner, which was not attended by Sen. Bridges, whom [sic] Mr. Monroe told me, was called out of town. There was no talk at dinner of matters relating even remotely to war contracts; in fact, my recollection is that all the discussion related to the war and its problems.

Hasn't Seen Him Since.

"The only guests as far as I recall were members of congress and a British officer. The party broke up shortly after dinner was over and Mrs. Knox and I returned home about 10:30. I have had no contacts of any sort with Mr. Monroe since then."

Sen. Austin reported that he attended a party welcoming Sen. Bridges back from a hospital in the big red house. It was an afternoon party, Sen. Austin said, the only one he ever attended there.

Met Otto There.

Gen. Campbell said he was taken to the big red house by a colonel who had known Monroe when Monroe was a cadet at West Point. In the mansion, Gen. Campbell said, he met Otto Hapsburg, pretender to the throne of Austria.

There were cocktails, Gen. Campbell said, but there was little drinking after dinner. He recalled that a man Monroe called "Uncle Sam" was among the guests.

Rebuked by Nelson.

Nelson said he had called Monroe into the WPB office and rebuked him for trying to talk his way into the Nelson private office.

Jeffers said Monroe had come to see him at the Mayflower hotel and offered him dinner invitations which Jeffers refused. "I didn't know who the hell he was," Jeffers volunteered, "and make it a rule not to go to cocktail parties and dinners with people I do not know, whoever the hell they are."

Jeffers said Monroe was trying to promote "an important man in the United States senate" for President. But the rubber chief declined to name the senator.

Monroe, mystery man of the investigation who is also known as Monroe Kaplan, will be given another chance to tell his story when the full military affairs committee of the house meets Wednesday to consider the earlier refusal of the two witnesses to testify.

WLB GRANTS PAY BOOSTS TO 1,100 IN DRESS PLANTS

Limited wage increases under the little steel formula were granted yesterday by the regional war labor board to 1,100 employés in 50 shops operated by members of the Chicago Association of Dress Manufacturers.

The increases were $1.50 a week to eight classifications of weekly paid workers; $1.75 a week to sample makers, and $2.50 a week to cutters.

Robert K. Burns, regional WLB chairman, said the order applies mainly to employés making $20 a week or less, and follows the President's "hold the line order." Further, it provides that "no further maladjustment increases for weekly workers shall be allowable to any of the employés affected."

1942 PULITZER PRIZE AWARDS ARE ANNOUNCED

Musical Composition Given Listing.

New York, May 3 [Special].—Four men and a woman won awards for 1942 achievements in literature and an award for a musical composition was given for the first time in the annual list of Pulitzer prizes announced today by trustees of Columbia university. Six men in journalism received awards.

The prizes, which have been given each year since 1917 under the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the old New York World, consist of $500 each. Recipients are selected by the university trustees on the recommendation of the advisory board of the graduate school of journalism.

Robert Frost, New England poet, won his fourth Pulitzer poetry prize for "A Witness Tree," while Esther Forbes received an award in the prose literature field for her "Paul Revere and the World He Lived In."

Morrison Biography Named.

The novel "Dragon's Teeth" won a prize for Upton Sinclair for a novel by an American author dealing with American life. "Admiral of the Ocean Sea," a biography of Columbus by Samuel Eliot Morrison received the prize for an American biography teaching patriotic and unselfish service to the people.

Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth," currently popular on Broadway, won the award for "the original American play performed in New York which shall represent in marked fashion the educational value and power of the stage."

The award in music was given to William Schumann for his "Secular Cantata No. 2, A Free Song," which was performed by the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Times Writer Listed.

Hanson Baldwin of the New York Times was given the prize for "distinguished correspondence" for his dispatches dealing with a tour of the Southwest Pacific. Jay N. [Ding] Darling, cartoonist of the New York Herald Tribune, won a prize for a cartoon depicting governmental red tape.

The Omaha World Herald's statewide campaign for collection of scrap metal won it a gold medal for "the most distinterested and meritorious public service" among newspapers.

ATTACK GERMAN TARGETS BY DAY; LOSE 13 PLANES

LONDON, May 3 (AP).—The royal air force made two extensive sweeps over northern France and Holland today at a cost of 11 bombers and 2 fighters missing, the heaviest loss in recent daylight raids which have evidenced an apparent tightening of Nazi defenses.

Among the targets attacked was the power station at Ijmuiden, Holland, on which bombs were seen to burst, an air ministry communique said tonight. It was the second raid in two days on this coastal city. The attack force encountered enemy fighters in considerable numbers.

British fighters escorting Boston and Ventura bombers on the forays accounted for three enemy fighter planes in combats over Holland and two more over northern France. Two of the destroyed Nazi aircraft were credited to Squadron Leader F. H. Boulton of Coleman, Alberta, and Flight Lt. R. A. Bucham of Vancouver, B. C.

RESTAURANT OWNER DIES.

ICC TURNS DOWN TRACTION UNITY, BACKS 8c FARE

Plan Believed Killed by Commission Ruling.

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday denied the petition for the 179 million dollar unification of the elevated and surface lines. It sharply condemned the plan as not even claiming the proposed company could raise funds for capital improvements except thru short term notes.

The commission's denial of the scheme was so blunt that it was generally agreed the consolidation plan has been killed.

Approve Fare Increase.

In another order issued simultaneously, the commission put the 8 cent surface lines fare, in effect temporarily since April 20, 1942, on a permanent basis.

There were, however, several important qualifications. Among them were:

1. A provision that all the lines' earnings over interest on their first mortgage bonds should be set aside in a fund to be expended only with consent of the commission.

2. Requirements that free rides be granted to women in military service at certain hours and that tickets be sold for school children over 12 at a rate of 4 cents a ride.

It was assumed that the special fund was to be used only for improvements and new equipment, and that the whole amount so piled up would be spent as soon as the war is over.

An Outrage, Says Kelly.

Mayor Kelly, one of the principal advocates of unification, which was approved by a council ordinance ratified by referendum, called the commission action "an outrage."

"Our proposals were clean, open and above board," the mayor asserted. "This small commission has thrown a monkey wrench into the works, thrown the problem up for grabs.

"There is in the report of the ICC a mention of the possibility of municipal ownership of the traction system. I do not at this time favor municipal ownership, but will not rule it out completely until I have studied it more fully. I am considering what to do and there seems to be no sense in going thru the same old procedure again."

"Amazing" to Ald. Quinn.

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the council committee on local transportation, called the ICC action "amazing." He said the surface lines now were having the highest earnings in their history "while giving the people of Chicago the worst possible service."

The order denying the traction unification scheme said the city proposed to give the merged company virtually a permanent monopoly of local transportation. It said this setup could be approved by the commission only if the proposed company produced conclusive evidence that it could obtain the facilities, equipment, and financing needed to operate and improve the transportation system.

The point was made that such a corporation could be solvent and desirable only if it could be financed from sources usually available to public utilities. The order also related that the petitioner company "tendered a claim" that it could obtain 102 millions for an eight year modernization program from present funds in the surface lines treasury, plus immediate future earnings.

Principal Inducement.

This was described as the principal inducement held out to Chicago car riders. Then the order continued:

"The ordinance as passed imposed no such requirement [for the spending of the 102 millions] and in fact left the matter as no more than an exhibit . . . the company being obligated to do no more than what it and the local transit commission would decide was necessary, the said change in the ordinance being made a very few hours before the ordinance was passed by the city council and at the instigation of the bankers who it is represented would not agree to consummation of the plans unless this change was made."

[The local transit commission of three men would, under the plan, be appointed by the mayor of Chicago and would regulate the new system as the ICC does now. The fact that there was no legal requirement for the spending of the improvement funds was brought out forcibly by attorneys for the proposed consolidation in arguments before the commission.]

No Expansion of Inquiry.

One of the puzzles of the proceedings was whether the ICC intended to leave a gateway open for the revision of the plan for unity. This was disposed of near the end of the order when it was stated that is was not the function of the commission to enlarge the scope of the inquiry enough to formulate an informed and constructive scheme.

The order in regard to the 8 cent fare stated that the value of the surface lines for rate making purposes was at least 128 millions and that its estimated earnings of 6 millions were not exorbitant. It was also asserted that under the present wage and expense conditions a return to a 7 cent fare would mean the lines would have an actual operating loss.

DOUGLAS RUED.

Youth took over the city hall yesterday when 10 schoolboys assumed the mayoral and other offices for the day. It was a grand experience and several said maybe when they grew up they'd try to win the real jobs.

Douglas Rued, 18 years old, of Schurz High school, was mayor. Others and the offices they assumed were: William O'Brien Jr., 16, of Leo High, corporation counsel; Charles Thompson, 16, of Tilden High, commissioner of public works; Frank Malles, 15, of Lane High, fire commissioner; Colin Slater, 13, of Waters grammar, police commissioner; Andrew D. Widmont, 17, of Tilden High, health commissioner; Jack Cullen, 17, of Schurz High, fire prevention chief; Robert Scott, 16, of Crane High, chief justice, and William J. Shuford Jr., 13, Sexton grammar, and Howard B. Seidmon, 16, of Austin High, judges.

The 10 were chosen from competitive tests by the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce. They were guests at a luncheon and theater party during the day.

JANITOR DIES OF INJURIES IN FALL FROM CAR

Lawrence Grover, 36 years old, 1435 West 78th street, a janitor, died in Little Company of Mary hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Friday night when he fell to the pavement from an automobile in which he was riding at Damen avenue and 80th place. His wife, Bernice, was driving.

Mrs. Mabel Dolby Huber, 37 years old, 321 Orchard street, Elgin, died in St. Joseph's hospital, Elgin, of injuries suffered Sunday in an auto collision at the intersection of state routes 72 and 63 in East Dundee. Her husband and infant son were seriously injured.

Mrs. Anna Johanne Nelson, 61, 2235 North Marmora avenue, died in St. Mary's hospital of injuries suffered March 29 when the automobile in which she was riding, driven by her husband, L. Peter Nelson, collided with a truck at Adams and Paulina streets.

Five second offenders were among 42 motorists fined for speeding by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Traffic court yesterday. Two of the five, unable to pay fines of $25 and $50, were ordered to the Bridewell to work them out at $2 a day. Names of all the speeders were certified for possible revocation of gasoline rations by the office of price administration.

PATTERSON AND JEFFERS AGREE TO END DISPUTE

Will Work Together to Solve Priorities.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—A war between Rubber Director William M. Jeffers and Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson was ended today. The undersecretary went before the Truman committee and complimented the character and patriotism of Jeffers, whose zeal in behalf of rubber he had previously condemned as impeding aviation gasoline production. Jeffers, who was also granted the privilege of the last word in the investigation, will testify tomorrow.

Undersecretary Patterson.

Patterson disclosed that he and Jeffers will attempt to settle the priorities question by a personal inspection designed to "break bottlenecks where we find them" in rubber and gasoline plants. Patterson said that "Jeff and I" had discussed the problem and decided to make "a field trip together to view the situation in a practical way."

Calls Situation Serious.

Patterson retracted none of his emphasis on the seriousness of a shortage in airplane fuel. But he named Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the war production board, rather than Jeffers, as the responsible official. He contradicted last week's testimony by Nelson and by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who is also petroleum administrator.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, New York investment banker whom Nelson removed from a WPB vice chairmanship early this year, was reported to be the intermediary in behalf of the undersecretary in bringing Patterson and Jeffers face to face in a hotel room on Saturday afternoon. In his testimony Patterson identified the intermediary solely with the phrase, "a mutual friend, not an official."

Patterson, after asserting that training planes in this country are being grounded for lack of high octane fuel, testified that Nelson "was mistaken" in blaming a faulty distribution rather than a shortage. The undersecretary said the army has been unable to build up any reserves in this country and that the distribution of operational supplies overseas was managed by a combined chiefs of staff.

Puts Responsibility on Nelson.

Patterson declared that Nelson had created a false impression by testifying that production of high octane gasoline had exceeded consumption in February and March. He said that consumption was no measure of requirements since requirements included stocking of overseas bases and their maintenance in the face of enemy action.

The undersecretary quoted Ickes, who is in charge of a refinery construction program, for blaming at least a part of delays encountered on the high priorities obtained by Jeffers for scarce apparatus required for both synthetic rubber plants and gasoline refineries. He named Nelson as responsible for a distribution of the scarce materials as between rival programs.

"The army is the main customer for both the rubber and the high octane production," said Patterson. "It looks now like we are going to get enough rubber but that we are not going to get enough aviation fuel."

Plane Loss Half Expectations.

Patterson also said that the percentage of American planes lost in combat was "considerably less than half" of what the war department had expected. This was revealed as he departed from a prepared statement to inform the committee that the shortage of gasoline was made even more acute by this "very encouraging factor."

"Our gasoline requirements in the past," he said, "have taken into account the assumption that a certain percentage of planes will be lost in combat each month.

"From combat experience we are today finding that the percentage of planes actually lost in combat has been much lower than the anticipated percentage. In other words our success in air combat has been much greater than we expected, with smaller losses of planes.

"And I might add that the percentage is considerably less than half of what we expected."

"Did Mr. Nelson have all of the facts you have given us when he testified that, were he able to do it over, he would again give rubber its overriding priorities?" asked Sen. Homer Ferguson [R., Mich.].

"Yes, he did," Patterson replied.

Estimate Is Boosted.

"Was Mr. Ickes correct," asked Sen. Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], chairman of the committee, "in telling us that production of aviation gas today equals the army's 1942 statement of 1943 requirements."

"Maybe Mr. Ickes didn't see my memo to WPB last fall boosting our estimate of requirements," the undersecretary said.

"Have you seen any lack of sympathetic coöperation in getting you the gas needed to fight the war?" asked Sen. Ralph O. Brewster [R., Me.].

"I haven't seen evidence of exertion strong enough to get it for us," Patterson retorted.

"Some one suggested last week that we ought to lock you and Jeffers in a room and bump your heads together; has something like that happened?" Sen. Ferguson asked.

"Something like that, but something much more productive," Patterson grinned and then added seriously. "Jeff and I both have one aim, to win this war. We're going to work together."

Mayor Returns

Mayor and Mrs. Kelly in the Dearborn station yesterday on their return from Arizona.

Mayor Kelly, tanned and in good spirits, returned to Chicago yesterday from a three week vacation at Phoenix, Ariz. He took time out for a haircut and then was back at his desk in the city hall. "I didn't do a thing for three weeks but lie in the sun," he said.

The mayor said there will be no Chicago Police and Fire Thrill show this year, explaining "We can't spare the men because of war conditions." The annual exhibition, omitted last year because of the war, has been sponsored by THE TRIBUNE in coöperation with the two departments.

Kelly announced that at the request of James M. Landis, national director of civilian defense, he was resuming his duties as coördinator of civilian defense for the Chicago metropolitan area. He had taken a leave of absence during the mayoral campaign. Ralph H. Burke, who has been acting coördinator, will again be deputy coördinator.

The mayor brushed aside queries as to his views regarding redistricting of the city's 50 wards, a move which should have been taken by the last city council.

WAR WILL BREED HORDE OF HATES, BROOKS ASSERTS

We Need Fighters, Not Planners, He Says.

More hatreds, animosities, cripples, and problems of every kind will come out of this war than were ever conceived in the mind of man, Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], last night told delegates to the 32d annual convention of the American Drug Manufacturers' association in the Palmer House.

"We hear much about postwar planning," he said, "but no one can begin to understand who will sit at the conference table. Our job is to win this war and save our civilization.

He'll Take the Fighters.

"I'll take a few of the sort of men Capt. Joe Foss and Barney Ross are and give you a whole carload of postwar planners."

Sen. Brooks predicted that just as we have become the hope of liberty loving people in this war we will be the hope of civilization for a century to come "provided we do not slip back and lose the fundamental principles of individual enterprise."

"The only way we can win this war is by superior guns, better ships, and better planning," he said. "This war job is bigger than anything in all our lifetimes."

Health of Fighters.

Sen. Brooks paid tribute to the drug manufacturers. "Seldom in so small a room," he said, "have I seen so few people so responsible for the health of our fighting people."

He said that Illinois' greatest contribution to freedom "was when it sent Abe Lincoln down to Washington to preserve and protect the freedom of man.

"Freedom is a matter we must fight for and even lay down our lives for."

WAUKEGAN MAN BADLY WOUNDED IN AFRICAN FIGHT

Alexander M. Lindsay.

Pvt. Alexander M. Lindsay, 23 years old, 422 South Orchard street, Waukegan, was seriously wounded in action in North Africa on April 9, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lindsay, were informed yesterday by the war department. Six weeks ago Lindsay wrote telling them not to expect mail for some time as he "would be kept busy" in the next few weeks. He is serving with an infantry company. Pvt. Lindsay was graduated from Waukegan Township High school in 1939 and enlisted in the army in November, 1941.

Former Parole Agent Gets 1-5 Years on Bribe Charge

Dudley Patillo, 36 years old, Negro, of 5324 Michigan avenue, former parole agent, was denied a new trial and sentenced to one to five years in prison yesterday by Judge Donald S. McKinlay in Criminal court on a charge of accepting a $400 bribe. Patillo was found guilty by a jury on April 14. He was accused of soliciting bribes from a Negro parolee, James E. Fountain, 45, of 4210 South Parkway, who had served 10 years in prison on an armed robbery charge.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is paying $3,500.00 a week for completing unfinished "Beat-the-Axis" slogans. Ten prizes of $50.00 each are being paid every day except Saturday when twenty prizes of $50.00 each are being paid. Look at the unfinished slogan printed above. Surely you can find words to finish it just as you'd like to finish Hitler—try it—you may win a $50.00 bill.

★ THE RULES ★

1. Each weekday until further notice the Chicago Tribune will publish an unfinished "Beat-the-Axis" slogan. You are invited to complete it in your own words. Total must be ten words or less, including printed word or words if given. All words must start with the same letter. Hyphenated words will be counted as one word.

2. The Tribune will pay ten cash awards of $50.00 each weekday, excepting Saturdays when twenty cash awards of $50.00 each will be paid. Awards will be paid to the persons whose entries are published in the Tribune. Such selected entries will be published exactly one week following the publication of the unfinished slogan and the prizes will be paid at once.

3. This offer is open free to every man, woman, boy and girl, regardless of residence, excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families. No subscriptions to solicit—nothing else to do but complete the slogan. Entries should be addressed "Slogans," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All become the property of the Tribune and none will be returned. Entries must be in by noon the third day after publication of the unfinished slogan.

4. You may submit your entry on the coupon published in the Tribune or a facsimile. Judging will be by a Committee appointed by the Tribune. Awards will be paid to the persons who submit the most interesting slogans in the opinion of the judges. Aptness of thought, wit, cleverness and neatness will be the determining factors. Entries must be the original creation of the sender. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid. In submitting any entry the entrant must agree to accept the judges' decision as final. In fairness to all, the Tribune cannot engage in any correspondence.

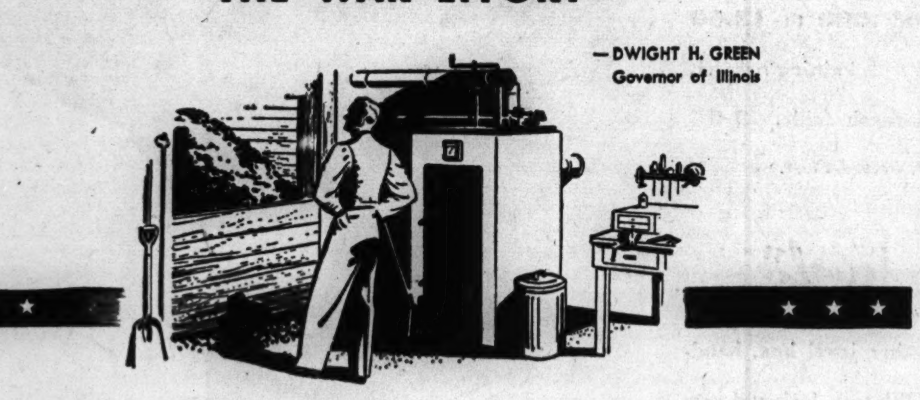
"EARLY COAL BUYING IS A CONTRIBUTION TO THE WAR EFFORT"

—DWIGHT H. GREEN
Governor of Illinois



THE war has brought many changes in our way of living. We cannot have all the things we have been accustomed to enjoy. The needs of our fighting forces come first. Certain things are rationed. Many of our buying habits have changed.

Ordinarily the buying of coal is seasonal. There is a definite slump during the warmer months, and with the approach of cooler weather the demand swings upward.

In peace this seasonal variation is not disturbing. But war makes a difference.

The unusual activities that are inevitable with war bring additional burdens, many of them heavy. It becomes important, therefore, to level the peaks and valleys in the movement of coal.

All patriotic citizens will appreciate the significance of Governor Green's suggestion to buy coal early. It is a contribution to the war effort everybody can make.

The Illinois Central Railroad, as one of the nation's main coal carriers, urges you to anticipate your needs and buy early.

J. L. BEVEN, President

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM

One of America's Railroads—All United for Victory

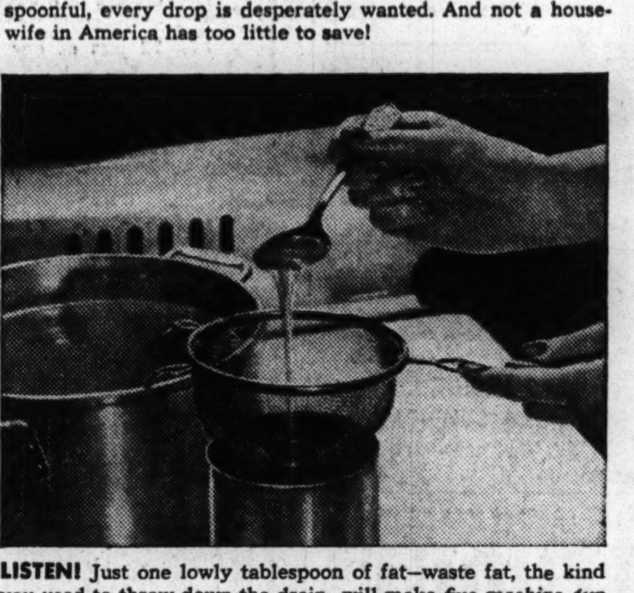
To the Woman Who Asks: How'll I Have Enough Fats to Save for Gunpowder?

IT'S EASY TO SEE what you're up against. Cooking fats are rationed. You're saving them of course. But you want to use them over again. And that's perfectly right! The government doesn't want your fats—even to make gunpowder—until you've got all the food use out of them. But when you have—every spoonful, every drop is desperately wanted. And not a housewife in America has too little to save!



LISTEN! Just one lowly tablespoon of fat—waste fat, the kind you used to throw down the drain—will make five machine gun bullets for our men at the front! That from just one tablespoon! And it doesn't matter whether it's pan drippings, the skimmings of a soup, old shortening or any other kind of used fat. It's a sin against your country to throw it out!

AND DON'T WORRY about what kind of can you use, or how long it takes to fill it up. Any kind of can will do—even a soup can! Keep a few on hand as you empty them. They'll go to tin salvage anyway when you take them to the butcher. But above all, and no matter how long it takes to fill up your tin, take it to your meat dealer. Take it in person, and be proud to do it—for the boys who need those shells at the front.

POST-WAR PLAN LEADERS DUCK WILLKIE LABEL

He Also Denies Role, but Funds Remain Mystery.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Promoters of the Republican post-war policy association fought against the suspicion that theirs is a "Willkie movement" yesterday during a midwest conference held in the La Salle hotel. Plans were made by delegates from 12 states to extend the organization.

Deneen A. Watson.

Wendell L. Willkie, former Republican nominee for President, was here. In an interview, he denied knowing that the meeting was in progress, but reliable sources reported he had a telephone conversation with Deneen A. Watson of Chicago, chairman of the association.

Bills for 109 delegates and guests at luncheon and for more than 300 at dinner were paid by the association. Source of the funds remains a mystery, altho Watson denies that he is handling Willkie money.

Jabs Republican Leaders.

"We are committed to no presidential candidate," said Watson in the opening speech. "Unfortunately, certain of our Republican leaders have not kept abreast of the people's thinking. They have learned nothing since Pearl Harbor. Before Dec. 7, 1941, they termed themselves isolationists. Now seeking to masquerade as super-patriots, they call themselves 'nationalists' — a new fangled label, but the same old idea."

Watson credited the rank and file with sincerity in believing that the best way to have kept this country out of war was to have minded our own business, but he asserted that now "they are aware that wasn't the answer."

Watson, recently inactive in the G. O. P. campaigns, called for action now to establish a "council of nations" with the United States, Russia, Britain, and China as a nucleus. Force would be used to forestall aggression.

He anticipated opposition from "the new nationalists." He said they would argue against a world superstate, breaking down of tariff walls, and coöperation with soviet Russia.

"Today we find no evidence that Russia intends to try to communize the world," Watson asserted.

Midwest Campaign Center.

Outlining what he called a "hard-hitting, practical campaign" to fit into the 1944 elections, he promised block to block and farm to farm canvassing to put over the association's program. Radio will carry the new group's messages to millions, he vowed.

"We intend to get the votes," he said. "The battleground for an enduring peace is right here in the middle west."

Closing on a Republican note, Watson said that "the way to beat Mr. Roosevelt in his fourth term grab is to take the foreign issue away from him."

In its program, the new association indorsed the Ball-Hatch-Hill-Burton senate resolution providing for setting up a United Nations post-war organization now.

Burton Presents Views.

Sen. Harold H. Burton [R., O.] addressed the group to defend the senate resolution.

"We are now crossing the bridge to military victory," Sen. Burton said. "Before we reach the other side we must plan to build three roads leading to internal stability, hemispheric stability, and world-wide stability."

Burton admitted that it might not be easy to carry out the plan because the Constitution requires two-thirds concurrence of the senate. He invited the people to write to senators and urge adoption of the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolution.

Rep. Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] was the featured speaker at the free dinner. Beneficiary of a publicity buildup by the Henry Luce magazine axis, Dirksen told reporters he was considering running for the United States senatorial nomination next spring. He dealt mainly with the domestic economic problems that will result from the war, but put out a few feelers on the subject of peace time alliances with foreign powers.

Interest in Dirksen's Comments.

One Republican who said he was present to discover "what this outfit is trying to do" expressed interest in Dirksen's comment about public opinion.

"The peacemakers became prisoners of public opinion after World War I.," the congressman said. "That's one thing we don't want to have happen again."

Booth Tarkington, Indiana author, sent a message that was read by Dr. John Coulter of Indianapolis.

"The United States is already a member of a league of nations bound together for the enforcement of peace," it said.

Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], Gov. Dwight H. Green, and Lt. Gov. Hugh W. Cross were invited to attend but did not reply. Few of the 124 state central committee members and county chairmen appeared, and several said they were there out of curiosity.

Forty-six of those at the luncheon were described as delegates from outside of Illinois. They were invited because they had expressed interest. The states represented, and the number from each, were: Michigan, 2; Ohio, 3; Minnesota, 4; North Dakota, 2; South Dakota, 1; Wisconsin, 3; Nebraska, 6; Missouri, 3; Kansas, 3; Indiana, 8, and Iowa, 11.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by John Craven, 5209 South Paulina street.]

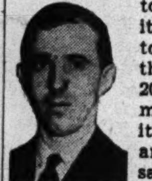
THE QUESTION.

Did your wife ever accept any of your suggestions for running the home?

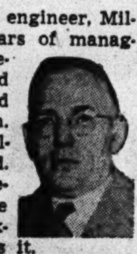
WHERE ASKED.

Michigan avenue and Washington streets.

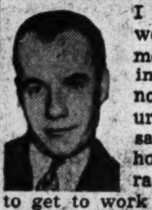
THE ANSWERS.



Charles Muscarello, trainmaster clerk, 4410 Armitage avenue—Once too often I suggested it was an awful waste to hire a man to wash the windows. In 15 or 20 minutes I showed my wife how simple it was to wash them, and pointed out the saving. It's been my job ever since.

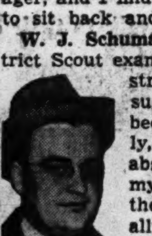


C. A. Johnson, sales engineer, Milwaukee—After 27 years of managing without a household budget I walked in with ledgers and started a new system. At first my wife almost felt insulted. After she really became interested she became a good bookkeeper and now loves it.



Earl Peterson, clerk, 5328 Blackstone avenue—Because my wife and I were both working we ate most of our meals out. Then, during one of my economical spells, I figured how much we'd save if we ate at home. Now I have to race with the dishes to get to work on time.

Chester J. Richmond, machine tool service man, Fairfield, Conn.—A long time ago I learned it was wiser to keep my suggestions to myself. I got into trouble every time I proposed a better method of doing things. Now my wife is the complete manager, and I find it very comfortable to sit back and approve.



W. J. Schumacher, assistant district Scout examiner, 1114 East 82d street—Some of my suggestions haven't been accepted willingly, but my wife has absolute confidence in my ability to work out the budgets. We usually plan them together, but I get my way a good deal of the time.

Manny Altman, store manager, 4313 North Paulina street—My wife said breakfast would be simple if some one went for fresh rolls. I told her I'd get them when I took the dog for a walk. Now she suggests an airing for the dog whenever an errand is necessary.

Find Bodies of 2 Missing Boys in Wisconsin Lake

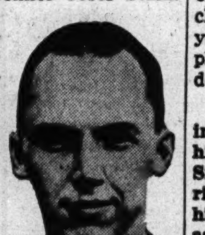
AP WRITER SAYS WILLKIE'S MOVE IRKED STANDLEY

Cassidy Reveals Cause of Envoy's Return.

Wendell L. Willkie's private conferences with Premier Josef Stalin in Moscow last fall and his unauthorized assumption of diplomatic functions was the primary reason of the return of Adm. William H Standley, American ambassador to Russia, last October, it was said by Henry C. Cassidy, chief of the Associated Press Moscow bureau, while passing thru Chicago yesterday.



Henry C. Cassidy.

Prior to seeing Stalin, Willkie had told correspondents that he would have no comments to make on the need for a second front, Cassidy said. However, while in Chungking, China, a few days later, he called for "an all-out offensive everywhere" by all the allies and suggested that the American people prod their military leaders into such action.

Willkie Influenced by Stalin.

Cassidy said that Stalin undoubtedly knew about the projected North African offensive at the time of his conference with Willkie, but probably encouraged Willkie to make his second front statement. By so doing, Stalin "dropped Willkie off a diplomatic limb," Cassidy added.

Adm. Standley considered diplomatic conferences and utterances as his proper field, Cassidy explained, adding that Standley returned to Washington to demand that his position be made clear. As a result, he went back to Moscow with increased authority, in Cassidy's opinion.

Willkie went to Russia on an unofficial mission to study the Russian army and to promote friendship for the United States among the Russian people.

Friendly Reception Accorded.

In this he was successful, Cassidy said, because he was well liked by Russians in and out of the government and now his public statements and actions are given prominence by the Russian press. His reception in Russia was one of the most friendly ever given the representative of a foreign nation, Cassidy said.

Contrary to some published reports, Adm. Standley did attend the state dinner at the Kremlin given by Stalin in Willkie's honor, Cassidy asserted.

Cassidy is in the United States on a leave of absence and is now on a lecture tour in the middle west. He spoke in Fort Wayne during the week-end and in Evansville last night. He will return to Moscow in June.

Friend of the Yanks' Kin

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

[This department answers questions covering problems related to the social welfare of relatives of service men, both in the column and by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent with inquiries.]

Mrs. M. J. asks: "Will you please tell me if it is possible to compel a son to apply for an allowance for his mother? Can I obtain such help only if he wishes to make application?

ANSWER: Service men can not be compelled to file applications for allowances for class "B" dependents. Since mothers are in that class, if you receive the allowance, your son must make a voluntary application, and you must prove both dependency and relationship.

N. B. writes: "My fiance, who is in the army, has been supporting his mother with a family allowance. Since we are contemplating marriage, my question is, would I, as his wife, be entitled to $50 a month as is paid to most wives, if his mother is receiving an allowance of $37 a month? Can you tell me about the provisions for such situations?"

ANSWER: It would be possible for the soldier in question to provide allowances for both a wife and his mother, but the mother's present allowance would be reduced. You, as his wife, could receive a total of $50, made up of $22 from the service man and $28 from the government. His mother could receive a total of $20, made up of $5 from the soldier and $15 from the government.

We have a bulletin covering such questions and stipulating the supporting evidence necessary in applying for all family allowances, which any reader may obtain upon request, accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. E. K. writes: "My husband is a staff sergeant now serving overseas.. Our first child was born recently, and I would like to know if we are eligible to apply for the $12.50, which I understand is payable to service men for the support of their first child."

ANSWER: I believe you are referring to the benefits obtainable under the service men's dependents act. Under that law, a family allowance of $12 is granted for the oldest child, and $10 each for other children of service men in the four lowest pay grades. However, your husband is not eligible for such benefits, since his rank is higher than that of a line sergeant. Privates, privates, first class; corporals, technicians, 4th and 5th grades, and line sergeants are in the four lowest pay grades.

GIRL, 14, ADMITS STEALING $2,000 AND SPENDING IT

Anna Valentino, 14 years old, 1234 Lexington street, confessed to Maxwell police yesterday that she stole $2,000 and spent all but a few dollars buying clothes, shoes, milkshakes and other things for herself, $30 bouquets for her mother, and other lavish gifts for five girl friends. Anna, who lives at 745 Lytle street, was taken to the juvenile home.

The money belonged to Mrs. Sarah Giannola, owner of a grocery at 1162 Polk street, who hired the girl to clean her flat above the store. When Mrs. Giannola missed the money from a hiding place in her daughter's bedroom, which she warned Anna not to enter, she asked the police to look for her.

Anna reported back for work, however, before officers found her and Mrs. Giannola took the girl to the station, where she disclosed the story of her spending spree. After questioning her and her friends who said Anna told them her mother allowed her "to keep her earnings," police recovered $140 of the money and $400 worth of merchandise which she had kept or had bestowed as gifts.

CLUB REVISES FORECAST OF ENVOY'S SPEECH

In a revised announcement of British Ambassador Halifax's address next Sunday night in Orchestra hall, the Chicago Sunday Evening club said yesterday that the envoy would give "one of the inspirational talks with which he has stirred peoples the world 'round."

The club revised its announcement after THE TRIBUNE published an article based on an earlier news release from the club stating that Halifax "will use this occasion to present his ecclesiastical views." In its first release, the club identified Halifax as an exponent of the movement for a union between the Church of England and the Roman Catholic church.

Clifford W. Barnes, president of the club, who was quoted in connection with the announcement of Halifax's topic, said he did not know the release had been sent out by the club's publicity office.

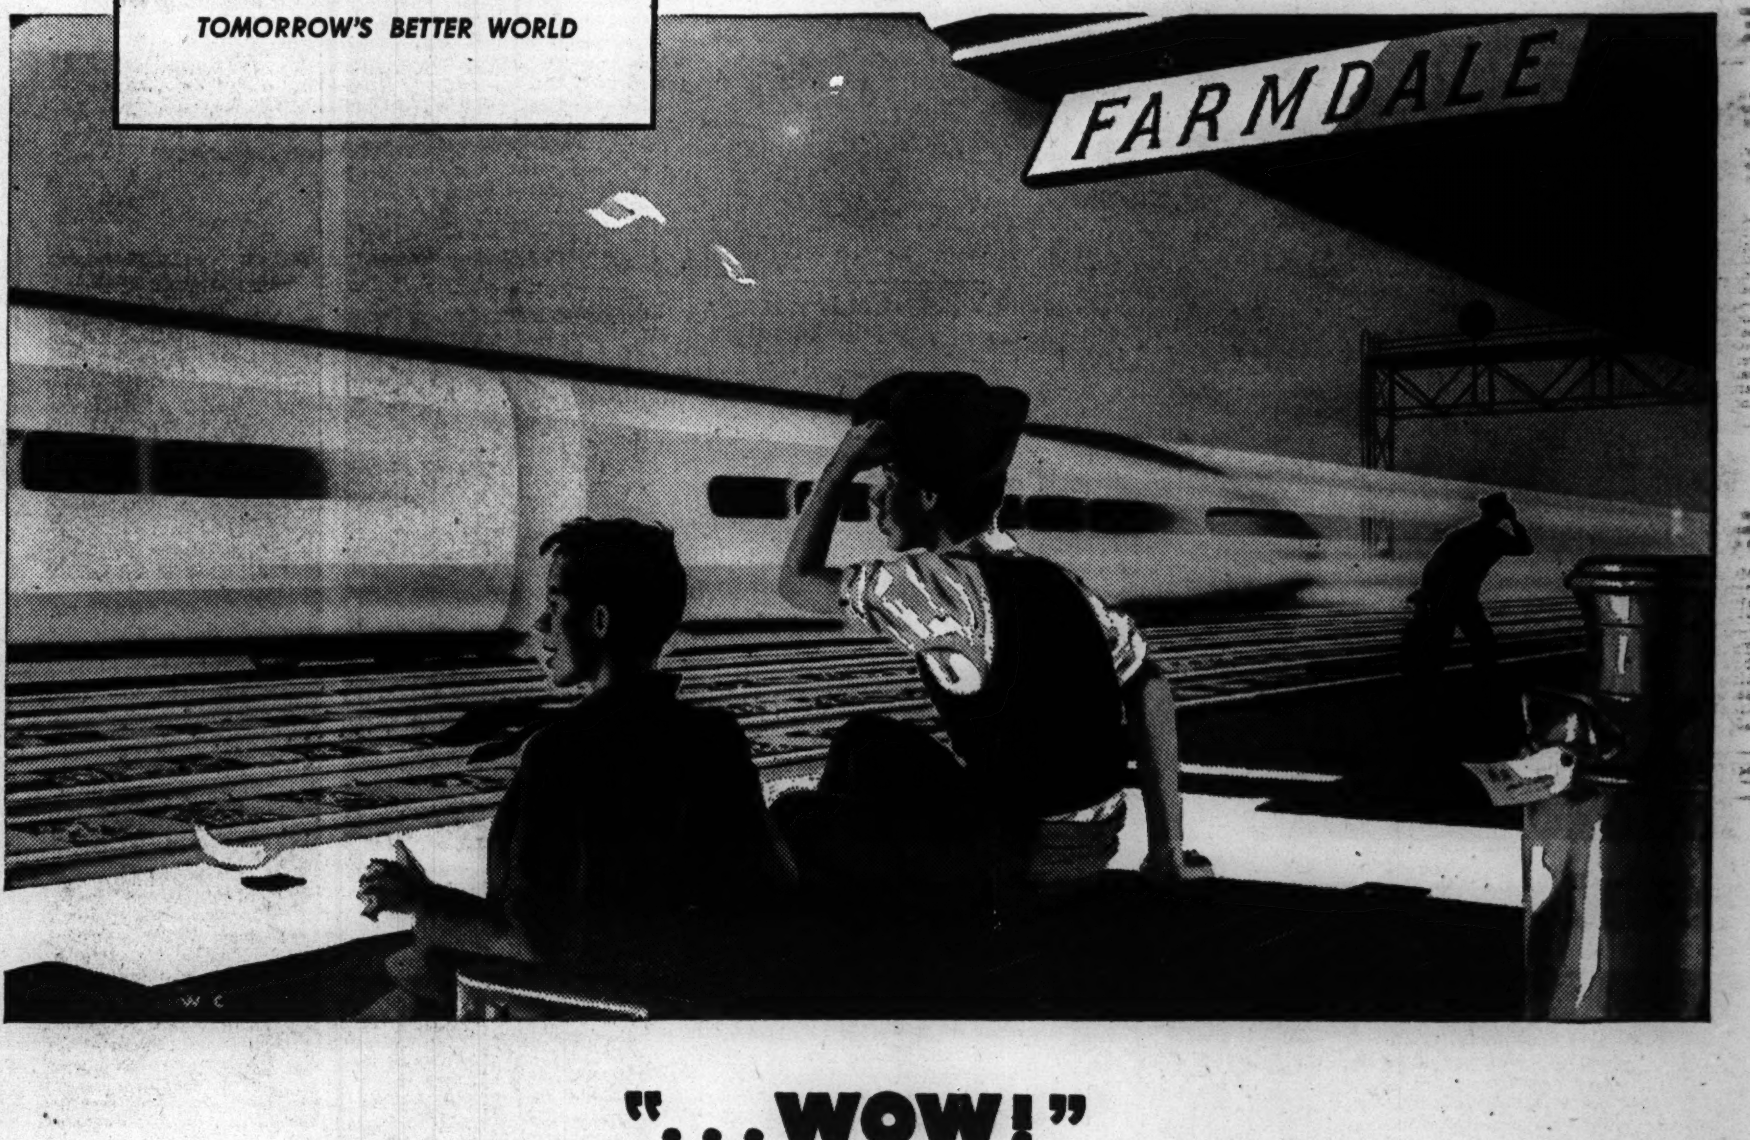
TOMORROW'S BETTER WORLD



"...WOW!"

"Hot ziggety! What a train!" And another boy dreams of his hand on the throttle of a sleek, shining comet of the rails—the train of after-the-war days to come. A sophisticated "wow", too, from you who will enjoy the luxury, comfort and safety of these air-conditioned hotels on wheels. You saw the beginning of a new era in rail transportation before war's necessity temporarily halted its progress. You'll see it resume at a faster pace when wartime demands no longer come first. Railroad engineers and designers have the "know-how". Republic will have the special Electric Furnace Steels to do the job.

Republic Electric Furnace Steels are now being used to build the world's finest fighting machines. But these same steels, in new and improved analyses, will make possible many amazing new developments for traveling America to enjoy in future years.

Fine electric furnace alloy and stainless steels have no equals in providing the additional strength and toughness essential to safety and economy at high operating speeds. And because of these qualities, over-all weight and size can be reduced through the use of smaller sections.

The response of these steels to hardening treatment produces long-lasting, wear-resisting surfaces. They resist corrosion, and the destructive forces of heat, sub-zero cold and that "gremlin-like" element known as "fatigue".

Republic—already the leader in the Electric Furnace field—has jumped its alloy capacity more than 700% to meet urgent war needs. For the world of tomorrow this holds a promise of better things than ever to work with and to live with—a brighter future for industry—for the farm—for the home. SUPREME COURT VOIDS CURB ON RELIGIOUS SECT

Licenses Branded Peril to Free Press.

the fact that the license tax can suppress or control this activity is unimportant if it does not do so. But that is to disregard the nature of this tax. It is a license tax—a flat tax imposed on the exercise of a privilege granted by the Bill of Rights.

"A state may not impose a charge for the enjoyment of a right granted by the federal Constitution. Thus, it may not exact a license tax for the privilege of carrying on interstate commerce altho it may tax the property used in, or the income derived from, that commerce, so long as those taxes are not discriminatory. A license tax applied to activities guaranteed by the 1st amendment would have the same destructive effect.

Influence Called Destructive.

"It is true that the 1st amendment, like the commerce clause, draws no distinction between license taxes, fixed sum taxes, and other kinds of taxes. But that is no reason why we should shut our eyes to the nature of the tax and its destructive influence. The power to impose a license tax on the exercise of these freedoms is indeed as potent as the power of censorship which this court has repeatedly struck down."

Quoting the provision of the first amendment that congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of religion or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, Justice Douglas observed that "It could hardly be denied that a tax laid specifically on the exercise of those freedoms would be unconstitutional. Yet the license tax imposed by this ordinance is in substance just that."

He quoted that Illinois Supreme court decision in a Jehovah's Witnesses case that a person cannot be compelled "to purchase, thru a license fee or a license tax, the privilege freely granted by the constitution." The sect's activities, said Douglas, are as much entitled to protection as more conventional exercises of religion and as freedom of speech and of the press.

Impact on Press Told.

"The taxes imposed by this ordinance" the majority opinion continued, "can hardly help but be as severe and telling in their impact on the freedom of the press and religion as the taxes on knowledge at which the first amendment was partly aimed.

"They may indeed operate even more subtly. Itinerant evangelists moving thruout a state or from state to state would feel immediately the cumulative effect of such ordinances as they become fashionable. The way of the religious dissenter has long been hard. But if the formula of this type of ordinance is approved, a new device for the suppression of religious minorities will have been found.

"The fact that the ordinance is nondiscriminatory is immaterial. The protection afforded by the first amendment is not so restricted. A license tax certainly does not acquire constitutional validity because it classifies the privileges protected by the first amendment along with the wares and merchandise of hucksters and peddlers and treats them alike. Such equality in treatment does not save the ordinance. Freedom of press, freedom of speech, freedom of religion are in a preferred position.

Privilege Held Guaranteed.

"This tax is not a charge for the enjoyment of a privilege or benefit bestowed by the state. The privilege in question exists apart from state authority. It is guaranteed the people by the federal constitution.

"Plainly a community may not suppress, or the state tax, the dissemination of views because they are unpopular, annoying, or distasteful. If that device were ever sanctioned, there would have been forged a ready instrument for the suppression of the faith which any minority cherishes but which does not happen to be in favor. That would be a complete repudiation of the philosophy of the bill of rights."

Justice Reed, who wrote the majority opinion a year ago, took the position in his dissenting opinion today that the sale of religious books cannot be classed as a religious exercise.

Tax Called Customary One.

"It is urged that such a tax as this may be used readily to restrict the dissemination of ideas," he said. "This must be conceded, but the possibility of misuse does not make a tax unconstitutional. No abuse is claimed here. The ordinances in some of these cases are the general occupation license type covering many businesses.

"In the Jeannette prosecutions, the ordinance involved lays the usual tax on canvassing or soliciting sales of goods, wares and merchandise. It was passed in 1898. Every power of taxation or regulation is capable of abuse. Each one to some extent prohibits the free exercise of religion and abridges the freedom of the press, but that is hardly a reason for denying the power. If the tax is used oppressively, the law will protect the victims of such action."

Justice Frankfurter in a separate dissent said that Chief Justice John Marshall's famous dictum that the power to tax is the power to destroy is true "only in the sense that those who have power can misuse it."

"Mr. Justice Holmes disposed of this smooth phrase as a constitutional basis for invalidating taxes when he wrote 'The power to tax is not the power to destroy while this court sits,'" Frankfurter held.

In another case the court split, six to three, in invalidating application of a Struthers, O., ordinance prohibiting door to door solicitation to Jehovah's Witnesses. In this case Justice Frankfurter joined the majority and Justices Jackson and Roberts joined Justice Reed in the dissent.

CICERO 'FIRES' SVOBODA AGAIN, BUT HE'S STILL IN

The big question in Cicero last night was whether Theodore Svoboda, the "off again, on again" chief of police, was still in office. The town board says he is not. The president of the board says he is.

A week ago the board voted 4 to 3 to oust Svoboda. President George Stedronsky vetoed the resolution, in effect retaining the chief in office. Last night the board voted again 4 to 3, not to accept the president's veto.

Stedronsky says the board's latest action has no effect, as a 5 to 2 vote is necessary to override the board president's veto.

Meanwhile Svoboda, who has been chief of police in Cicero since 1924, apparently was still on the job. Twice before he has been "dismissed," but both times he managed to retain his office.

The latest "dismissal" came after Town Clerk Anton J. Krupicka charged Svoboda had done nothing to clean up gambling after it had been called to his attention last August.

PRESS GRANTED PLACE TO WAIT AT FOOD PARLEY

Quizzing of Delegates Is Still Tabooed.

Washington, D. C., May 3 (AP).—Restrictions on press coverage of the allied nations food conference opening May 18 at Hot Springs, Va., have been modified, it was learned authoritatively tonight.

Instead of barring reporters from the grounds as well as the buildings, of the hotel where the food parley is to be held, as originally planned, the newsmen will be authorized to work in a press headquarters inside the grounds. Guards, however, will bar access to the hotel proper, except during the opening and closing and possibly two other public sessions of the three weeks' conference.

Reporters will be able to telephone direct from the pressroom to their newspaper offices.

May Hold "Conferences."

The Hot Springs pressroom is housed in a dance casino well inside the grounds, between the hotel and the practice putting green. Arrangements have been made to permit delegates or chairman of committees who may wish to communicate with the press to hold press conferences there. Reporters, however, will not be permitted to take their meals in the hotel or stroll about the lobby.

For the public sessions of the conference, they will be equipped with passes permitting entry to the press benches of the conference hall, but will not be permitted to circulate among the delegates. Photographers will be admitted to the delegates' lobby on such occasions with the understanding they will not attempt to converse with delegates.

42 Nations Included.

The agenda of the food conference, at which 42 governments beside the United States are expected to be represented, was made public by the state department last week. American proposals for achieving more efficient production and wider distribution of the world's food are being drawn up by government experts and are expected to be made public in the course of the conference.

ADM. ROBERT FILES PROTEST ON BREAK WITH MARTINIQUE

[Copyright: 1943: By the Associated Press.]

New York, May 3.—Adm. Georges Robert, French high commissioner of Martinique, disclosed tonight that he had sent a note to the state department protesting the United States' action in breaking off relations with Martinique, and he urged that the department publish the text of his note.

Adm. Robert cabled this information to the Associated Press in reply to a query asking his views on the state department's action, announced Friday, abrogating informal agreements with Martinique on grounds that this country would not "recognize or negotiate with any French representative in the Antilles who remains subservient to or maintains contact with the Vichy régime."

The state department has not announced receipt of a reply by Robert to Secretary Hull's note to him, delivered on April 26. Robert's message did not indicate what course he planned to follow or the nature of the information in his note to the government that he wished made public.

INDUCT MAYORS ON NORTH SHORE AND AT JOLIET

Mayor Richard H. Mabbatt of Lake Forest retired last night. His last official act was to visit the homes of his successor, Charles F. Clarke, 901 North Church road, and Keith Carpenter, 815 East Barberry lane, alderman elect of the 1st ward, and administer the oaths of office to them. Mayor Clarke and Carpenter are ill and were unable to attend the council's reorganization meeting. The retiring mayor was presented with a gold star.

In Highland Park, Joseph B. Garnett was inducted as mayor, succeeding Frank Ronan. Edward J. Moroney, former police chief and Leo J. Sheridan were installed as commissioners.

Chief of Police Bart Tyrrell and Fire Chief Thomas McNamara were reappointed at Waukegan by Mayor Frank Wallin at the city council reorganization meeting. Edward Plonien was installed as alderman of the 3d ward.

Arthur O. Janke, Joliet grocer, took office as mayor, succeeding George T. Jones.

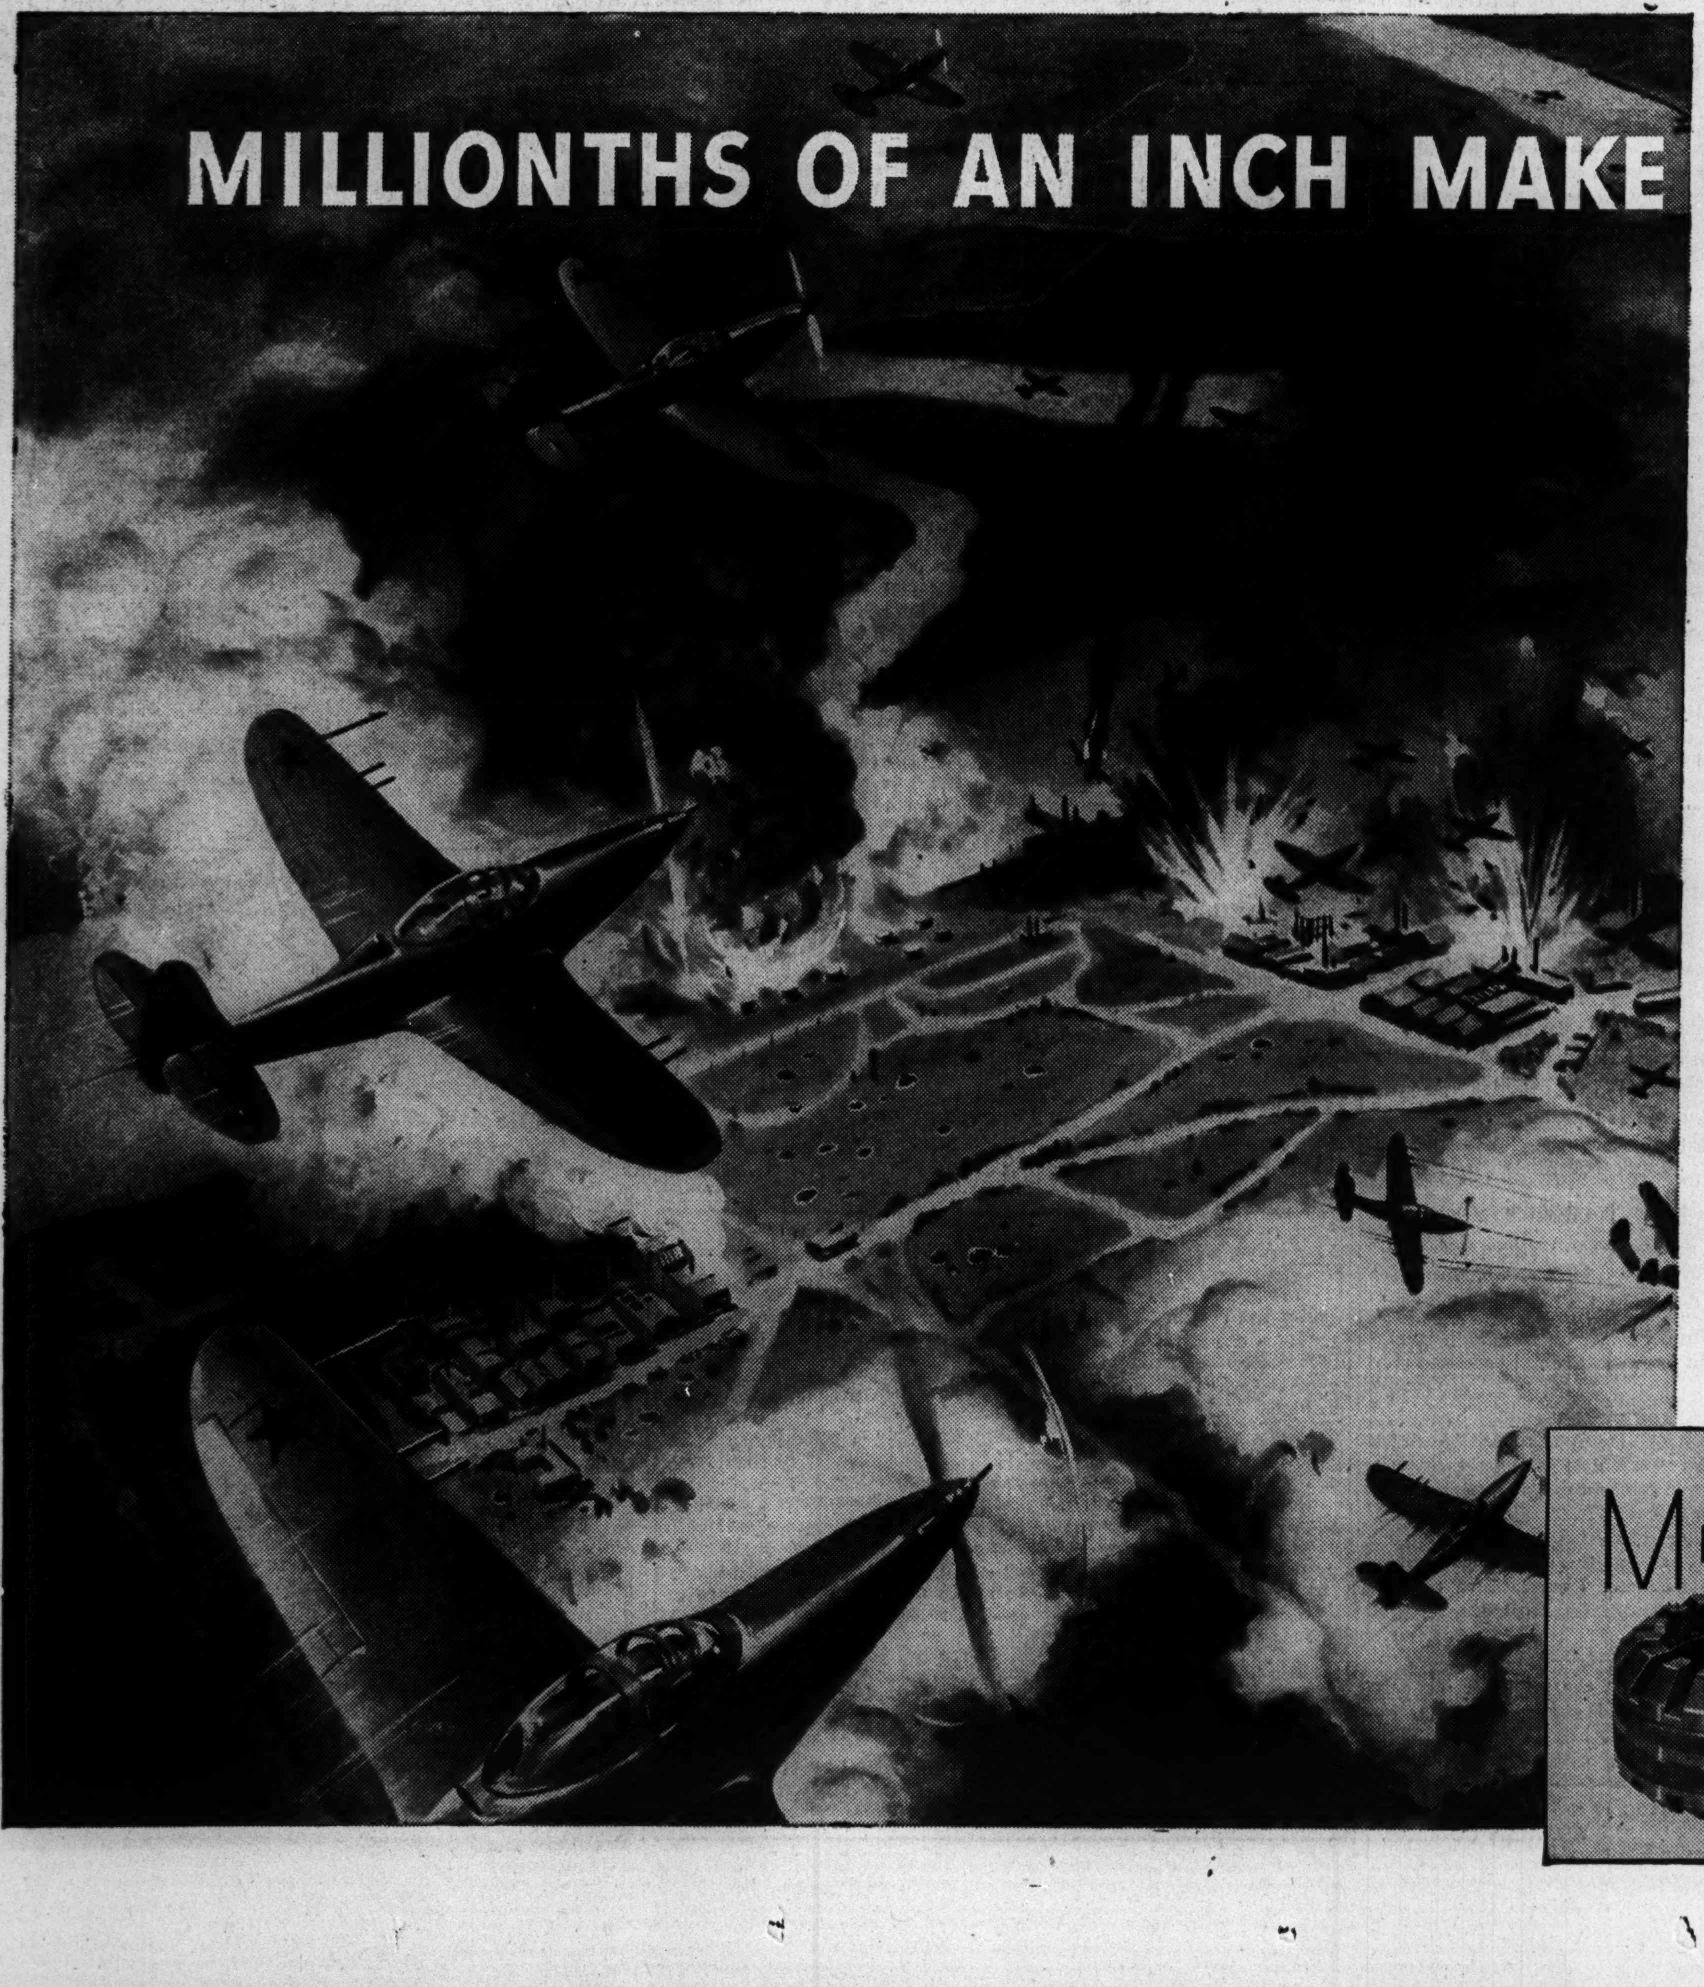
MILLIONTHS OF AN INCH MAKE MILES OF DIFFERENCE



THE NEWS releases laid so much stress on the bitter fighting in the streets of Stalingrad that most of us completely forgot that the fighting in the Stalingrad skies was just as bitter. And just as effective!

Late in November when the Red Armies surged across the Volga, one reason twenty-two Nazi divisions suddenly had no way to get home was that the Luftwaffe had worn so thin it had lost control of the air.

From the Volga to the Don, the skies were filled with planes busy slamming the door right in the face of Der Fuehrer's crack divisions. And wing to wing with Russian Stormaviks flew American-made planes, hundreds of them, bombers, fighters like the deadly P-39's, planes built with such millionths-of-an-inch perfection that they out-climbed, out-speeded, out-fought and out-maneuvered the best the Nazis had.

Why were those American planes in Russian skies? Lend-lease! What made Lend-lease possible? Gages! For only the ever-increasing use of gages here at home in America's war plants ever enabled us to reach 5500-planes-a-month production in less than two years!

Gages, you see, are little gadgets of shining steel that measure manufacturing precision down to within millionths of an inch. And they are not only "precision inspectors". . . they're production multipliers! With gages you can get hand-made perfection at machine-made speed : : : you can make more aircraft engines, more rifles, more tanks, more bombsights, more artillery . . . more of anything the Army, Navy and Air Corps needs . . . and make it finer and faster!

For 25 years, VINCO has been selling millionths-of-an-inch precision to American industry. Long before Pearl Harbor Vinco engineers were working with the engineering staffs of the country's great armament producers. Today Vinco gages are at work in the production of tank engines, aircraft engines, propellers, flying instruments, PT boats and landing barges, artillery, machine guns, range finders, bombsights, and so on. And this generation of precision experience is at the service of any manufacturer in the solution of either war-time or post-war production problems.

One of the exclusive inspection devices produced by VINCO : : : the OPTICAL MASTER INSPECTION DIVIDING HEAD; which is used to measure spacing in gears, splines, index plates; cams, camshafts; etc., and is accurate to within 2/1,296,000ths part of the circle.

BETRAYAL, INC.

Something that calls itself the Midwest conference of the Republican Post-War Policy association has been meeting in Chicago. It will simplify matters to recognize this crowd for what it is: a group of Willkieites who, if they had not been routed in the 1942 primaries would have robbed the party of its 1942 victories.

Some of these people know it and some few of them don't, but the fact is that their faction in a very real sense was organized by the New Deal, and, of course, has the blessing of the New Deal. When Knox and Stimson went into the cabinet on the eve of the 1940 Republican convention, the first overt step in the plot was taken. The next was the nomination of Willkie, achieved by an unparalleled outpouring of money, a deluge of telegrams organized by Wall street, and the packing of the convention hall with Willkie partisans.

The purpose of all these maneuvers has become abundantly clear as time has passed. Traitors to the Republican party are seeking once again to control it with a view to defeating it in 1944 and assuring the fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt. If the plot succeeds, the hope is that the Republican party will be liquidated as a result of four successive defeats in Presidential elections.

It is the impudent scheme of a discredited crew. It is particularly shameless in the middle west where the rejection of the Willkieites was most pronounced and where, in consequence the gains of the Republican party in recent elections have been greatest.

The assemblage of global intellects and bleeding hearts is indulging in a lot of tall talk about establishing a better world after the war. They are trying to capture the Republican party by appealing to the universal desire for a lasting peace. Their formula is a simple one. If they have their way, the people of this country and its wealth will be placed permanently at the disposal of communist Russia and imperial Britain. The Willkieites are talking not about a peace that will be lasting because it is just and livable, but about a conquerors' peace enforced by American military and economic pressure. They are seeking to impose upon this country the stupendously costly and thankless rôle of world policeman.

That is their program and, of course, it is also the New Deal's program. The Willkieites and their New Deal bosses are hoping by deceit to capture the Republican party and thus deprive the American people of any alternative to Mr. Roosevelt's grandiose ambitions.

UNCLE SAM, EMPLOYER.

In Washington a short time ago labor raiding of one department by another was common practice. Heads of some of the old bureaus, subject to strict budgetary limitations, have complained that they have lost many of their ablest employés to the new agencies not subject to the same restrictions. Last November the head of one of the smaller war agencies was overheard telling an assistant to use an outside phone and get him a half dozen bright young economists where he could find them. He was told to offer them more money than they were getting.

Some of the federal agencies which have come to Chicago are following the same labor practices. At the time when employment in factories here has reached a new peak, and with armed services drawing off most of the able-bodied young men in the community, government agencies are raiding private industry, with the result that some old established businesses are finding it difficult to continue to function.

What makes the problem difficult is that the government bureaus can make all sorts of fancy bids for help, not being subject as private business is to the job freeze and to the necessity to meet pay rolls out of earnings. In a story in the financial section of THE TRIBUNE on Friday it was stated that the government is taking the employés of a large insurance company by offering to pay them 50 per cent more than they are getting. In fact, one of the agencies charged with maintaining the wage freeze as a check on inflation has staffed its offices partly with employés attracted by offers of higher wages than they were receiving in industry. One employé went over to the wage stabilizing agency in response to an offer of more than twice his salary. Another employer accused the government here of hogging the supply of typists, key punch operators, tabulators, and similar office help.

President Roosevelt's "hold the line" order seems to apply to every one except the government.

LET THE EAGLE SCREAM.

The American Iron and Steel institute reports that the steel producing capacity of the United States at the beginning of this year exceeded 90,000,000 tons annually. That is about three-fifths of the effective production facilities of the whole world, now that European plants, both our allies and enemies, have been subjected to war damage.

More important, the expansion of our steel industry during the last three years has increased its capacity by about 8,700,000 tons, while an additional capacity of more than 5,000,000 tons is in an advanced stage of construction. Since January, 1940, the institute points out, we have already built a new steel industry nearly two-thirds the size of Great Britain's, and the other plants which will go into production will give us facilities added since the war started in Europe greater than the whole British industry.

These are facts for Americans to ponder over, and they rightly may exult in them. Steel is the backbone of modern industrial civilization and, with all due recognition of the great potentialities of such new materials as aluminum, magnesium, and plastics, it is likely to remain so for many years to come. America sits in the driver's seat of the modern industrial world. This is an advantage not lightly to be bartered by bespatted gentlemen more interested in setting up a world WPA than in the welfare of their own country.

DO YOU WANT MORE BEEF?

The Hereford steers being fattened on the Tribune farm gain an average of two pounds a day. When they are sold as prime beef at the stockyards that two pounds would be worth 34 cents on the hoof, if present prices prevail, which is unlikely. But the feed that the steers eat costs 38 cent a day. The labor to care for them, their bedding and other items raise this cost to 44 cents. In short, the fattening process, taken by itself, shows a loss of 10 cents a day for each animal.

That, of course is not the complete story. But it is a fairly typical experience in the great midwestern cattle fattening industry. Unless costs are reduced, a responsible economist in the industry assures us, this situation is going to inflict an increasing scarcity of beef on the country during the war and put the whole cattle industry in danger of economic collapse after the war.

Most middle western farmers who fatten cattle buy the animals from western ranges, where they are calved and attain a certain growth on grass feed. The stock fattener has two possibilities of profit in his operation, aside from the by-products in the form of manure and the fattening of hogs. The first is in the actual gain of weight of the animals. That gain, as the figures from the Tribune farm demonstrate, is today more likely to become a loss. The second is in the improvement of the quality of the beef.

There are a few westerners who profess a fondness for range beef and a number of crackpots in Washington who have suggested that it be inflicted on the country during the war on the theory that the more hardships the rest of us suffer the better it is for our souls. But aside from this minority the present generation of Americans wants its beef improved in quality by being fattened on corn and protein foods.

When an Illinois or Iowa farmer buys a 650 pound steer and feeds it until it weighs half a ton, he may actually lose money on the 350 pounds that the steer puts on, but he expects to profit by raising the quality and price of the 650 pounds of meat that he bought on the hoof. On the other hand, if he buys a 400 pound steer calf and keeps it in his feed lot long enough to raise it to a prime beef animal, he usually pays as much per pound for the calf as he gets for the prime steer, and his only hope of profit is in putting weight on the animal at a lesser cost than he can sell it for.

Shortly after the last war the middle western farmers bought calves because feed was generally cheap and the stock fattener could make a profit on the gain in weight. That is no longer true. With high priced feed the best chance the middle western farmer has of breaking even on his beef operations is to buy steers and raise the grade of the meat as he fattens it. In consequence, the burden of raising the calf to a yearling or two year old steer has been shifted back to the range country and, even so, the high price of feed is making it difficult to move the steers into middle western feed lots.

Altho the price of live cattle is not fixed, the same effect is achieved indirectly by the price ceilings that have been placed on beef at the wholesale and retail levels. The OPA has announced a further reduction in meat price ceilings, effective next month, with an expected "rollback" in live stock prices which, some live stock economists believe, may reduce the price of cattle as much as a dollar a hundredweight.

When stock fattening becomes unprofitable the natural result is to reduce the supply of meat. The same undesirable end is accomplished by insufficient supplies of feed, and price ceilings on feeds, and particularly on the so-called supplements which furnish protein to the steers' diet, are also operating to produce scarcity.

The result of these two forces, aided, of course, by the scarcity of farm labor, will be to provide less and less meat at a time when we need it most, and at the same time to pile up on the ranges of the west a surplus of ageing steers which will threaten to glut the market and break the whole live stock price structure after the war.

The remedy, as live stock men see it, is to encourage the fattening of beef by allowing enough of an increase in prices to insure farmers against the losses with which they must gamble today and, at the same time, to stimulate the production of feeds by raising the ceilings on feed.

That, of course, will raise the cost of living. But raising prices has always been an efficient and automatic way of dealing with shortages. It reduces the consumption. Within limits this probably would do little harm to the national diet, since the increased cost of meat would be met in part by greater economy in its use. Fundamentally, of course, this consideration is a minor one. It doesn't help any one to keep the price of beefsteak down if you can't get the beefsteak.

WAR CASUALTY No. 1.

[Petroleum Times, London.]

To those who have had a chance to compare the antics of an American service station attendant with the deportment of his opposite number in England, it is evident that, shortage and rationing having put salesmanship at a discount, are more severe blows to the average American than to Britishers, or at least to Englishmen. A foreign friend recently commented on the obvious gusto with which English shop assistants announce their inability to serve you, and added that even in peace time the only way to please a salesgirl in the west end was to leave the shop without buying anything. In America, on the other hand, high pressure salesmanship used to be a national pastime, and the fellow—or had we better say guy?—who spent his time in talking his compatriots into buying a new car was not taken to be just a peddler, but was, indeed, a national hero. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to this sort of twentieth century adventurer, who, stripped of his car, has perhaps now been relegated to the uncongenial job of a mere machine minder.

Why Navy Recruits Are "Boots."

When a recruit enlisted in the navy in 1910 he was given a complete outfit of clothes, valued then at $60. Since the recruit upon completion of his training period might change his rating and enter the "black gang" [engineering force] or decide to be a "striker" [apprentice] for some other rating, i. e., electrician, carpenter's mate, etc., rubber boots were not issued at the Norfolk station, as they would be useful only to those men who decided to stay in the deck force.

At the Newport station, however, rubber boots were issued with the first outfit of clothing, regardless of whether the recruit changed rating or not.

The term "boot" was not in use at that time, and recruits were commonly called rookies.

Whenever a draft of men was assigned to a ship, the crew was naturally curious to learn whether any old shipmates were among the newcomers. There was disappointment, however, when they observed a shiny, brand new pair of rubber boots lashed to each bag and hammock, and the word went around, "It's just a bunch of rubber boots."

Gradually the recruit became known as a "rubber boot." The term was used for two or three years and was then shortened to "boot."

I read an article wherein an officer attached to the Great Lakes Training station said that the term "boot" was used because of the bootlike leggings worn while in training. He had evidently been told that by some one else who didn't know. The recruits in 1910 also wore leggings, but were still "rookies."

I was in the navy in 1910 and know that the origin of the term "boot" as set forth above is correct. I reëntered the navy during the last war and some of the old timers still called a recruit a "rubber boot." An Old Time Gob.

DAY OF PEACE.

Some of us saw it once—a day men thought
That Peace had come. It was a joyful day
(Too long awaited and too dearly bought!);
Men left their fields and children left their play,
The whistles blew, and in the public squares
The people gathered in great, shouting throngs,
Lighting huge bonfires, waving flags and flares,
Laughing and weeping wildly, singing songs.

O, world, take heart! The day will come again
(Again too dearly bought, too long delayed!)
O, weary lands, whose children starve, whose men
Have seen their aims, their purposes betrayed,
The day of Peace will come! And on that day
Men will shout less than they will kneel and pray.

Maud Ludington Cain.

The word "boot" for naval recruit [April 29] certainly did not originate in the present war. The term was in common usage in marine corps training camps during World War I. As you say, there is hardly a connection between sailors and boots as footwear, but there might be between marines and footwear. I am inclined to think the word is of marine corps origin.

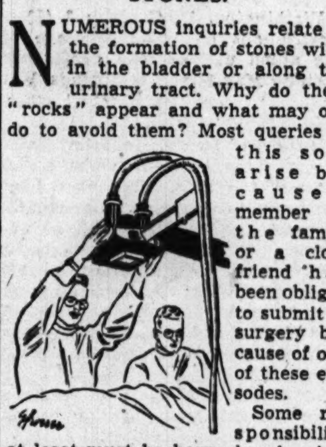
THE GENESIS OF KIDNEY STONES.

NUMEROUS inquiries relate to the formation of stones within the bladder or along the urinary tract. Why do these "rocks" appear and what may one do to avoid them? Most queries of this sort arise because a member of the family or a close friend has been obliged to submit to surgery because of one of these episodes.



Some responsibility at least must be borne by chemical changes which have taken place in the urine. One reason why it seems wise to ingest a reasonable amount of liquid daily is to prevent the concentration of the fluid which collects within the kidneys and flows into the bladder.

At one time it was thought that something was wrong with the use of lime by the body. True, enough, the parathyroid glands—which lie adjacent to the thyroids—may be thrown out of balance and hence become the culprits. But such an origin would be unusual.

A dozen years ago the suggestion was offered that lack of vitamin A might be to blame. This was emphasized by the fact that bladder stones are common in Burma, even among young children. The disorder was associated with the diet, inasmuch as the chief edible was rice. When deprived of A, experimental animals seemed more likely to exhibit concretions.

Certain investigators still believe that the administration of more of this vitamin will do much to diminish these deposits. Nevertheless, giving it in large doses will not dissolve them. Switching the reaction of the urine, however, from acid to alkaline or vice versa may force the material to go into solution and thus be thrown off.

But what lies back of the settling out of calcium, with resulting growth of miniature boulders? As we know, the entire scheme of digestion, absorption, and elimination can be upset by a focus of infection. The steady pouring into the blood stream of pus and bacteria from pockets about the teeth, within the sinuses, etc., may disturb metabolism.

Another factor is obstruction to the free exit of the products of the renal organs. Place a dam across a creek, and mud and sand will collect on the upstream side. In other words, blocking of the duct from any cause may bring about the precipitation of a shower of pebbles. This is true particularly if there is a spot of inflammation somewhere along the outbound tract.

Now, one of these gritty particles within the kidneys proper may, after a time, interfere with the discharge. Occasionally, blood will be observed because enough irritation is set up to rupture tiny capillaries. If a piece breaks off and passes down the ureter, intense pain may be complained of. Only when the fragment drops into the bladder, will relief be experienced.

Fortunately, X-rays will disclose the presence of these quarries. Once they have been discovered, the overflow must be kept well diluted, the channel must be freed from obstruction, and the diet must contain a generous quantity of vitamin A. Later, it may be desirable to alter the reaction of the excreted fluid.

If surgery is essential, prevention thereafter should become the rule. It is not the presence of lime itself that occasions the trouble but the fact that it is not held in solution.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

THE DUTY OF A CRITIC.

Chicago, April 28.—The controversy over Miss Claudia Cassidy's criticism of Mr. Defauw's recent concert with the Chicago Symphony orchestra has been brought to my attention.

Miss Cassidy is generally considered one of the brightest ornaments of musical criticism in this country and, if we admit that a critic is not only entitled, but bound, to express his or her sincere opinion, it is difficult to understand the recriminations addressed to Miss Cassidy for pursuing precisely this course.

Music critics are, or rather should be, the guardians of a community's musical standards. Yet on an all too rare occasion, when a distinguished member of the profession ventures to fulfill her highest duty, there are clamors for her head.

The question is not whether one agrees or disagrees with Miss Cassidy's opinions since it is her judgment which determines her very enviable professional standing. Art is like a child to whom a responsible parent must occasionally be stern, that it may achieve a maturity deserving of the respect without which no love can endure. As a Chicago music lover, the present tempest strikes me as further evidence of a regrettable Chicago tendency in matters musical: Namely, to insist that any choice, once made by the city's "artistic fathers," whether good or bad, must be forever immune to further question, however sincerely motivated. MUSIC LOVER.

HOUSING AUTHORITY RENTS.

Chicago, April 29.—If R. Lambert had read THE TRIBUNE regularly and consistently he would have read the answer to his letter at least three times in recent months. Yes, the Lathrop and other Chicago housing projects were built only for low income families and the low rentals are based on about 20 per cent of annual income, which is regularly checked. But the taxpayers of the nation pay the difference between this rent and actual cost.

Lambert admits that he has enjoyed this charity from the government for six years, altho his home "is worth $50 a month even tho they have not decorated in the last three years." It is evident that his income is now approximately $3,000 annually, which means that he is "not eligible" to live in these houses and should patronize the private landlord, who, as a taxpayer, has been helping pay his rent for the last six years, and thus allow some poor family to occupy his apartment at the former rent of $22.25.

JOHN FRANKLIN.

FOREIGN TONGUES IN AMERICA.

Dubuque, Ia., April 26.—The facts in the case may be of value in the discussion concerning immigrants and the English language. Inability to use English is practically nonexistent in the second generation, and as a rule that generation has no ability or desire to speak any foreign language. Especially significant is the fact that American denominations with a European background now conduct 95 per cent of their services in the English language.

HERMANN S. FICKE.

TWO KINDS OF STRIKING.

Chicago, April 30.—What would some of the PFCs [poor foolish civilians] think if they read that some of our boys were on strike? The only striking they are doing is against the enemy and not against the people back home.

ROY C. CARLSON.

WHOSE OX?

Pontiac, Mich., April 29.—The funniest thing I have read recently was a recent article in THE TRIBUNE, quoting the Chicago Federation of Labor on the recent "job freeze" order. The federation is quoted, in part: "this, we contend, is a form of slavery and should have no place in free America." And continuing: "Serfdom in modern America was unthinkable until the WMC began to enforce the alleged 'job stabilization plan,' etc."

I wish to enlighten the federation on one point; slavery went out, in free America, under Abraham Lincoln and came back under the administration of the New Deal, in connection with labor unionism, Tugwell, "Happy Harry" Hopkins, Perkins, and the rest of them. Try and get a job helping your Uncle Samuel turn out war munitions to help our boys at the front and see how far you get if you have not paid tribute to some union and hold a union card. War, or no war, the unions must have their pound of flesh.

And when Michigan's former Sen. Brown was forcing the price control thru congress last fall and farmers were protesting, the UAW-CIO via Detroit's great gift to humanity—Walter Reuther [who had to go to Russia to learn how to run labor unions in the "American" way, and has done a swell job in keeping out of the draft tho in class 1-A] wired Brown not to allow congress to be "pushed around by a pressure group," referring to farmers. Well, what in —— does he call his group? And now Reuther's group is demanding that the ceiling on farm products not be raised, to allow farmers labor costs, but that "incentive payments" be given the farmer as a spur to greater production. But Mr. Reuther is also bitterly opposed to the proposed "incentive payments" to industrial workers, on the ground it is the beginning of "economic slavery." There we have "slavery" again; and I wonder how Mr. Reuther can correlate his two views as to incentive payments; they are all right for farmers, but "economic slavery" for the workers.

JAMES W. CLAPP.

SAMARITAN IN BROWN.

Chicago, April 27.—At Dearborn and Madison streets about 3:45 p. m. April 27th, an elderly man evidently had a slight heart attack and fell to the sidewalk, injuring his thumb. The poor man seemed bewildered, his pale color and vacant stare were pathetic. A gentleman in brown called the corner policeman, handing him a greenback and directed that the old man be sent home in a taxi. Many passers-by, I am sure, breathed a silent prayer for the gentleman for his kindness and generosity. MISS L. M. HOAG.

HE SAYS IT'S SATIRE.

Hammond, Ind., April 27.—I wish to compliment you upon your editorial, "States Across the Sea," lampooning the present efforts of the peace planners. Your satire is superb. Yet its utter fantasy is sufficiently exaggerated for the ordinary person to understand. Your editorial quite surpasses Jonathan Swift's "Gulliver's Travels." It shows up so well how ludicrous their efforts are that all but the most obtuse of the peace planners will be sent scurrying for cover. ROY F. DAVEY.

MORE LOGICAL AND SENSIBLE.

Nauvoo, Ill., April 29.—Your editorial "States Across the Sea" was a "humdinger." While I do not approve of foreign states joining us, the suggestions you make to have foreign states or nations become states of our Union surely is more logical, and sensible, than to have the United States become a dominion of England. Let them join us, or seek to do so, if they desire union, and not expect us to become a vassal of John Bull. M. B.

POST-MORTEM ON TOKIO.

Chicago, April 29.—I believe the bombing of Tokio originated with the political leaders in Washington and not with the military leaders. It could be of practically no value in winning the war and I am sure the American people realize that it was a stunt to gain attention. It reacted against us and no doubt the Jap war spirit became stronger than ever. G. F. G.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

OBJECTIONABLE TREE.

Chicago, April 27 [Legal Friend of the People]—There is a large poplar tree in the area between the curb and sidewalk in front of our house. Because roots of the tree had grown into the sewer, we recently were put to quite an expense and unless the tree is removed this expense probably will be repeated. I should like to know what department of the city handles the removal of such trees. G. M.

The areas between the sidewalk and the curb of the city's streets, called parkways, are under the jurisdiction of the bureau of parks, recreation, and aviation of the department of public works.

The city will remove dead and dangerous trees from the parkways, but does not remove live trees from these areas.

Live trees of an objectionable variety that are causing damage to private property can be removed from the parkways by the property owner at his own expense upon securing a permit for this removal from the bureau of parks, recreation, and aviation. There is no charge for the issuance of a removal permit.

SLAPS BROTHER IN COURT, HELD FOR CONTEMPT

Incident Occurs During Parents' Divorce Trial.

Mrs. Lela Ellis Lavezzo, socially prominent young matron of Chicago, New York, and Greenwich, Conn., was cited for contempt yesterday after she suddenly rose before a jury in Judge Julius Miner's Circuit court and slapped her army officer brother, John B. Ellis, on the cheek as he left the witness stand.

The incident occurred in the jury trial divorce case of Dr. John D. Ellis, surgeon, living at the University club, against his wife, Gilberta, said to reside in the family residence at 4143 Kenmore avenue. Dr. Ellis charges his wife deserted him April 16, 1936.

Wife Files Cross Bill.

She has a cross bill pending against him also charging desertion. Their son, John, 27 years old, a lieutenant in the army medical corps, had just given testimony tending to support his father's charge when his sister, sitting beside her mother, walked toward him as he left the witness stand.

"My father and mother lived apart from 1936 on," Lt. Ellis had testified. "I know they were not on the best of terms. I returned from college in 1936 and found my father sleeping in the maid's room."

The young lieutenant smiled amiably at his sister as she walked toward him. Then smack! Her slap could be heard all over the courtroom.

The judge called the young woman to the bar at once and cited her for contempt of court, but said he will pass sentence after the divorce case is settled.

Dr. Ellis Takes Stand.

Mrs. Lavezzo, who made her debut in 1939, was married to Daniel Lavezzo Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lavezzo of New York and Greenwich, in Geneva, Ill., shortly before Christmas, 1940.

Dr. Ellis, who took the stand immediately after the slapping incident, testified he spent $700 on his daughter's debut. He also testified that in 1932 and 1933 he often had to cook his own meals.

The case is unusual among divorce cases in that it is being heard before a jury. Testimony will be continued today.

Fifth Victim of Aurora Rail Crash Dies of Injury

Harold Alderman, 17 years old, of Oswego, died in St. Charles hospital, Aurora, yesterday, raising to five the death toll of the April 27 train wreck between Aurora and Oswego. Alderman suffered a skull fracture in the collision on the Fox river branch line of the Burlington railroad.

ADMITS SLAYING 3 YEAR OLD GIRL LEFT IN TUNNEL

St. Louis, Mo., May 3 (AP).—Chief of Detectives Fred Egenreither said tonight James Franklin, 21 years old, had confessed the murder of 3 year old Mary Jane Tankersley a few hours after the girl's slashed and semi-nude body was found in a west side pedestrian underpass.

The boy, who lives in the same block as the Tankersley family, led police to the underground passageway and made an oral confession to stabbing and criminally assaulting the girl, Egenreither said.

The underpass, on the edge of wooded Forest Park, is several miles from the girl's home. Her body was discovered by a park watchman on his way to work. A part of the girl's torn clothing was wadded in her mouth.

Detective Capt. Martin Cliffe, who arrested Franklin, said he recently had been involved in a sex offense in the same tunnel.

Mary Jane was the youngest of four children of William Tankersley, an aircraft worker.

SLAYING TRIAL BEGINS TODAY; DEATH SOUGHT

Bruno Jachymiak, 23 years old, will go on trial for murder before a jury in Criminal court today as a result of the state's second refusal before Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday to waive the death penalty in return for a plea of guilty.

Jachymiak already is under a 199 year prison sentence for the slaying of Romano Benessera in a tavern holdup at 4458 South Ashland avenue on April 8, 1942. He was sentenced to the electric chair for the death of Jesus Hurtado in the same robbery. The Hurtado slaying conviction, however, was reversed by the Illinois Supreme court on technical grounds, and Jachymiak now is facing retrial in that case.

James M. Burke, Jachymiak's attorney, offered to accept a second 199 year sentence for his client in return for a guilty plea, but Edmund Grant, assistant state's attorney, rejected the proposal.

LEWIS HITS WLB; RENOUNCES NO STRIKE PLEDGE

Text of His Statement to Policy Board.

New York, May 3 (AP).—Following is the statement made today by John L. Lewis of the policy committee of the United Mine Workers and approved by that group:

"It is unfortunate for the nation that so much confusion has resulted from varied interpretations stating and restating the circumstances and understandings reached by the conferees representing employers, the public, and labor, upon which the no strike pledge of labor made to the President in December, 1941, was based.

No Strike Agreement.

"Labor agreed to refrain from calling strikes and engaging in work stoppages provided the administration would set up a war time labor tribunal that would judicially review and determine wage controversies and shop practices running the whole gantlet of industrial relations. It was labor's understanding that the review of every case was to be predicated upon the factual showing made in each case, and a judicial determination based on such evidence.

"Labor representatives did not agree to accept any set formula nor arbitrary method, upon which mass production adjudication of labor controversies could be handled.

Blames War Labor Board.

"Labor representatives did not agree to suspend or waive labor's right to pursue and enjoy collective bargaining.

"Labor did not agree to vest power in a tribunal to usurp and set aside the statutory labor laws of the nation and the separate states.

"Thus, in the light of these facts, it is plainly evident that the adoption of the 'Little Steel formula' by the war labor board breached the understanding that labor had with representatives of the public, employers, and the administration.

"The war labor board must accept the full responsibility for distress in the ranks of labor created by their contravention of the understanding and commitments arrived at in the December, 1941, conference.

"The time has come when it is necessary, in the interests of American industrial relations and continued uninterrupted production, that truth prevail as regards the no strike pledge of labor."

MARGHERITA CLEMENT.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 3 (AP).—Police stood guard today outside a hospital room where Margherita Clement, 21 years old, a former model, was recovering from stab wounds which Detective George Anderson said were inflicted Saturday night by a soldier at a downtown hotel.

The soldier, Pvt. Sidney Bullen Dunn Jr., also 21, a member of a wealthy Haverford family, was held in $25,000 bail on charges of aggravated assault and battery. Miss Clement's mother, Mrs. J. Browning Clement of Villanova, testified at a hearing for Dunn yesterday that he "once declared he would rather kill Margherita than have her marry another man."

Anderson said Dunn, carrying two knives, approached Miss Clement and five other members of a group attending a farewell party for an army officer and stabbed her, inflicting wounds on the forehead, chest, and scalp.

5 DAY STRIKE OF 1,800 MINERS IN ENGLAND ENDS

LONDON, May 3 (AP).—Some 1,800 men returned to work after a five day strike at two Warwickshire mines which authorities said cost the nation's dangerously small fuel stocks 17,000 tons of coal.

The strike involved local issues and there has been no threat of a general stoppage, comparable to the one in the United States between Friday midnight and Monday morning, since the war started.

Both miners and owners agreed to submit their disputes to mandatory settlement [arbitration] by national and district tribunals.

Discharge Two Seized in Slaying of Model

Ralph Pierce, 38 years old, one of six Chicagoans under indictment in New York in connection with alleged extortions from movie executives, and Leslie Kruse, arrested recently by Town Hall police as suspects in the slaying of Estelle Carey, a model, were discharged yesterday when arraigned in Municipal court before Judge Joseph Drucker on charges of disorderly conduct.

DEMANDS GROW IN CONGRESS FOR NO-STRIKE LAWS

Connally Bill Debated in Senate.

Washington, D. C. May 3.—Despite the truce in the coal strike announced by John L. Lewis last night, congressmen returning from vacations today pressed for immediate legislative action to outlaw such walkouts.

In the senate Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.] introduced a bill, later attacked from the floor, to strengthen the President's power to seize strike bound industries in war time.

In the house Rep. Wright D. Patman, also a Texas Democrat, started circulating a discharge petition for a bill introduced the first day of this session which would in effect outlaw strikes. The bill, now in the judiciary committee, would prohibit "certain acts" interfering with or delaying the national defense program or the "normal government activities."

Connally Bill Increases Powers.

While President Roosevelt already has authority under a property requisitioning law of Oct. 16, 1941, to seize strike bound plants when other means of obtaining production have been exhausted, Connally's bill would clarify and add to these powers. Amendments offered to this bill today included:

1. Designate the WLB as the final authority in any wage dispute within a plant or mine seized by the government.
2. Provide $5,000 fine and one year imprisonment, or both, as the penalty for any strike or lockout in any government seized plant or mine.
3. Permit the President to delegate the seizure authority granted under the act to any government agency he chooses.
4. Limit the seizure power to six months after cessation of hostilities.
5. Eliminate any reference to a new tribunal to judge wage disputes in seized plants or mines.
6. Eliminate the phrase "or other cause" and thus reduce the seizure authority under the bill to labor disturbances.

Discuss Need of Legislation.

The need for such legislation was questioned by both Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and Robert A. Taft [R., O.] in view of the fact that President Roosevelt already had ordered Secretary Ickes to take over the coal mines.

Sen. Taft declared that "the bill as drawn makes no provision for any sort of a hearing before the President takes over for the government operation a strike bound plant. Such an arrangement, the senator charged, would play directly into the hands of those labor organizations seeking government control and nationalization of industry.

"So far as I can see the President may take over the plants simply by saying that he wants to take them over and men who do not comply with his order are immediately subject to the various penalties.

Fears Nationalization of Industry.

"The bill now proposed by the senator from Texas would put it absolutely in the hands of the President to take over any plants and deal with labor in any way he sees fit, and subject them to jail and imprisonment if they did not comply with the order.

"It seems to me a complete abdication of congress in dealing with that authority if they did not set up under the law the proper authority to deal with a problem as serious as this.

"This bill as now proposed puts a premium on the seizure of plants by the government because that is the only way the government could deal with labor situations if we pass that bill. In order to have that authority, it is necessary to seize the plants, control the mines, and nationalize every industry in the United States. There are many labor organizations which would welcome that nationalism and would be glad to stir up the labor dispute for the legislation we are now proposing must necessarily lead to the nationalism of the mines.

"When you come to the question of whether you will impose penalties for refusing to abide by the decisions of the national war labor board rendered under law in accordance with the acts of congress, we can consider that question.

"If that is the only remedy, I am willing to go that far, but I certainly think we should first consider that we should abide by the decisions of the legally constituted bodies in the extremely complicated and difficult labor questions now facing the country," Taft asserted.

ANOTHER BATTLE ON NEW TAX BILL OPENS IN HOUSE

Democrats Seek to Kill Ruml Plan for Good.

Washington, D. C., May 3 (AP).—The finish battle on pay-as-you-go taxation opened today in the house, with Republicans again fighting for the modified Ruml plan to skip a complete income tax year and Democratic leaders intent upon killing the proposal "so dead that it will never again be resurrected."

In the storm of oratory the house cleared the way for a vote tomorrow that may send to the senate a bill wiping out at least half, if not all, of the $10,000,000,000 tax assessed against 1942 individual incomes.

The Democrats were aligned behind a pay-as-you-go bill that would abate about 50 per cent of 1942 taxes.

Doughton Assails G. O. P. Bill.

Opening the debate today, Rep. Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], 79 year old chairman of the ways and means committee, shouted that the Ruml plan was "an iniquitous tax policy."

Republicans replied that the Democratic supported bill was "a seventh heaven for the loan sharks." Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.] charged that the bill amounted to a capital levy, because of its "doubling up" of taxes, and he said "heretofore the only people who have stood for capital levies are the Communists, the Nazis, and the Fascists.

The bill would lower 1941 rates and exemptions to 1942 income: The taxpayer then would pay off this obligation over the next three years [or sooner if he desired] while at the same time paying his current taxes.

Called Sound and Simple.

Rep. Frank Carlson [R., Kas.], author of the bill embracing the Republican supported modified Ruml plan, told the house the skip a tax year proposal was "the only sound and simple method" of placing America's 44,000,000 income taxpayers on a pay-as-you-go basis. He listed the virtues of his bill, as he saw them, as follows:

1. It accomplishes the objective of placing taxpayers on a current, pay-as-you-go basis immediately and not at some distant time.
2. It involves no doubling up in payments.
3. It treats all taxpayers equitably, and is the only plan which abates the 1942 tax assessment on the same progressive principle by which it was imposed.
4. It is the only plan which meets every problem squarely, openly, fairly, and honestly.

Beaten Month Ago.

The Democrats succeeded in beating the Ruml plan a month ago, 215 to 198, but by the maneuvering of the Republicans, under their leader, Martin of Massachusetts, the proposition has come back into the house for another trial.

Doughton called upon the house to kill it for keeps this time. He summarized what he termed "the fallacies and the heterodoxy of this iniquitous tax policy," as follows:

1. "The Ruml plan, which the minority has taken to its bosom, would grant complete tax forgiveness to all taxpayers for one year's taxes. In effect, it would repeal the income tax law for one year and collect only one year's taxes out of two years' income, at a time when taxpayers are or have been enjoying the largest income in our history and the government is in its direst need of revenue."

Calls Plan a Subterfuge.

2. Its adoption "would be seriously injurious to the morale of our people, especially those in the armed forces, since it would result in economic gain rather than sacrifice on the home front."

3. "It would produce an unjustifiable windfall to persons in the higher brackets." [He called anti-windfall provisions in "the latest version of the Ruml-Carlson plan a delusion and subterfuge."]

4. Its greatest benefits would go to those "least deserving them and its greatest burden would fall upon the backs of those least able to bear them."

The bill supported by the Democrats would cancel out about 50 per cent or $5,000,000,000 of the tax liabilities against 1942 individual income. About 7,000,000 persons would be relieved of 1942 taxes completely and the obligations or others would be reduced.

DICK TRACY—MEDITATION

OBITUARIES

Michael L. Sloey.

Funeral services for Michael L. Sloey, 83 years old, who was a Chicago policeman for 30 years, will be held at 9:30 a. m. Thursday from his home, 6228 South Maplewood avenue, to St. Rita's church. Mr. Sloey, who died yesterday in Billings Memorial hospital, was born in a log cabin near Woodstock. A patrolman in the Woodlawn and Grand Crossing districts during most of his service, he was pensioned in 1922. He is survived by a son, Sergt. Ernest J., of the state's attorney's police, and two daughters, Agnes, and Mrs. Loretta O'Connor.

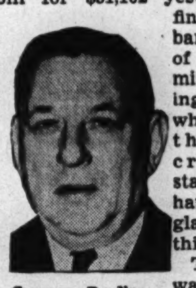
CORONER HANDS COUNTY BOARD BILL FOR $51,102

It Represents 8,517 Fees He Didn't Collect.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Coroner A. L. Brodie presented a bill for $51,102 yesterday to the financially embarrassed board of county commissioners during a meeting in which it was said the county's creditors are standing in line, hats in hands, glad to get anything on account.



Coroner Brodie.

The coroner was asking the county to pay him for 8,517 inquests he has held without collecting fees. He didn't say why he didn't collect the fees. He merely asked the county commissioners to assume the debt and put him on the list of creditors.

In support of his request, which was transmitted to the county board by William Touhy, assistant state's attorney, the coroner submitted what purported to be two certifications. No explanation was furnished as to what the certifications would mean.

Only a Formality: Lyman.

"I certify that I have this day examined the files of the Probate court in my office, in the matter of the following estates as set forth in the attached transcript," said one of the certifications signed by Frank Lyman, clerk of the Probate court.

"I certify that I have this day examined the records, files, and indices of the Probate court in my office in the matter of the attached estates and find that administration has been had upon said estates listed with file numbers and that no administration has been had upon the estates marked 'no,'" said the second document signed by Lyman.

"I don't know what the certifications amount to," said Clerk Lyman. "Certainly I am not certifying that the coroner was unable to collect his fees from any of the cases listed. We checked a list of inquests furnished us to see if there were Probate court estates in any of the names given. Many of the estates are closed; many are still open."

Denies Suit Is Reason.

Coroner Brodie told a reporter the payment to him would be merely a bookkeeping transaction. He said his request to have the county board admit it owes him $51,102 has nothing to do with a suit filed against him a week ago. The suit charges Brodie with having obtained $13,000 illegally from the county—that he took that much more in salary than he collected in fees altho the constitution of the state says his pay shall come only from fees actually collected.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board; Commissioner Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the board's finance committee, and other commissioners declared the Brodie document was a mystery to them. They were having their troubles, they said, trying to pay a little on account to creditors and had no time to worry about Brodie and his $51,102.

Atty. Harry S. Ditchburne, representing the taxpayer who attacked Brodie's salary grabs, said it was apparent Brodie was now trying to have the county pay him for not doing his duty. The law says he should collect a fee from the family of each person over whom an inquest is held, and that, in the event he can't get the fee from the family or from the estate he may then get the fee from the county.

Seeks to Keep $13,000.

Brodie has been coroner for three years during which he failed to collect enough fees to cover his own pay, Atty. Ditchburne said. "Now, after an accounting suit has been filed against him, he is asking the county, by a bookkeeping transaction, to enable him to keep the $13,000 he drew in excess of his fees," Ditchburne explained.

"I fail to see, however, how the county board can take Brodie's side of this controversy," the lawyer said. "The purpose of our suit is to force Brodie to give back $13,000 to the county, which appears to be in need of the money."

Three Bookies Fined $10; 33 Called by Grand Jury

Three handbook operators, arrested last Friday and Saturday, were fined $10 and costs yesterday by Judge Oscar Caplan in Racket court. Cases against thirty-three other defendants were continued when they were served with subpenas for appearance before the grand jury. The men fined were: Daniel McKay, arrested at 170 West Harrison street; Anthony Spalo, seized at 410 Sherman street, and Sam Harris, arrested at 1210 South Michigan avenue.

City Vehicle Tax Drive Awaits Order of Mayor

A drive by police against those who are operating their cars without 1943 city licenses may be launched within the next few days, it was indicated yesterday. Police commissioner John Allman said he was awaiting a request for such a campaign from City Controler Robert B. Upham, who in turn said he planned to confer with Mayor Kelly about it. Sales are running far behind a year ago, when the drive was launched in January.

ROLE RADIO PLAYS IN WAR GIVES HINT OF WORK IN FUTURE

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Technicians are calling this a radio war, mindful of the part it is having in developing tools to out-see, out-hear, and outfight the enemy. During last week's broadcasters' war conference several persons touched on the vital rôle that radar, the radio detection device, is playing in the war.

While technicians are concentrating mainly on pushing the war uses of radio they are looking ahead also to new applications that will come from these developments in peacetime—contributions to science, culture and just ordinary living.

E. W. Engstrom, director of the RCA laboratories at Princeton, N. J., yesterday permitted a glimpse into the future of radio:

"After this war practical applications of the new radio developments will expand quickly to all means of transportation and movement," he stated.

"Airplanes, ships, and ground vehicles will 'see' in all weather conditions and tracks for their movements will be 'rails and channels' of radio. Planes, ships, and motor vehicles may come and go in safety without regard to weather, obstacles or possibility of collision—radio and electronics thru their broad realm of application will make this possible.

"Generators of radio waves will take their place in the factory, in the field and even in the home to heat and to effect various reactions and changes. Such uses will shortly place much more radio-type power in industry than in all radio communication and broadcasting."

COUNCIL GROUP BACKS BILL FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

Hilburn Blasts It as 'a Lot of Rot.'

The city council's committee on judiciary and state legislation approved by a vote of 10 to 3 yesterday proposed state legislation which would give the city the right to acquire substandard property by condemnation or purchase for redevelopment of a blighted area.

The full council is expected to approve the committee's action at its meeting Wednesday, but a fight on the floor of the council was indicated. The three who opposed it in committee yesterday were Ald. Frank O. Hilburn [47th], who described the measure as "a lot of rot"; and Ald. Oscar De Priest [3d] and Ald. William H. Harvey [2], who expressed fear Negroes would be left homeless as a result of it.

"No Money for Anything."

"What are you going to do with such powers when you have no money to utilize them?" Hilburn asked. "This is all a lot of rot. Right now there is no money with which to build curbs and sweep streets. I haven't had a curb fixed in my ward in three years, and there is so much dirt in the streets you could plant war gardens there. Yes, we collect enough taxes, but we never seem to find money for anything."

Ald. George D. Kells [28th], other administration aldermen, and Joseph Grossman, first assistant city corporation counsel, defended the proposed bill on the ground that the authority is necessary in rebuilding the city after the war.

Called Essential to Program.

The measure, an amendment to the cities and villages act, was drafted by the corporation counsel's office at the request of Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council's housing and planning committees. Lindell said it is essential to carrying out the master plan for Chicago and Mayor Kelly's housing program which calls for construction of 500,000 new housing units in Chicago within the next generation.

The amendment would give the city power to "acquire by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise" any building and underlying land needed for redevelopment of blighted areas, and to sell, lease, or exchange the property or hold it for public purposes.

At the recommendation of De Priest the committee deferred action for 60 days on a state bill which would repeal the neighborhood redevelopment corporation act approved two years ago.

$31,341 GIFT PUTS RED CROSS FUND NEARER ITS GOAL

The Red Cross war fund moved nearer its $8,750,000 goal yesterday with a subscription of $31,341 by the Walgreen company, its executives and employés which raised the drive grand total to $7,355,944. Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the drive, said solicitation of gifts will be intensified this week. The campaign workers will concentrate their efforts in rallying 22 of the 61 groups in the business division to subscribe their assigned quotas. Kennelly stressed that a large part of the fund is to be used to maintain the Chicago chapter's blood donor center, surgical dressing production, and packing of packages for prisoners of war.

LAWYER FEARS CITY COURT USE AS DIVORCE MILL

Schnackenberg Assails Non-Resident Cases.

Divorce mills—little Renos—in which marriages may be dissolved on flimsy grounds and without publicity, soon will dot Illinois if divorces granted by a city court to nonresidents of the city are held valid, Elmer J. Schnackenberg, speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, said yesterday before Judge Thomas J. Lynch in Circuit court.

Schnackenberg was arguing the case of John F. Cullen Jr., 23 years old, 10635 Avenue A, a watchman, seeking an annulment of his marriage to Harriet Stevens Cullen, 19. Cullen charges that Harriet's divorce from her first husband, Paul Stevens, obtained in the City court at Calumet City, was invalid and that therefore his marriage to her is void.

Wife Sues for Divorce.

Schnackenberg was replying to statements of Attys. Sol R. Friedman and Arthur K. Young. Friedman is in the case as an expert on divorce law and a friend of the court. Young filed a counter bill for divorce for Mrs. Cullen, charging an attempt on her life by Cullen.

Judge Lynch told the lawyers: "I could never understand why any one wants to go from Chicago to Reno for divorce. If I recollect rightly, there have been several divorces here in which the case was filed in the morning and the dissolution made legal after a quiet hearing in the afternoon."

Tells of Assault Charge.

Atty. Friedman told the court that a 1939 amendment to the divorce laws provided city courts may grant divorces to persons living anywhere in the same county, provided the defendant makes a court appearance.

Mrs. Cullen lives at 8818 Indiana avenue with a child by her first marriage.

Judge Lynch indicated he will rule in the case next Monday. In a similar case involving a Chicagoan's divorce in Aurora he ruled that city court divorces were invalid.

WILLIAM FOX RELEASED FROM FEDERAL PRISON

Lewisburg, Pa., May 3 (AP).—William Fox, one time multimillionaire motion picture producer, was released today from the Northeastern federal penitentiary after serving five and one-half months of a year and a day sentence on charges of conspiring to obstruct justice and defraud the United States in connection with his bankruptcy proceedings.

Warden William E. Hiatt said Fox was met by his wife and daughter who planned to drive him to New York City.

The former movie producer pleaded guilty to conspiring with retired United States Circuit Judge J. Warren Davis and Morgan S. Kaufman, former bankruptcy referee. Davis and Kaufman were indicted on similar charges, but two juries failed to agree and the charges against them later were dropped. Fox was fined $3,000 in addition to the prison sentence.

COUNTY LIQUOR LICENSE RUSH AHEAD OF 1942

Prospective proprietors of road houses and country taverns are gambling on a good business this summer despite tire and gasoline rationing and even tho liquor may soon be rationed as well, it was indicated yesterday by license figures released by Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board and ex officio liquor control commissioner for the unincorporated districts. The date for renewal of licenses was May 1. But last night 158 licenses had been applied for, compared with 149 by the evening of May 3 last year. A total of 350 licenses were issued thruout 1942, and according to present indications there may be more this year. The fee for a license to sell liquor in the unincorporated areas is $200.

Ballet Added to Program of Piano Concert

Last evening's concert of the Chicago Piano Symphony orchestra, the third and last concert of a series of three under Antoinette Rich's direction, proved beyond all shadow of a doubt that pieces for one piano and concertos for one piano with orchestra do not increase in interest in the ratio of 19 to 1.

There were two concerto movements on the program; the first, played by the very talented young pianist Edwin Gordon, was abstracted with some violence from Beethoven's first concerto. How much better would it have been if Master Gordon had had some chance of exercising his technique and tone against some degree of contrasting timbre besides his own, intensified by what seemed a hundredfold. Miss Helen Pullafito suffered the same indignity in the first movement of the Schumann piano, but she was even more harried for she had some wayward tempi to contend with in addition.

Something new was added with the inclusion of the Nutcracker Suite as a ballet with choreography by Gladys Hight. I was unable to see this in its entirety, but what I did see was not impressive as ballet grouping and movement.

Miss Rich devoted the first half of her program to her "Youth Piano Symphony Orchestra." No doubt this kind of ensemble playing is good in some disciplinary ways, but one finds it difficult to escape the feeling that he is attending a somewhat glorified student piano recital. This feeling is especially strong when Liszt's "Liebestraum" and "The Flight of the Bumble Bee" assume importance under the spotlight. Such program choices seem more than ever to confirm the artistic futility of combining many instruments of identical timbre for group performance. S. G.

Arden Shore Camp Annual Homecoming to Be Held May 16

The annual Homecoming day at the Arden Shore camp has been remodeled to suit the times. Instead of the customary all day festivities which include luncheon and tea for board members and supper for the boys of the camp, there will be only a reunion picnic for the old boys. The date remains the same as always, the third Sunday in May—the 16th this year—and according to plans the alumni will bring along their own lunch boxes. Dessert will be provided by the camp. There will be no formal program and no speakers, but board members and other friends of the camp are invited to drop in during the afternoon. Miss Anna Belle Ferrier is executive head of the camp. Mrs. Robert B. Gregory is honorary chairman of the board. The summer camp for mothers and children will open at the end of June.

Clear and True Is Dainty Voice of Lily Pons

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

When a co-starring formula means capacity at the box office, managers are not likely to tinker with that formula, which is why one Lily Pons-André Kostelanetz concert is nostalgically like another. Nothing had changed last night when at the Civic Opera house the tiny coloratura made her first appearance of the Chicago season with her conductor husband at the helm of a locally assembled orchestra. The house was sold out even to the orchestra pit, Miss Pons resembled a dream walking, and the music consisted of operatic arias and the kind of standard repertory program a conductor can play most easily with a strange orchestra.

By this time the world which idolizes Miss Pons has no desire to turn her into a great coloratura soprano with dazzling pyrotechnics executed full voice in coruscating splendor. It is more than content with the silky daintiness of her voice and the fastidious skill with which she makes the most of it, even to that strange little sound with which she invades the musical stratosphere. Her technique is clean and charming, her voice now and then warms to a smiling radiance, and she has personality, plus. Last night, she was a figurine in palest blue and white, hooped as to skirt, with a pert little cap to match, holding a clump of American Beauty roses in brief gloves of their exact color. Despite a slight cold which sometimes threatened to ravel the exquisite thread of her voice, she gave a performance that was showmanship personified.

Except for one excursion into the frail realm of Faure's lovely song, "Les Roses d'Ispahan," Miss Pons clung to opera. She sang Verdi's "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto," Rosina's air from Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," and Donizetti's Mad Scene from "Lucia." It was an expert performance despite the threat of a scratchy throat, and her Donizetti scales had the shadowy ebb and flow that gives the Ophelia quality of the music its eerie texture. Such arias mark the facet of Miss Pons' polished career which has brought her fame and fortune, and she would be foolish to neglect it. But I still hope to hear her sing Melisande, and perhaps even "Le Jongleur." She has more, as the palmists say, in her left hand of operatic possibilities than in her right hand of accomplishments.

Meanwhile Mr. Kostelanetz was marching thru the Overture to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," pausing at Moussorgsky's "Daybreak" from "Khovantchina" and winding up at a terrific clip with the Capriccio Espagnol of Rimsky-Korsakoff. I doubt if the fandango has been played faster in the history of man. On the whole Mr. Kostelanetz was conducting rather rigidly, perhaps because of the strange orchestra. But it was a reliable orchestra, made up of some of the town's best men, and it responded to his beat with skilled precision. The result was competent playing, but by no means brilliant.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY

Look What the Sun Has Done to Me.

"I have never seen so sweet an entrance to any library, anywhere," I said as I sat down in the office of Mrs. Breathitt, director of the Carnegie library in Tucson, Ariz. The fragrance of the paliverde still lingered and the feathery foliage about the doorway, with the overhanging chartreuse blossoms, was enough to take any one far afield from the world of books.

The white haired director merely smiled. She understood. She understood so well the lure of the out of doors that long ago she instituted classes for children in the sunny patio where grade children might come for instruction. These classes for school children were Mrs. Breathitt's idea because she found, thru her years of experience, that few persons know how to use a library; how to find the information they seek; how to make the best possible use of the books.

The children's room and patio are dear to the heart of the quiet voiced librarian, and on a tour of the library she took me there first to see the posters the children had made recently to encourage better care of library books. Most of the children who made the posters were Mexicans, small, agile, brown children, eager to learn. The posters were brilliant in coloring and bold in design. Thru them the books spoke such warnings as: "Please keep me nice and clean!" . . . or "I'm all torn and dirty" . . . or "Now I feel better" [a mended book] . . . or "My back sure hurts" [a book with a broken back] . . . or "Take good care of me; I am a friend of yours" . . . or "I'm happy because I have a good master" [a music book with gay singing notes on it.]

The children's room isn't the only active spot in the library.

"My Supreme court hasn't convened yet," Mrs. Breathitt said, "but when it does you shall see my 'nine old men' who come daily to fight the Civil war."

And, like most libraries, the staff is besieged hourly with questions [of which a record is kept].

"One woman," said the director, "called the library to inquire how to pack spectacles for mailing."

"Do the boys from Davis-Monthan field drop in to the library?" I asked. Yes, and the library has been busy collecting books for camps, too. Thirty-three thousand books were collected.

"What about the white collar girls?" I asked. "What sort of books do they read?" Some of them read educational books for job advancement, I was told. It is not at all unusual for a young woman to approach the desk and ask for a book on welding or blueprinting. But most of the girls read novels, and many of them, especially those who have come from long distances, read books on their home states and cities—evidence, at times, of that familiar malady, homesickness.

At present there is great stir about the library because it is preparing for an exhibit next week of books banned in Germany. The books will be displayed beneath an eight foot Statue of Liberty with a cross on either side. A placard on one cross will say: "You can kill a soldier" . . . and on the other the card will say: "You can burn their books." "But you cannot extinguish the flame of freedom that burns in the hearts and minds of men" a third placard will read.

It was hard to leave the little library amid the fragrant paliverde. The girls on the staff stepped forward to say good-by. One came originally from Lake Forest and one from Peoria. They love Arizona, they said . . . love it, all except the torrid summer. Then they looked at each other and laughed, remembering the incident of the woman who [when "The Sun Is My Undoing" was a best seller] came to the library in search of a book [on a sizzling day] called "Look What the Sun Has Done to Me."

Big Sisters Have Annual Business Meeting Today

The annual business meeting and tea of the Big Sisters, an organization of Catholic women giving aid and guidance to underprivileged girls, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the House of Biggs, 30 East Huron street, with Mrs. Charles H. Moody presiding. Headlining the program are talks by Msgr. J. G. Kealy and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, the latter appearing as a Red Cross representative. Officers and committee heads will give annual reports.

Wanted: Home for Orphan in World Storm!

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Frances is 4 years old. She has blue eyes and limp, blond hair that could be a halo around her pinched, old-young, little face. Not long ago the police found her in a shabby, unheated flat attempting to distract the hungry, frightened wails of her tiny brother, Joey, 2, and her sister, Shelia, 1. With her thin, little arms around each of their shoulders she was assuring them that "daddy and mamma" would be home soon.

But "daddy and mamma" were out for the evening. In fact, this was not the first time they had left their young brood for an evening of gayety. Several times their sprees lasted longer than a day and a night and the youngsters were left to their own devices.

Frances was on the verge of pneumonia when the police took her to Cook county hospital. Her baby brother and sister were brought to a child welfare agency. Frances' convalescence has been slow because she worries about them constantly.

Will some Chicagoan give her a home where she can forget the responsibilities of an adult and live the happy life of a normal child?

This is the type of question that will be asked today at the formal opening of Chicago's United Home Finding campaign at a luncheon in the Hotel La Salle.

The city's 10 welfare agencies under the sponsorship of the Council of Social Agencies have united to find 2,000 fosterhomes this month. The war has taken its toll of the number of available foster homes thruout the city and at the same time has increased the number of dependent, neglected, and illegitimate children who must be cared for by the community.

There are children whose fathers, blithe and patriotic, enlisted in the army or navy while mothers still were able to care for them. In some instances the mothers have died and in others have become ill.

All need homes temporarily. They are not for adoption. Some day—and it is the aim of the welfare agencies to rehabilitate their lives to make it possible—they will return to their own parents. In the meantime, they need the love and safe protection of a real home. The agencies will pay for their board, clothes, and medical care. The children, themselves, will repay foster parents with laughter and affection.

Billy and Bobby are war casualties. Their father is in the army and their mother has abandoned them to be near her husband in a southern army camp. Billy is 2, with bright red hair and around, laughing face. His brother is 3, quiet with grave blue eyes.

For some time the children's grandparents attempted to care for them, but age and poverty have made this practically impossible. Neither child knows what a nap is and Billy thinks that food is made to be thrown at Bobby, rather than eaten. They are babies who need a mother, not an institution.

Jennie was 10 years old when her mother, a business woman, died. Her father previously had gone to war. Tearful and uncertain, Jennie one day appeared at a welfare agency. Tagging along behind her were her two younger brothers.

During the illness of her mother, Jennie had assumed the responsibilities of nurse and mother. The shock of her death, however, turned her once more into a child, unable to grapple with the problems of the adult world. All of them need a home, the thousands of little waifs whom the war and tragic circumstances have turned into refugees of society. Today, the Council of Social Agencies will ask the city to do something about it thru the United Home Finding campaign, 343 South Dearborn street, phone Wabash 2314.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

Wake Up, Chum.

It came the other day, one of those letters that you are certain must have been written in fun. It was signed "Sincere Reader," and we read it once, and again, and again, and the more we read it, the more convinced we were that here was neither fun nor irony; here was real pique.

The letter was from a gentleman who protested that altho he had carried a gold credit card to a certain Chicago hotel for more than 20 years, the hotel's liquor store refused to sell him more than a quart of liquor.

"Not one quart of Bourbon and one quart of Scotch," he wrote, "but just one bottle—and take my choice. And, of course, they have no gin, and haven't had for nearly a year. Have you tried the terrible vodka cocktails? Get your last martini in the —— [hotel] tonight, and you'll switch to straight shots of anything, but quick.

"In his apologies the clerk said they didn't sell guests at the hotel more than one bottle these days, and for all, get this, only one bottle a month to charge customers. Same to guys with same name and room number residing in the hotel. No once per day lineup for the eyeopener, either. Heaven take care of conventioneers with hangovers. They'll have to search the loop for respectable taverns. The ——[hotel] has gone to—war!"

Dear Sincere Reader, this column's great big heart bleeds for you. It bleeds for you as freely as it does for the oil magnate from Oklahoma who came to town two weeks ago and bought $20,000 worth of liquor at a store we could name. It bleeds for the big business man from the east who bought $10,000 worth at the same store. It bleeds and bleeds. How are you, any of you, going to struggle along?

In writing your protest against the indignity imposed upon you, possessor of a gold credit card, was there by any chance a window behind your desk? And does some one climb out that window every morning to hang a service flag with the numeral 509 below its blue star and a gold star below that? Did you know all of those 509 by name or face? That is what hangs out the window behind this desk.

Have you been in a railroad station in the last year and a half? Have you seen the troop trains come thru? Have you seen soldiers or sailors or marines staggering beneath heavy duffel bags, tired, exhausted, uncomplaining? Have you seen a sailor or a marine limping back on invalid survival leave? Were you out near the Field museum the other day when three companies of soldiers marched down into a tunnel and did you hear the brave echo of their voices float back into the sun as they sang ". . . by the light of the moon . . ."?

Did you know anybody on the Juneau? or the Arizona? or the Lexington? or the Yorktown? or the Wasp? Do you know anybody at Guadalcanal? or Wake Island? or Tunisia? or interned in Ankara? or in the Japanese prison camp in Manila? Do you know anybody on a destroyer or a subchaser or a Flying Fortess, in the desert, in the jungle, or in the frozen tundra, that you'd like to see again? If you don't, can't you read the daily papers?

That must be a lovely, smug little world you have wrapped your gold credit card around. Do keep it to yourself.

Thru the Looking Glass

Next to using slathers of face rouge, nothing can give a face such a hard, but unsophisticated, effect as eyebrows plucked to a hairline.

Brows are important to the beauty of eyes and to the expression of the face in general. If the line is right with the shape of the eye and the contour of the face, you're more often than not absolutely unconscious of it. And that's as it should be. It harmonizes perfectly, But if the line is all wrong, you're immediately aware of it. It becomes conspicuous, and that is not as it should be.

The thing to remember before you do some free-hand line changing is that ninety-nine times out of a hundred Nature knows best. The natural line, we've found, almost always follows the shape of the upper lip and as a rule that's beautifully right for the face. A radical change from this may give you a weird effect.

Grooming is necessary, of course. The stragglers that grow over the bridge of the nose and that dot the area just below and above the thickest part of the brows should be cleared away. This alone helps the eyes seem larger and invariably makes the whole face trimmer. But don't go a little crazy when you get those tweezers in your hand. The hairline eyebrow is, thank heaven, unfashionable now, but it's to be avoided on aesthetic grounds as well. It gives a vapid, surprised look to the most intelligent face.

String along with the natural line. If you feel that it's unbearably wrong, have an expert do some corrective shaping—at least for the first few times you attempt it. Once you have the corrections you like you can keep them. But in general it's best to have brows too heavy rather than too thin.

News of War Time Weddings Holds Special Interest Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEWS of two weddings that were hastily arranged to suit the plans of war time bridegrooms is of interest. Mr. and Mrs. George E. Pfisterer of Evanston are giving a luncheon at the Woman's Athletic club today to announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to Lt. Walton N. Kling of the army air forces. The announcement of the wedding date is made simultaneously, for Lt. Kling received an unexpected leave and the wedding has been arranged for 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Exmoor Country club. A dinner for the two families will follow.

Miss Pfisterer was graduated from Northwestern university. The bridegroom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy A. Kling, also of Evanston, is a graduate of the Wharton school of finance and commerce of the University of Pennsylvania.

George Pfisterer Jr. is attending the army air forces meterology school at Chapel Hill, N. C., and won't be here for the wedding. Lt. Kling has two sisters, Mrs. John Oliver and Mrs. Franklin Morr, and a brother, Leroy Jr., who all will be present. After the wedding Lt. Kling and his bride will motor to Denver, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. Pfisterer are living at the Orrington hotel in Evanston, having just sold their home. Miss Pfisterer has been active with the Chicago committee of the Arden Shore association.

Betty Booth's Marriage in Boston Is Disclosed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Miller Booth of Glencoe just have returned from Boston where their daughter, Betty, was married to Lt. Harold Rosenwald suddenly last Saturday when the bridegroom was given leave between completing a naval reserve training course at Dartmouth and entering a further course at Princeton. The ceremony took place at the Kenmore hotel.

The bride, who has been serving as a lawyer with the board of economic warfare in Washington, D. C., declined to make a formal debut after she had decided to take up the study of law. She is a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school, of the University of Chicago, and of Northwestern university's law school. She was admitted to the bar in 1941, following in the footsteps of her two lawyer brothers, Knox and Sherman Jr. Their mother was a leader in the woman's suffrage movement. The young Sherman Booths now are living in Washington.

Lt. Rosenwald, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rosenwald of Boston, was graduated from Harvard university's law school. He was assistant general counsel of the board of economic warfare before volunteering in the navy.

Virginia Alling's Wedding Will Take Place May 15.

May 15 is the date decided upon for the marriage of Miss Virginia Alling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Alling of Euclid avenue, and Arthur Bethke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bethke of Beverly Hills. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock in Bond chapel of the University of Chicago and will be followed by a reception at the South Shore Country club.

Miss Nancy Alling, the bride's younger sister, has returned from Bennett junior college to be maid of honor, and Capt. Robert Bethke, who is stationed in New York, will be best man for his brother. Other members of the bridal party will be the bride's cousin, Gay Tuttle of Glencoe; Mrs. Jay Collin of St. Joseph, Mich.; Mrs. John Fraine, and Miss Patricia Kelly. Stephen Hibben of Wilmette, 5 year old cousin of the bride, will be ring bearer.

The bridegroom recently completed an intensive army training course at the Harvard graduate school of business. After completing further training he will receive his officer's commission in September.

Mrs. Robert N. Wolf has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Virginia Mary, to Lt. Lawrence Andrew Doyle of the army at 11 o'clock next Saturday morning at Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Lt. Doyle will take his bride to live in Washington, D. C., where he is stationed.

Anne Boswell Wedding Also Is Set for May 15.

It is a disappointment to the young friends of Miss Anne Boswell and Jack H. Monroe, who are to be married on May 15, that Mrs. Donald Ryerson [Shirley Strotz] of San Angelo, Tex., and Miss Louise Strawn of Phoenix, Ariz., will not be returning to Lake Forest to be among Miss Boswell's bridesmaids. Another Lake Forester, Mrs. William H. Mitchell Jr. [Modrea Mullen] and Mr. Mitchell, are coming, however, from Miami, Fla., where he is stationed with the ferry command, and will entertain at cocktails sometime during the week before the ceremony.

A number of parties have been planned for Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky's popular daughter and the Walter D. Monroe's younger son. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Joan Monroe, is giving a kitchen shower on the 12th, and Charles Armour, the A. Watson Armours' younger son, will give a dinner that night at the Onwentsia club. Mrs. Alexander H. Revell Jr. is giving a bathroom shower on the 13th, and Mr. and Mrs. Starosselsky will give the bridal dinner the next night at the Onwentsia. Two of the ushers, Robert Postell and James McCarty, are planning a dinner and theater party for another night of that week.

Several Parties Planned for Josephine Wallace.

Miss Josephine Mary Wallace and Richard Wood KixMiller, who also are to be married May 15, will be the center of a series of parties preceding the ceremony.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William KixMiller of Wilmette, will be having a brief vacation from his duties with the rationing division of the office of price administration in Washington, D. C., to attend some of the prenuptial affairs and to take his bride on a short wedding trip afterward to Virginia. They will live in Washington.

Mrs. William Darrow, the former Miss Anita Straub, will be matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Jean KixMiller, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Priscilla Blackett, Mrs. Lester Tibbals Jr. of New York City, the former Miss Christina Freeman of Winnetka, and Mrs. James Stanton [Lucy Keeler]. Gordon Kiddoo of Winnetka will arrive from Cornell university to act as best man.

Mrs. Darrow gave a "co-educational" kitchen shower Saturday night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Straub, in Winnetka. Miss Blackett is giving the spinster dinner in her home

Women in War Work

—By Kate Massee—

Thirty-one WAVES recently completed four weeks of intensive training at the United States Naval hospital at the Great Lakes Naval Training station to become members of the first class of hospital corps women trained there. With the red cross of the hospital corps emblazoned on their sleeves they received ranks ranging from hospital apprentices, second class, to pharmacists' mates.

These ratings came after long and hard hours of work for the women in navy blue. They studied in the classroom, and they translated to action in hospital wards the theories they learned in the classroom. They learned how to make beds the way the navy thinks beds should be made. They learned how to give bed baths, read temperatures and respiration, and take a pulse. They can administer medicine, manage a ward, and give a routine hypodermic. They learned about the eyes, ears, nose, and throat, and the treatment of infections to which they are subject. They had courses in dietetics, on pre and post operation care, and on the treatment of orthopedic patients. And now they are ready to take over in naval shore hospitals, relieving hospital corps men for duties where the navy sees action.

These young women came to the naval hospital from boot training at Hunter college in New York to become the first residents of new barracks built there for them. The barracks eventually will accommodate about 200, but the 31 young women made themselves at home on the second floor while hammering and building went on below.

They slept in double deck beds, which, according to the sailors who moved them in, are both wider and softer than those occupied by navy men. A large recreation room separates the sleeping quarters from the showers and laundry. The show spot in the shower section is the pale lavendar bathtub, the only one of its kind in the barracks.

Ensign Jeanette Oberndorfer, a native of Milwaukee, is supervisor of the WAVES at the post. She hopes to get some curtains for the barracks to soften the military bareness of the place.

Altho scheduled to arise at 6 o'clock each morning, Daris E. Phillips, the master-at-arms of the group, said she usually awakened everybody at 5:45 o'clock, because most of them were a little slow. Between then and 7 o'clock, when chow was served, the girls put their barracks—and themselves—in shipshape. After chow they reported to the wards to which they were assigned for duty or to classes, depending upon their schedule. During their free time most of the girls slept, for 5:45 was pretty early for most of them.

Members of this first class were from all parts of the country. Miss Phillips of Pittsburgh, Pa., is a former physical education and a Red Cross first aid instructor. She has a B. S. degree in physical education.

The young women enlisted in the corps for various reasons. Some felt useless in their peace time jobs and realized the urgency for this form of service. A few, like Patricia Lou Agne, 1327 Central avenue, Evanston, have relatives in action. Mrs. Mary Falicita Lang, 1329 South 51st court, Cicero, felt that by joining she was speeding a reunion with her husband, John, an officer candidate at Fort Riley, Kas. She was an assistant buyer in a department store and a former student nurse.

Originally from Big Timber, Mont., Miss Marguerite Joan Alden worked as a government clerk for the treasury department in Chicago for 20 months before joining the WAVES. Somewhere in their backgrounds, members of the hospital corps units have training that paved the way for their assignment to this branch of service. Mary Eskridge, to whom Pulaski, Va., is home, was a dental assistant. Helen Lintner of Oregon was an industrial nurse. Cathérine O'Malley of San Francisco and Sadie Pinola of Michigan were medical secretaries. Betsy Holmes of New Hampshire was a laboratory assistant and Charlotte Dengler of California was an office nurse.

A new class of 50 is expected to begin training soon under Lt. [j. g.] Alice Stolp, chief nurse at the nursing school. When they finish an even larger class of women will train to serve in navy blue.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Glasses Cases Take on Beauty and New Utility

BY REA SEEGER.

The problems peculiar to girls who wear glasses have been thoughtfully considered. We who delve into handbags seeking our shopping or reading glasses know only too well how difficult the delving is in times of haste. The answer to such confusion is a new case.

Not the dull commercial case that unimaginative manufacturers provide with the glasses at the time of purchase, but feminine decorative affairs that are utilitarian even tho giddily colorful. When you hunt desperately and myopically for your glasses, they will be much easier to find if tucked into a scarlet moire envelope, or a lipstick red leather or a bright blue grosgrain ribbon case.

If you go 'round your day in tweeds and snappy wool tailleurs, the handsome beige, copper, dull blue, and even black leathers stitched in contrasting beige thread in saddle pattern are proper for such swanky fabrics of bag or suit or coat. These are distinguished looking cases. What's more, you can find them at the first poke into the bag.

For the esthetes, see the brocaded beauties—veritable works of art—so skillfully matched and sewn. These are made of shimmering and colorful brocades, silver and black or blue, soft rose and gold, a few effective stripes and dotted effects, some stunning Chinese bits, and others equally ideal for evening bags. After shopping for these important cases you can select two or three different models of glass cases to wear with your entire wardrobe.

Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Rice of Stony Island avenue announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Berry, to Ensign Alan Morley Robertson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Oswald H. Robertson of Dorchester avenue. The wedding will take place on Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock in Bond chapel of the University of Chicago. Miss Rice attended the University High school and is a graduate of the University of Chicago. She also took a year's post-graduate work in home economics in preparation for a master's degree. Her fiancé, who is in the navy medical reserve corps, stationed at Billings hospital, is a graduate of the University High school and the University of Chicago.

Campion Mothers' Club.

The Rev. Thomas J. Stemper, president of Campion, the Jesuit school at Fond du Lac, Wis., will be guest speaker today at the annual spring luncheon of the Campion Mothers' club in the Crystal room of the Palmer House.

Children's Hospital to Exhibit Antique Baby Food Utensils

An unusual collection of pediatric antiques, ranging from infants' feeding vessels used in Greece 24 centuries ago to those of the present day, will be exhibited at Children's Memorial hospital, 707 Fullerton avenue, as a feature of Hospital day observance on May 12. Items include a castor oil spoon with an arrangement for blowing the oil down the baby's throat thru a long handle.

Hospital day celebrations will stress the need of nurses this year. At Children's Memorial, the nurses' home will be open from 3 to 5 p. m. as part of the program.

Besides the display of feeding vessels, the hospital also will show the type of toys that may be brought to children in the hospital and the type that are hazardous.

INSTALMENT XX.
CONFESSION.

Brant drummed on his desk with a pencil after he had hung up and then he telephoned Paul Sutton and asked him to drop down to Experimental. The chief engineer said he would be down during the noon hour. Brant turned back to his work and patiently waited.

When Sutton arrived Brant nodded him to a chair and paced the floor before him. Then he sat on the edge of the desk and appraised the engineer. Suddenly he asked, "You're married, aren't you?"

The engineer was startled and stared at him with round eyes. "Why, yes. Three children, two boys and a girl."

"That so? Nice family. I suppose they have great respect for their father, chief engineer of a big plant like this—"

Sutton's eyes nervously slid away and he looked down at the floor. Brant said, "Ashamed of yourself, aren't you? How did Harmon manage to pull you into this deal? Money, threats, blackmail of some kind—?"

Sutton cleared his throat and whispered, "I don't know what you're talking about."

"I'm afraid you do."

Brant lit a cigaret, blew out a puff of smoke and said, "You're a good man, Sutton. You have done some great things and you have it in you to do even more of them. This plant can use a man like you."

Sutton flared up, "If you think you can fire me—Evidently you don't know the terms of the Barlow will."

"I do, tho. Only the president of the corporation has the power to hire and fire. Of course, with my vote, I could assume the presidency and do what I pleased. But that would mean dropping Experimental and I'm not fool enough to think I can run both jobs. But you could run Experimental."

Sutton gasped. "I?"

"Right. I'm offering it to you. Do you want it?"

Sutton clenched his hands and stared out the window. It was evident that he wanted it, but he shook his head. "I—I can't take it."

"In too deeply, I suppose. I thought so. Okay. There's nothing I can do about that. But I am going to let you in on a little piece of information that you will do well to think about, long and hard. Those kids of yours might have to change their minds about their father. I'd hate to see that happen as much as you would."

"What—what is it?"

"I was just talking with Gen. Holland. He happens to be an old friend of mine. He was an observer in Spain while I was fighting in Russian Moscas. Showed him how to fly one of them. Then he was adviser to Chiang Kai-shek when I was stationed at Chungking. We occasionally banged around together. But what I mean to point out is that he knows me well. He knows I am no phony, that I am not a liar and that he can trust me. Understand? He's coming out here to look things over. And what I have to tell him he will pay attention to. I'm going to lay the whole thing in his lap, all of it, what I know and what I suspect. And if he believes me, which I have every reason to think that he will, you and your cohorts are going to be subject to a terrific military investigation. The general, you know, packs a whale of a lot of authority."

Brant stamped out his cigaret and turned his searching eyes upon Sutton. The engineer had paled to a ghastly gray and his hands were starting to shake. Sutton was cracking up. Brant held his breath and waited.

Sutton finally turned distressed eyes upon him and cried, "Why, man, I can't do anything. Don't you realize that? Kane Harmon——"

"Kane Harmon! I can handle him."

"No, you can't. No one can handle him. There's too much involved, too many millions. He's a man who covets power, who'll do anything to get it."

"There are a lot of others like that in the world today. They're being handled."

"But not Kane. You haven't managed to do anything to him. He doesn't care what you're doing here in Experimental because he can step in at the right moment and smash it all. I understand that thru Mrs. Regan——"

"I'll tie her hands. Or maybe you will. Now, how did you get pulled into this thing?"

Sutton looked down at his trembling hands and clasped them together. His shoulders drooped and his head sagged. "Well," he said, licking his dry lips with the tip of his tongue, "you may not believe it, I am not what you would call the romantic type——"

"Holy smokes! Carol Jaffe?"

"Who?"

"O. Mistake. Go on."

"Well, Mrs. Sutton, the mother of my children, passed on some time ago. There was a young girl who worked for Kane, one of the secretaries, very attractive—I was lonely, you understand."

"I see. Much younger than you."

"Yes. I was rather surprised when she accepted me——"

"I'm not. Harmon's technique is beginning to sound a trifle shopworn. He's in a rut. But I'll finish it for you. After she married you she spent money, plenty of it, more than you made. You became involved, badly involved and you couldn't see a way out of it. Harmon offered you that way out."

"Well, in a manner of speaking. You see, I helped myself to some company funds, which Harmon knew about——"

"There's nothing new about it, Sutton. It's an old story." He took the engineer by the shoulders and lifted him out of the chair. "Look, man, I'll pull you out. I promise it. But I need your help to do it. Do you have confidence in me?"

"I am beginning to have."

"Good. Mrs. Regan hasn't. So I want you to tell her the whole story. It won't go any farther than just the three of us. Will you do it?"

Sutton straightened and he looked into Brant's eyes. "Yes, I will. I'm sick and tired of the whole thing. I haven't had a decent night's sleep in a year. I'll do it."

"Good stuff. You know where I live. You be at my apartment tonight at 9 o'clock. Don't tell your wife, or any one, where you're going. And, Sutton, we'll lick this thing together."

The engineer smiled. "Yes, we will. You know, I feel better already."

"Of course you do. But, man, you should know how I feel!"

When Brant entered the apartment that night he was still whistling the same little tune under his breath. He felt good. He had not felt so good in a long while. Sutton would break the whole thing for him, Dian could not help believe him and he would continue with his work in Experimental. It's a cinch, he thought. Everything is lovely.

Dian was at the dining table with Aunt Hattie. They had finished dinner and were just having coffee. The two of them were startled at his entrance.

Brant said, "Didn't think I was that late."

Dian coldly replied, "You aren't late. We thought we would be gone before you arrived."

"O. Welcome home." He called in the butler to serve his dinner and sat down at the table. Dian started to rise, but Brant growled, "Sit down and stay there."

"Why—"

"You heard me. Sit down. You too, Aunt Hattie. I'll tie the two of you down if you don't. I'm not kidding."

Aunt Hattie glared at him. "I believe you would, you blackguard."

"You bet I would." Dian sat down and Brant said, "I have something to talk about. You're going to listen, both of you. I'm glad you're here tonight, Aunt Hattie. We're going to have a visitor, and I would like you to hear what he has to say as well as Dian."

Dian, in spite of an affected indifference, was interested. "Who are you talking about?"

[Have you some household help that lightens labor or conserves materials? Is there some convenience you would like? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers.]

Elinor P., Chicago: No longer do I throw away the bones from a roast of beef. Those bones go right into cold water and simmer for some hours, and I always have excellent soup stock on hand.

Mrs. John Burns, Pittsburgh, Pa.: I keep a piece of oil cloth in the pantry. When I need some "sprinkling space" on my ironing board, I put the oil cloth on the board, then go ahead and "dampen" my clothes.

Mrs. Freddy G., Chicago: It seems to me I'm always sewing up buttonholes on the underwear of the men in my family and also the children. Wouldn't it be a big help if manufacturers would elasticize those buttonholes that are forever in need of mending?

Mrs. C. D. Richards, 1255 Taylor street, Chicago: Whenever I have leftover pieces of onion or green pepper or any other vegetable, parsley and celery included, I wash and dry them and place them in a small glass baking dish, in the refrigerator. They'll keep quite a time this way.

Many a modern cook neglects the "stock pot" of her grandmother. This is a mistake, especially in war time when we must utilize the last scrap of meat and all the flavor there may be in the bones.

"Stock" is broth or the extracted flavor of meat and vegetables which may be used as a base for soup, gravy, and a dozen or more fine sauces. It has little food value in itself, but carries much good flavor.

A clever woman I know saves all the meat bones, bacon rinds, scraps of vegetables during the week and on Saturday makes her stock for next week's cooking. She might have on hand, we'll say, these ingredients at the end of a week: A bone from a pot roast of beef, a slice of bone and marrow from a slice of ham, and a few fatty ham trimmings, a piece of bacon rind, some celery tops, a few carrots.

These things she'll toss into her soup pot together with a little fresh beef stew meat, if she can get it. A bay leaf, a few peppercorns, a couple of onions, salt and a generous amount of water go into the pot. The stock simmers gently for as long as four hours, by which time a good deal of flavor has been extracted from the bones, meat, and vegetables. The stock is then strained into glass jars, which are stored in the refrigerator to be used as needed. Cover after the stock has cooled.

Stock doesn't keep very well. It should be used within four or five days of preparation. Try it in "white sauce" in place of all or part of the milk. Use it as a base for thin and thickened soups of all kinds. Cook vegetables in it to give them added flavor.

When you've pan broiled or fried meat, pour boiling water into the cooking skillet and then add this flavorsome extract to your stock. Even after making gravy, there's usually enough flavor left in the pan to make a contribution to the stock.

The bones, skin, neck, and back of chicken make wonderful soup stock. Even chicken feet may be used. When you are frying or roasting chicken, this is a good thing to remember. Heads and other trimmings from fish also make good stock. It is best to keep meat, chicken and fish stocks separately, for separate uses. Fish head stock is most often used as a base for a sauce to be served with the rest of the fish.

Among the best seasoners of any kind of stock are onions, leeks, parsley, celery and celery tops, turnips, carrots, herbs, and tomatoes.

When fresh meat is used to make stock, part of it usually is browned first in a little hot fat. This seems to improve the flavor.

War Time Menu for Wednesday

BREAKFAST
Stewed Prunes
Cooked Whole Wheat Cereal
Honey Cinnamon Toast
Milk Coffee

LUNCH
Corn Pudding
Cooked Greens
Crisp Bread Sticks
Grapefruit and Orange Cup
Packaged Cookies
Milk

DINNER
Spaghetti with Meat Balls
Fresh Vegetable Salad Bowl
[Shredded Lettuce, Sliced Cucumbers, Grated Raw Beets, Chopped Watercress]
Vienna Bread
Rhubarb Crisp
Milk Tea

Corn Pudding: Combine half a No. 2 can whole kernel corn, ½ cup milk, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ cup dry bread crumbs, and mix thoroly. Beat two eggs well and add. Pour into greased casserole, place in pan of hot water and bake in moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F. for about 45 minutes, until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

Spaghetti with Meat Balls: To make a dish economical in cents and points, use hamburger for the balls and tomato juice to mix with the cooked spaghetti. Add a few slices of onion and a bay leaf to tomato juice, season with salt, pepper. Simmer 15 minutes, strain and thicken with flour before mixing with spaghetti.

Frocks with Femininity

These two frocks for late spring and early summer wear go in for femininity. One has a ruffled collar, and more of the trimming adorns the short sleeves. Paneled lines assure a slender effect. The other model adopts the dirndl skirt and tops it with a snug bodice with sweetheart neckline. If you select a plain color, you might use pattern No. 11207 to provide embroidered stars for the bodice.

Style No. 2075 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 and 36 to 50. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard contrasting.

Style No. 2569 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for short-sleeved dress; 3⅜ yards for frock with three-quarter length sleeves.

Each of the three patterns is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring pattern book is 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with pattern.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

Hollywood, Cal., May 3.—It was natural that Alfred Hitchcock should do the picture based on the earl of Suffolk, which was written up in a popular magazine. George Sanders will play the earl, which undoubtedly will make him a big star. It was Hitchcock who first gave Sanders a sympathetic rôle in "Foreign Correspondent" — remember? . . . After "Frenchman's Creek" David Lewis hopes to persuade Joan Fontaine to remain at Paramount for "Victoria Gradolet." But when "Creek" is finished Joan's boss, David Selznick, no doubt will have something ready for her. . . . Elliott Nugent just returned from New York, where he produced "Tomorrow the World," which is the story of a Nazi kid. Incidentally the kid, Skippy Homeier, who was discovered in radio, has been signed by Louis B. Mayer. Elliott's here to do "Up in Arms."

Joan Fontaine.

Life You Dream About.

Margaret Bourke-White stopped by for cocktails. Gosh, what a gal! She's made four trips to Moscow. When her ship, bound for North Africa, was torpedoed, she lost her clothes except a pair of slacks and jacket. Her pants attracted almost as much attention from the citizens in Algiers as veiled ladies there did from our soldiers. So how to get her a skirt quickly! Doolittle and Spaatz helped, but they had to go thru 12 government agencies before they could buy a yard of cloth from the French. The Germans had taken everything. Then, to find a tailor. They located one, but when it came time for a fitting, she was off on a mission, and they asked a slim hipped sergeant to be her standin—let them fit him. He had a fit—but the skirt was fit, and presented with much pomp and ceremony by Doolittle when she returned. Doolittle, says she, has the greatest sense of humor she's come across.

Too Busy for Panic.

I asked if she wasn't scared stiff when she went out with a bombing crew. "You don't have time," says she. "We were up 22,000 feet. It was 40 degrees below zero in the plane, and you're warned if you freeze your hands and feet, it's your last flight. In order to go thruout the plane to get pictures, I carried a bottle of oxygen with me. It lasts a short time. And what with watching that and my camera, and getting back to the main oxygen supply in time, it was quite a scramble. When you see huge planes disintegrate in midair and bullets whiz by your window, then you realize they're shooting at you, too. You're on your own in a Fying Fortress. Every man has his own duty. They haven't time to bother with a woman. When your oxygen gives out, death comes in four minutes.

Flash from Home.

News of her former husband's marriage reached her in a strange way. One of the pilots had a copy of Stars and Stripes which he read, then handed to her, and in that she read that Erskine Caldwell had remarried. Pilot asked, "Are you going to?" "No," said she. "Will you marry me?" She'd only just met him. . . . She wears a scarf made from a bit of German parachute. A Messerschmitt plane crashed almost overhead when she was in a trench. A Nazi jumped when they were but 35 feet overhead. This is part of his chute. . . . She'll finish her job for "North Star" in a week, returns to New York and awaits future orders. Yes, she's quite a gal.

Ramblings.

Ruth Markham, widow of Dean, has been signed to a Twentieth Century contract and plays a "Pinup girl" in that picture. . . . George Holmes entered the army four months ago, has a medical discharge, and is already back playing in "The Life of Roger Touhy." . . . Jimmy Ellison plays the reporter in "Col. Effingham's Raid." . . . Randy Scott spending much time at Metro-Goldwyn. Looks like a contract. . . . All is not as friendly as of yore between Joe Pasternak and Gregory Ratoff. . . . More than a year's gone by since Norma Shearer's done a picture. Producers are beginning to ask for her. . . . Marjorie Woodworth and Chill Wills are at Camp Huachuca, Ariz., entertaining troops. Marjorie expects a more courteous reception than she got from those Harvard students who threw oranges at her some years ago.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

Rhubarb Creme Freeze.
[Serves four to six.]

2 cups diced rhubard [about 1 pound]
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup coffee cream
½ banana, sliced [optional]

Cook rhubarb and sugar together until tender without adding water. Set aside to cool. Beat egg and add lemon juice, cream and banana. Stir in rhubarb sauce and freeze until firm. Turn into chilled bowl and beat with rotary beater until fluffy. Return to refrigerator and freeze until firm. Chilled, whipped evaporated milk may be substituted for the cream if desired. In this case the other ingredients should be chilled and folded carefully into the whipped milk. This mixture need not be beaten during freezing.

Sanitarium Junior Group to Hold Luncheon Today

Having completed an April dollar drive to increase their operating funds, members of the junior auxiliary of La Rabida Jackson park sanitarium will gather today for their annual spring luncheon and bridge party at the Del Prado hotel. Also on the program will be a fashion revue. Junior auxiliary members are serving as nurses' aids at the sanitarium to do their daily stint in helping registered nurses care for the cardiac patients.

Youth Shows It Can Take War's Strain

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copy.: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Occasionally I like to bring to the readers of this column, who must be interested in youth, the opinions of others who are concerned with the problem of children and parenthood in a country at war. Happily, all those opinions are not discouraging or pessimistic, and, happily for conscientious fathers and mothers, all do not scold parents for the bad job they have done. As I said recently, men and women who are trying to do a fine job of raising their children need encouragement.

The way the nation's youth has been meeting the emotional pressures of the war "is a tribute both to the young people of America and to those who are responsible for their guidance and control," according to Dr. James H. S. Bossard, writing in the April issue of the National Parent-Teacher, official organ of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Dr. Bossard, professor of sociology and director of the William T. Carter Foundation for Child Helping at the University of Pennsylvania, in his article, "The Service Man and the Adolescent Girl," ponts out:

"Going to war is, for most young men, a thrilling adventure; growing up is, to most young women, a period of colorful expectancies. Today these two moods are meeting in an atmosphere of unusual excitement and tension, against a background of world upheaval. That many problems of behavior should result from this combination of circumstances seems almost inevitable; that these problems have been kept so well within bounds is a tribute both to the young people of America and those who are responsible for their guidance and control."

The problem of the service man and the adolescent girl is one in which "The dynamic center is the conduct of the individual person," according to Dr. Bossard.

Effective parents, in Dr. Bossard's estimation, are the solution to most of adolescence's problems, there being no substitutes for a good home and adequate parental supervision. He points out that "the 16 year old girl is the product of the 15 years of training that have gone before. The woman who spends her day in a round of war activities but leaves her young daughter to run riot makes a 'poor choice of service.'"

The community also plays its part in helping youth keep its problem under control in wartime, according to Dr. Bossard. It is up to the community to see that obstacles and vicious influences for adolescent youth are not maintained.

In conclusion, Dr. Bossard says: "The fundamental theme is that the problems of adolescents in wartime are the normal problems no sudden change in human nature or in the natural sequence of cause and effect; only in that it accelerates their operation does it create more responsibilities for service men, adolescent, home, and community."

Illinois Salvages 48% of Fat Quota for March

Illinois collected 616,621 pounds of waste fats for conversion into gun powder in March, compared with 638,680 pounds in February, Lt. Gov. Hugh W. Cross, chairman of the conservation committee of the state defense council, said yesterday. The March figure was 48.6 per cent of the Illinois quota of 1,267,000 pounds a month. Mr. Cross urged housewives to intensify their efforts to salvage waste grease and fat.

Cross-Stitch Designs

BY NANCY CABOT.

These cunning animal cross-stitch figures have all the charm and appeal of live ones and are much less trouble to care for. With the days of the week omitted, these figures may serve as wall pictures, for curtains, luncheon doilies or what you will. The hot iron transfer pattern contains seven motifs, measuring approximately 4¼ by 5 inches.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the animal figures, No. 798, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

In yesterday's column I pointed out that when one partner makes a preëmptive bid the other is put on notice to be very careful about his penalty doubles. This does not mean, however, that he should "lean back" as far as East did in the following deal.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K Q 10 8 2
♥ Q 7
♦ J 6

WEST
♠ 8 4
♥ K J 10 9 8 5 3 2
♦ 7
♣ 5 4

EAST
♠ J 9 7 6
♥ A
♦ A Q 10 8 4 3 2
♣ 7

SOUTH
♠ A 5
♥ 6 4
♦ K 9 5
♣ A Q 10 8 3 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	4 hearts	4 spades	Double
Pass	Pass	5 clubs	5 diamonds
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

East did not do at all well in his five diamond contract; indeed, he went down 700 points. West would have been better off at five hearts and he probably should have made that rescue bid, but the more pointed observation is that East-West should not have been in any five contract of their own; they should have played against five clubs, doubled!

Consider how inconsistent East was in this case. After West had overcalled the opening club bid with a leap to four hearts and North had entered the auction with four spades, East did not hesitate to double. Of course he based this double on the fact that he had length as well as a probable trick in the spade suit itself, which was only logical. But when the opponents ran to five clubs, a double on East's part would have been very nearly as sound. True, his spade holding had lost its potential value but, after all, this was only the loss of one defensive trick, and that was largely compensated for by the fact that the opponents' contract had been pushed up one full level.

It is all very well for a player to consider trump strength as the prerequisite of a penalty double, but if he emphasizes this policy at the expense of all other considerations he will be left high and dry in a great many cases. Among these other considerations is the one of bidding level. Where did East think that the opponents would find the 11 tricks needed for five clubs? He himself had the heart ace and West presumably had that suit fairly solid; East had great strength in diamonds and a probable stopper in spades. There was no reason to suppose that East would lose either of his aces on defense; hence if West could produce even one trick the five club contract could be defeated.

Actually West would have accounted for two tricks. Against five clubs he certainly would have opened his singleton diamond. East would win, lay down the heart ace, then return the diamond queen. West would ruff and cash the heart king. Thus, instead of paying out 700 points East-West would have collected 500 points.

THE STAGE . . .

By Cecil Smith

Billy Bryant, king of old time showboat operators, will bring his "all-star cast of river actors" to Chicago on May 23 for an engagement in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The historic melodrama will be installed in Forester's theater at Oak and Dearborn streets, a house with perfectly good potentialities as a professional theater once the playgoing public learns where it is.

The producers of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be known as the Mississippi River Amusement company, which is a pleasant disguise for the two young men—Julius Pfeiffer and Dan Goldberg—who have successfully exploited "Maid in the Ozarks" by Barnum methods. They plan to fix the theater up with showboat decors, hanging life preservers from the balcony rail, and calling the main floor and balcony the lower and upper deck.

Bryant himself, one of the most colorful figures in American show business, will be one of the chief actors. Most of the rest of the cast will be composed of those who have contributed their talents to his previous summer seasons on the Ohio river. Incidentally, Bryant is no landlubber, and if he had not encountered oil rationing difficulties he probably could not have been persuaded to desert the river for the big city. He says he won't live in one of those big hotels, but will find himself a quiet space in a rooming house somewhere near the theater.

Frank McCoy, the Detroit stock producer, is adept at changing his mind. Having decided to wait until next season to bring in Fred Stone in "You Can't Take It with You," he has now decided not to wait until next season. When the Boston Comic Opera company closes its Gilbert and Sullivan season here, and incidentally its tour for the year, Mr. McCoy will bring "You Can't Take It with You" into the Studebaker theater on its very heels—on Sunday, May 30, to be exact.

Harry Zelzer sends word that the distinguished Yiddish company in "God, Man, and Devil" has attracted such extensive advance interest at the Civic Opera house box office that a third performance has been added to the schedule, a day earlier than the original announced opening date. The drama will be presented on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, May 14, 15, and 16.

Two War Time Weddings of Interest Today

next Tuesday. On May 13, Mrs. Tibbals is giving a bathroom shower in the home of her mother, Mrs. John Edgar Freeman. That evening Mr. and Mrs. James Stanton are having a few members of the bridal party in for a spaghetti dinner at their home in Glencoe. Mrs. Arthur Jackson and the bride's mother, Mrs. Harry E. Miller of New York, are giving the bridal dinner Friday evening, May 14, in Mrs. Jackson's home in Lake Forest.

Parties Also Arranged for Janet Richardson.

There are a number of parties planned for Miss Janet Richardson, who is to be married next Monday to Ensign Ralph E. Church Jr., son of Congressman and Mrs. Church of Evanston. Miss Constance Klaner is giving a luncheon on Thursday at the Key club, and Mrs. Edwin E. Sheridan is giving one at home in Evanston on Friday.

Miss Carol Fox will give a luncheon and kitchen shower on Saturday at the Arts club, and following that party the Illinois Opera Guild juniors will entertain at tea for Miss Richardson in the home of the juniors' president, Miss Mary Jane Brummel. Mr. and Mrs. Church will give the bridal dinner on Sunday night at their home, and the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hadwin H. Richardson, also of Evanston, will give a supper in their home following the wedding, which is planned for 9 o'clock the night of the 10th at St. Mark's church.

Ensign Church will be graduated from an engineering course at Annapolis, Md., on Saturday. His father will fly home from Washington, D. C., to be the best man.

Lois Greeley and Fiance Visit in Michigan City.

Miss Lois Greeley and Staff Sergt. Nicholas Blatchford, whose engagement to be married has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Greeley of Winnetka, are in Michigan City, Ind., with his parents, the Nathaniel H. Blatchfords, formerly of Winnetka, this week. They will come to Winnetka later this week for a brief visit with the Greeleys before Sergt. Blatchford returns to duty.

Miss Greeley, who made her debut in 1940, attended the North Shore Country Day school, Bryn Mawr college, and the New York School for Social Research, at which she studied dramatics. She now is taking a secretarial course in New York. Sergt. Blatchford was graduated from Harvard and worked as a newspaper reporter in Washington, D. C., before entering the army.

Fred Herendeen and his daughter, Miss Helen Herendeen, flew east yesterday to say farewell to David Ford, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Rood, who is sailing for a six months' training course with the merchant marine. After he completes that course Mr. Ford will have eight months more of schooling before he and Miss Herendeen can be married. Mr. Ford and the Herendeens' elder daughter met during the South Shore Country club follies last year shortly after he had come here from Erie, Pa., to reside with the Roods while embarking on a business career. Miss Herendeen will be graduated from the Faulkner school in June and plans to attend a junior college next year.

Voters' League Unit Hears Embree Talk on 'Race and Color'

"Race and Color" was the subject of a lecture given by Edwin R. Embree, president of the Rosenwald fund, before the Lake Shore League of Women Voters yesterday at its annual meeting in the Casino club.

Embree declared that it was only by accident the white race surpassed the others and that after the war there was a danger of it being placed in a secondary position. He credited the advance of the machine age as the reason for the white man's superiority.

The league reëlected Mrs. John Collier as president. Others elected were Mrs. Carroll Sudler, first vice president; Mrs. Louis Uhlemann, treasurer; Mrs. William Church, treasurer, and Miss Nettie Baumann, Mrs. William C. Boyden, Mrs. Louis Guenzel, Mrs. John Holabird, Mrs. G. F. Meyne, Mrs. Dudley O. Stark, Mrs. Sidney Stein, Mrs. Arthur Wirtz, Mrs. Milton Yondorf, and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering, directors.

JURORS DECIDE BOY SUFFOCATED IN ICE BOX TRAP

Pet Dog Thought to Have Locked It in Play.

A verdict of death by suffocation was returned yesterday over LeRoy Barton, 6 years old, 1530 Monroe street, who was found dead in the ice box of his home early yesterday.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Oma Barton, 28, a widow, testified before Deputy Coroner Louis Nadherny that she had left her son playing on the kitchen floor with his pet dog, Baby, when she departed for the Kit Kat club, 2046 Madison street, where she is employed as a waitress.

Mother Hunts for Boy.

She had warned her son against making the house untidy, she said, and tearfully told how the boy had assured her he would put everything in order again after he finished playing with the dog.

Two other witnesses, Miss Lucy Niles, 26, and Claude Mitchell, 17, who room with Mrs. Barton, told of returning home about 1 a. m. and noting the child was not in its bed. They notified the mother, who returned home at once and began to search the neighborhood.

Mitchell then related how upon his return to the apartment after a futile search he noticed on the kitchen table the ice trays and some food that belonged in the box. He then went to the box, he said, and discovered the boy. The child was almost nude as a result of having torn off his clothing in his frantic effort to escape.

Ice Box Becomes Trap.

The mother told how the child often played hide and seek with his dog and thought he might have tried to hide from the animal by climbing into the refrigerator and that the dog probably had pushed the door shut, springing the lock.

Mrs. Barton said her husband was killed in an automobile accident in Kentucky. The family came here from New Orleans, La.

OPA SLEUTHS USE MARKED MONEY IN PRICE SURVEY

Report Danville Stores Violate Ceilings.

Using the tactics of prohibition agents during the dry era, investigators from the office of price administration will use marked money in a campaign to entrap rationing and price ceiling violators in Chicago.

The major targets of the marked money campaign will be sellers of illicit gasoline and meat. The agents say the campaign is one phase of a fight on rationing and price ceiling violators, to be waged in an attempt to hold down living costs.

When making purchases at gasoline filling stations and in food stores, the OPA agents will use the marked currency as possible evidence against unscrupulous merchants. They will have to use their own funds in the campaign, however, because the OPA has provided no money for such work.

Fifteen Survey Danville.

The new sleuthing scheme was made known yesterday on the return from Danville of 15 OPA investigators who conducted a quick survey of food prices in that region Saturday.

Twenty-four food stores were surveyed and a substantial volume of violations was discovered, they said. Their report was transmitted to Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown in Washington to complete a whirlwind study ordered by Brown in response to mine workers' charges that living costs in Danville are out of control.

Today OPA investigators will start a one week inquiry into compliance with cents a pound price ceilings and rationing points on pork in independent retail stores, Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan OPA director, said. The probe will be the second in a series.

Find Minor Violations.

In a sweeping one day drive last month the staff checked 439 chain stores in the area and found 385 appeared to be complying with the pork regulation. Fifty-one stores operated by three chain systems were discovered in minor violations, and only 3 out of 64 stores in a fourth chain committed minor violations.

OPA investigators disclosed that the illegal sale of gasoline has been traced to the use of stolen T [transport, bus, truck] ration coupons which are reportedly being peddled for $48 a book of 48 pages, each containing 8 T coupons good for 5 gallons each.

Labor support of the OPA enforcement drive was pledged at a conference with Mulcahy of the area OPA labor advisory committee. Representatives of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations on the committee said they would ask members to be vigilant against "chiseling and law evading" merchants. They said that labor union attorneys will aid in filing triple damage suits for overcharges. The OPA has advised consumers in general that they are guaranteed $50 and reasonable attorney fees or triple damages for each overcharge case they institute.

Gasoline Stamp Burglars Raid Murphysboro Office

Murphysboro, Ill., May 3 [Special].—Gasoline ration stamp burglars raided the Jackson county office of rationing and price control last night and almost cleaned the stock of A, B, C, and T books.

WPB ALLOWS MORE OVERSIZED CASKETS, BUT LIMITS BUYERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—A new casket order was issued today to ease fears expressed by tall members of congress and other lanky citizens that they might be casketless or forced into undersize caskets when the end comes.

The order, issued by the war production board, removes the previous 10 per cent limit on making oversize caskets and says you can't buy an extra size casket unless you can show that standard sizes are inadequate.

This is expected to "correct the situation," which admittedly has been troublesome, WPB officials said.

The earlier WPB order limited most caskets to 6 feet 3 inches in length and provided that 10 per cent of the output could be larger sizes, but neglected to specify that the large ones could be sold only to those needing them. Consequently, WPB said, oversize "quotas were exhausted rapidly."

RESTAURANTS FIND MAN POWER CHIEF PROBLEM

Man power shortages are causing more headaches for Chicago restaurant operators than food shortages, Marion Isbell, president of the Chicago Restaurant association, said yesterday as the association began its annual observance of National Restaurant week. As a result, restaurateurs are not stressing as strongly their invitation to the public to dine out as in previous years.

Few Chicago restaurants have found it necessary to institute meatless days or to close one or two days a week, Mr. Isbell said. Instead, they are featuring fewer meat dishes and are developing substitute dishes, he said. Menus and advertising stress nutritive values of the restaurants' offerings.

The National Restaurant association announced that restaurant operators are coöperating with the OPA to expose black markets in food. The slogan adopted for the week by the national association was: "For victory, work more, sleep more, eat well, keep well, buy United States bonds and stamps."

They Will Fly Again, Tojo.

The men who bombed your Tokio one day,
And whom you took as prisoners of war,
Have paid in full the debt you ruled they pay,
But in a way all decent men deplore.

It must have taken courage truly great
To slay those helpless men as you have done,
A courage born of ever growing hate
In you who knows no God except the sun.

How dearly you will pay I do not know,
But that America will soon decide
And she will many times bomb Tokio
In retribution for those men who died.

And in the planes from which her bombs will fall
Will ride the ghosts of those intrepid men,
Returned to answer freedom's pleading call
And bring sweet Peace to all the world again.

—Michael H. Dally.

Hail to the Conquering Heroes.

Have been reading with merriment contributions from that popoff, Doc Richards, Minn. '25, insulting the University of Michigan football teams. At Minnesota he apparently didn't learn what every Michigan man is taught in his freshman year—to win without boasting and to lose without squawking. Since Fritz Crisler has been the Wolverine's grid chief his teams have played at Minneapolis three times and have lost all three games by a total of four points. The 1942 game was lost by a lax timekeeper. It's all right to feel good about beating Michigan, because it's quite an accomplishment, but crowing over it is something foreign to Michigan men. By the way, where are Minnesota's track, swimming, basketball, golf, wrestling, and baseball teams? —F. M. R., Michigan.

O who can be a pessimist
When Maytime weaves its spell?
A breeze that lilac plumes have kissed

Our world is right once more.

There's nothing can be wrong for long
When every morning brings
The robin's reveille in song
And the scent of growing things.

TRIBUNE GOLF SCHOOL MODEL FOR 200 OTHERS

11th Annual Event Opens Monday.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 11th annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE, which will open Monday night on the four courses of the Chicago park district not only is the largest plan of group instruction ever undertaken in any sport, but also was the forerunner of more than 200 similar schools thruout the country. These latter are modeled directly after the Tribune school, and requests for the pattern of its conduct have come in each spring since its inception in 1933. This is especially true this year, when a number of war plants, seeking new avenues of recreation for employés, have sought information on the school.

When the school was first suggested 11 years ago by Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, later president of the National P. G. A., and Julian Lambert, then a daily fee course operator, skeptics admitted that mass education in the fundamentals of golf might be possible in a rather hazy fashion, but said the idea of teaching the first principles of the game to thousands of raw beginners never would succeed.

Response Is Astounding.

The astounding response to the announcement of the first school convinced doubters there was a definite place for such a plan. Since that founding year of 1933, a total of 395,000, including last year's 66,000, has received free instruction from the members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America. The student body has included men, women, and children of the Chicago district area.

The manner in which Chicagoans have taken to the school is reflected by the attendance at classes within the last 10 years in the face of varying conditions. Rain and cold weather have proved no stymies, neither to the pupils nor their instructors.

P. G. A. Faculty Enthusiastic.

The enthusiasm of students has been more than augmented by that of the faculty itself—the members of the Illinois section of the P. G. A. Alex Cunningham of North Shore, president of the section and originator of the popular clinic idea among P. G. A. centers, again has assured the hearty coöperation of himself and his associates.

The 1943 school will be patterned after its predecessors. The same four courses—Columbus, Jackson, Marquette, and Diversey—will be used as classrooms, thanks to the coöperation of the commissioners of the Chicago park district. None interested in learning the A. B. C.'s of the game is barred from the school, for it is founded on the rudiments of golf. Neither is the man nor woman who may have been playing for years restricted, if he or she wants to iron out a kink in his or her swing.

Prompt Appearance Asked.

The only requirements for entering the school are a golf club and prompt attendance at the course most convenient to the pupil's home. Each class will begin at 7:15 o'clock, but all students are asked to appear at 7, if possible, to facilitate the opening of each class.

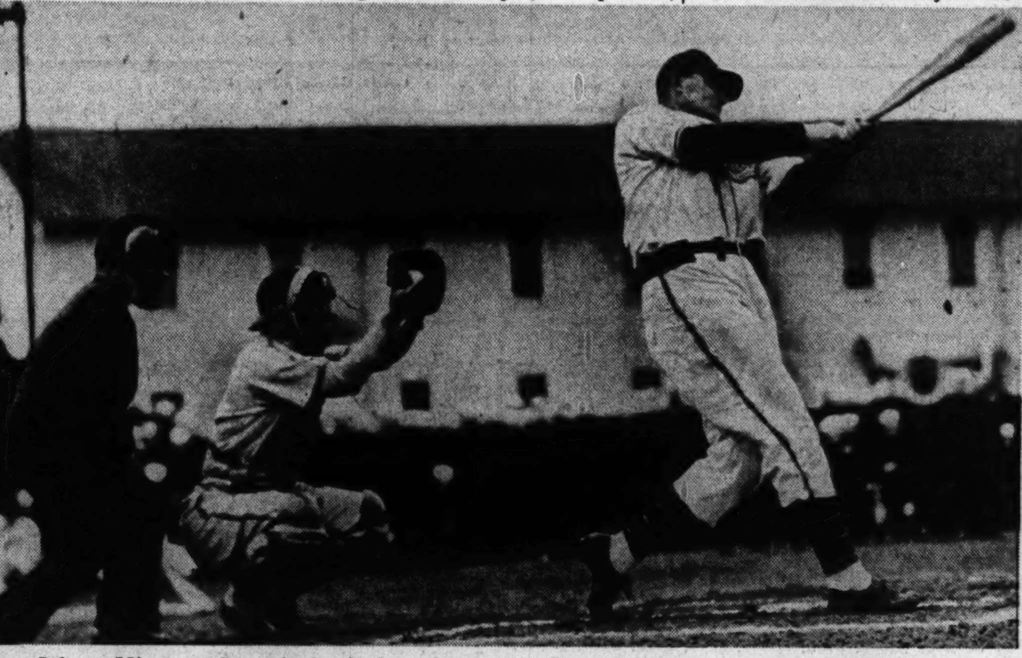
BIG LEAGUERS' GREAT LAKES RENDEZVOUS

In uniform you can't tell whether they're in uniform or not. Yesterday this group assembled before the St. Louis Cardinal-Great Lakes game on Constitution field. Left to right: Mort Cooper, Card pitcher; Johnny Mize, former Card and Giant, now at Great Lakes; Walker Cooper and Martin Marion of the Cards, and Glenn McQuillen of Great Lakes and formerly of the Browns.



Johnny Mize got three singles in four times up in Great Lakes' 5 to 2 victory, but this wasn't one of the times he connected. The ball landed in Catcher W. Cooper's glove. Lee Ballanfant of the National league is the umpire. More than 10,000 sailors watched the game. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Count Fleet's on Scene for 53d Preakness

Baltimore, Md., May 3 (AP).—Count Fleet, apparently on sharp edge after his winning Kentucky Derby effort, arrived at Pimlico race track today to keep a date in the 53d running of the Preakness stakes Saturday and track experts began trying to name a colt which might push him to the wire in the $50,000 added event.

Count Fleet was frisky as he stepped from a van at the old Hilltop oval and Trainer Don Cameron said his charge made the trip from Louisville in perfect condition. The big brown son of Reigh Count obviously wanted plenty of exercise and made a half dozen quick circles around his barn before retiring reluctantly to his stall.

To queries by horsemen standing around his barn as Mrs. John D. Hertz's racer came from his van, Trainer Cameron asked, "Does that horse look sick?" The horsemen admitted he didn't.

Charley Hewitt, stable foreman, who traveled with the speedy 3 year old, said the colt had been indisposed, probably from indigestion, at one stage of the trip, but he added that his charge shook it off before arrival in Baltimore.

Blue Swords, which finished second, three lengths behind the Hertz racer in the Derby, made the trip in the same car from Churchill Downs, and Trainer Walter Kelly said the W. E. Boeing entry also shipped without mishap.

There didn't appear to be a colt around which could hope to challenge Count Fleet, with Calumet farm's Ocean Wave still in Kentucky.

Weather Nips Sox-Indians' Series Opener

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 3.—James Dykes' unbidden guest, the weatherman, showed up again today and the White Sox, instead of opening a series with the Indians, were forced to confine their exercises to such modest muscle endeavor as turning radiator valves. It was the season's fourth postponement for the Chicagoans out of 12 games scheduled but maybe it is all for the best. They have been able to win only two of the eight played.

Dietrich to Pitch Today.

Bill Dietrich, who was slated to reveal his deception before the eyes of the Indians, will do it tomorrow. Bill, in case Sox fans are behind in their statistics, is the fellow for whom his associates haven't yet provided a run, and he's pitched 20 innings. Bill appreciates that his pals aren't very handy in a run production way but, nevertheless, is enough of an optimist to believe they'll score sooner or later.

Cleveland club officials, wisely figuring that with everything uncertain about the baseball business double headers shouldn't be permitted to pile up, have arranged to play off today's postponement along with the previously scheduled single game on Wednesday. This suits Dykes because he has a quantity of pitchers. He'll use Edgar Smith and possibly Lee [Buck] Ross for the twin bill. The Indians are planning on Jim Bagby for tomorrow and Al Milnar and Chubby Dean for the double entertainment.

Flu Floors Haynes.

Joe Haynes, the lad who saved Saturday's game against the Browns by three hitless innings of relief pitching, went to bed today suffering from the flu. Smith also was feeling under par but didn't believe it would interfere with his planned appearance on Wednesday.

SAILORS DEFEAT CARDINALS, 5-2

Olsen and Schmitz Keep Champions at Bay.

Sailors Johnny Schmitz and Vern Olsen yesterday collaborated to bring the Great Lakes Bluejackets a 5 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. The former Chicago Cub left handers each yielded only one hit during four inning assignments to whip the world champions before more than 10,000 recruits at the station's Constitution field. It was the Sailors' third straight triumph.

Schmitz, who started for Great Lakes, surrendered his only safety in the third inning when George Fallon's sharp grounder bounced off the chest of Third Baseman Chester Hajduk along the foul line. Walker Cooper accomplished the only successful blow against Olsen—a home run into the right field bleachers in the seventh inning.

Musial Hits Pinch Homer.

The Cardinals' only other hit was another homer by Stan Musial, who batted for Coaker Triplett in the ninth. The smash was made off Tom Ferrick, ex-Cleveland right hander, with one out. Ferrick then struck out Ken O'Dea and Cooper.

Schmitz, who was credited with the victory, struck out four and walked two during his four inning stay. Olsen struck out three and issued no walks.

Johnny Mize, the former Cardinal and Giant first baseman, led the Bluejackets' 12 hit attack against George Munger, freshman right hander from Columbus. Mize smashed out three singles in four trips to the plate, one of the safeties driving in a run. He also scored in the eighth after he had singled, Glenn McQuillen, ex-St. Louis Browns outfielder, following with a double.

Dickey Gets a Double.

The Sailors scored their first two runs in the opening inning on singles by Mize and Earl Bolyard and a double by Joe Grace. They added another pair of runs in the fifth on three more hits—singles by Grace and Bolyard and a double by George Dickey, catcher for the White Sox last season. Score:

NORTH SIDERS SEEK TO CHECK LOSING STREAK

A Few Runs Needed to Cure 'Em.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Eddie Hanyzewski and the offenseless Cubs this afternoon will vie with Ernie White and the resourceful world champion St. Louis Cardinals in the first contest of a three game series in Wrigley field. Hanyzewski had the Cards whipped, 3 to 1, with one out in the ninth last Thursday, but, in apparent overeagerness, bogged for a tie after which the Cards went on to win in the twelfth, 4 to 3. White was the losing pitcher in St. Louis last Wednesday in Hi Bithorn's 4 to 0 shutout, in which the feeble Chicagoans were favored with three unearned runs.

The Cubs will be seeking to end a four game losing streak, which started with the aforesaid Hanyzewski misfortune and reached a horrible momentum in Pittsburgh Sunday when they were humiliated, 3 to 0 and 1 to 0, despite Bithorn's good pitching and a one hit debut by Kewpie Barrett.

They're Back in 6th Place.

The Cubs, sixth placers at the finish of the last two seasons, currently are in their old familiar trough. There are evidences, however, that Chicago fans are not much inclined to bother with teams content to wallow around all year in the second division. For that reason Cub officials and the players themselves are making every effort to produce an attack for a team that seems to have good pitching, at least until the Big Four start working again. And even the Big Four are expected to improve as soon as, or if, two or three players get so they can hit the baseball.

A good series against the Cards here and against the Reds the latter part of the week in Cincinnati, would do wonders for the Cubs, according to many observers. Stan Hack and Eddie Stanky have been hitting well in almost every game and both are above the .300 mark. Bill Nicholson's timing has been bad on occasion, but he's likely to get loosened up most any time and should finish with his accustomed average, barely under .300.

Heinz May Need Only Time.

Dom Dallessandro has been taking some lusty whacks. He is about a .260 hitter in the National league form book, but always has had a flair for timely hitting. One scarcely knows what to say about Heinz Becker, runner-up to Stanky as American association batting champion last season. He's batted .081 in 10 games and there's not that much difference between the 1942 American association and the National league of May, 1943. Give the young man from Dallas a little longer, say we.

Lennie Merullo never has been a hitter against good to middlin' pitching and he's been having a tougher time than usual against the smart, aggravating stuff Truett Sewell, Morton Cooper, Wally Hebert and Bob Klinger have been serving him and other Cubs. Len is batting .143, but could easily rise to .200 with a little luck. Anyhow, he is a good shortstop if he doesn't start worrying too much about his helplessness at the plate.

Cavarretta Should Improve.

The Cubs have two good defensive centerfielders in Phil Cavarretta and Peanuts Lowrey. Cavarretta is hitting .167 and should rise if the new ball is as much livelier as they say it is going to be. Lowrey has hit .231 in three games against the Pirates.

Despite the fact that they have been shut out in four of their ten games the players are not discouraged. Neither are they content. There has been little alibiing of the batting failures and the lads all are eager to do whatever they can to improve themselves. There isn't a laggard in the whole perplexed pack.

Manager Jim Wilson is disappointed at the early flops, but has not been moved to anger. He did order a batting practice yesterday, unusual on an off day after a train ride. The skipper says he's going to try to wait patiently until the proven hitters start hitting.

KES GOES ON A SOLO RUN, BUT CUSTOMERS WIN

Wagers Are Refunded at Sportsman's Park.

The racegoers' adage that there's never a dull moment at Sportsman's Park, the popular half mile track in Cicero, never was better proved than in yesterday's third race. The gaiety was provided by Kes, a recalcitrant miss who ran and ran more than a mile, but neglected to include the designated five furlongs of the aforesaid race.

Kes' deportment was more than unseemly, for she comes from mighty fine folks, her pa having been Discovery, the old stake runner, and her grandpappy The Porter. Her manners should have been expected to be somewhat above average, but she didn't show them yesterday.

Spills Rider at Gate.

The 3 year old maiden filly started her afternoon of misbehavior by spilling her rider, young Willie Miller, son of her owners, at the gate. From there she headed eastward, scampering thru the parking lots back of the stretch toward Cicero avenue. Outrider Harry Miller gave chase, but returned to the track when announcement was made that Kes would be officially scratched and all wagers on her refunded. A number of clients in the crowd of 8,000 had been sufficiently hopeful of Kes' chances to risk a total of $1,473, which was the sum returned to them.

Kes herself was located at Cicero and Ogden avenues after a short tour of the southwest side. It was understood she was to go without dinner last evening, which wouldn't be the first time. Last September, the bad girl finished third in a race at Aqueduct, but was disqualified.

The winner of the race in which Kes decided not to run was Liberty Flik, a 3½ to 1 shot, ridden by Jockey Albert Beverly for his first winning mount of the meeting.

Barney Rides Two Winners.

All in all, yesterday's program was a lark for a lot of the younger folks on the track. There was Larry Barney, the Joliet kid who had gone into the eighth day of racing at the half miler with 11 jockey triumphs. He couldn't hit yesterday until the fourth, when he took Bezique, a 4 year old filly from the stable of Mrs. A. C. Klein, into a four length lead and ran away with the race.

Came the feature race, an allowance test for 2 year olds. The mutuel activity was directed toward Sweeping Ahead with such enthusiasm that this 2 year old colt went to the post a 3 to 5 favorite. The customers must have forgotten that Barney's mount, Hy-Cap, is a son of Hygro, but doubtless were chary of his prospects because he was a first starter. He ran like a veteran, however, as he cut down the two-length margin Sweeping Ahead took at the start, and at the finish was looking back at the favorite with two lengths to spare. The victor paid $33.

Run Dead Heat for Third.

Manila Bay, a 7 to 1 chance, won the seventh race under a well timed drive by Willie Lowe. Ida Streng was second. The first dead heat of the eight days of racing occurred in the fight for show when a long shot, Sir Livery, and the favorite, Tom's Ladd, finished together.

Dan Lesher of Lake View stole home with the run which gave that team a 4 to 3 victory over Amundsen in Wells park. Taft beat Roosevelt, 10 to 2, in another North section game in Norwood park, with Jack Congdon, Taft catcher hitting a home run.

Gus Skizas of Crane hit a home run with the bases filled in the last of the seventh to give his team a 6 to 3 victory over Washburne in a west section game in Altgeld park. Steinmetz beat Wells, 4 to 3, in Smith field and Kelvyn Park bunched eight runs in the fifth inning in beating Tuley, 13 to 1, in Humboldt park in other west section games.

Dan Dejanovich of Bowen limited Morgan Park to one hit while his team mates were getting 10 and taking a 10 to 0 decision in a south section clash in Bessemer park. Chicago Vocational beat Fenger, 4 to 2; Calumet shut out Harper, 2 to 0, and Hyde Park defeated Parker, 5 to 2, in other games in the south section.

Englewood was outhit by Kelly in their playoff of a postponed game in McKinley park, but won, 2 to 1.

Harry Miller, Racing Auto Builder, Dies

Detroit, Mich., May 3 (AP).—Harry A. Miller, 68, internationally known engineer, designer, and builder of racing automobiles, boats, and airplanes, died today in Grace hospital after an illness of six weeks.

Miller's famous Miller Specials won 11 of the 500 mile Indianapolis Speedway races and hundreds of races on tracks in the United States and Europe.

He designed cars for Eddie Rickenbacker, Barney Oldfield, Tommy Milton, Ralph DePalma, Harry Hartz, Louis Meyer, Jimmy Murphy, and Pete DePaola.

Built "Golden Submarine."

A native of Menominee, Wis., Miller became interested in mechanical contrivances during his boyhood. Later he went into business in California building parts for automobiles. In 1916 he designed his famous egg-shaped "Golden Submarine" for Barney Oldfield who earned $30,000 on the race tracks with the car that was dubbed the "Golden Egg."

Miller had his factory in Los Angeles, where racers from this country and Europe went to have their cars built.

Planned Aviation Engine.

In 1933 he started to build airplane motors and at the time of his death was working on blueprints for a powerful motor for aviation, using the most horsepower ever attempted, according to William A. Meyers, his chief engineer.

He was designing this motor in his Detroit shops, where he was building special hydraulic test equipment for aviation. During the first World war he was engaged in defense work in Los Angeles.

MONARCH BEERS ON SPOT IN TIGHT CLASSIC RACE

Go Against Thompsons Tomorrow Night.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Monarch Beers, Classic Bowling league leaders by a game, meet the Thompson Restaurants, one of two teams tied for second place, in the No. 1 match of tomorrow night's penultimate program of five matches. The teams will clash on the Faetz & Sons lanes, where last week the Monarchs gained their advantage by taking two from the Joseph L. Gills, with whom they had been tied.

The Gills face an opportunity to profit by tomorrow's schedule. They meet the slipping Meister Braus on the Gills' home alleys at Marigold arcade. Other matches pair Ambrosia with the Washingtons at Conboy's lanes, Schlitz with the Budweisers at Park Manor, and U. S. Beers with Prima at Archer-Kedzie.

Samuelson Race Over.

Only the fourth, fifth, and sixth places remain to be decided in tomorrow night's final matches of the Samuelson Major league. Old Pogues are fourth, with the Dette Realtors a game back and the Berghoffs a game behind the Dettes. Pogues meet the champion Wallace Coals, Dettes oppose John's Grill, Berghoff meets Mee & Ramme, and Waggoners are paired with the Fritzi Scheffs.

Peter Rozdilsky of Chicago took 14th place in Hochstadter's junior individual classic by shooting 1,520 for eight games on last night's first squad and Joe Wesolak, rolling on the second squad, went into 10th position on a 1,538 total.

The entry in Lawrence Bowl's Forgotten Man and Woman tournament, which opens Saturday, has soared to more than 1,500, according to Frank Holzfeind, tournament manager. The entries close tomorrow. The tournament, which is for low average shooters, has caught on in a way that indicates it will become one of the game's most popular events.

Olsons Get Cup Tonight.

The Northwest Associated Manufacturers league, a 12 team circuit, winds up its season with a handicap sweepstakes at Harding recreation tonight. The Olson Rugs, champions, will be presented with a cup, while members of the Larson Forgings, runners-up, will get medals. . . . Admiral Radios won the title in the Radio Industries league, which did its shooting at the Manor alleys.

DODGERS POUND 2 PHIL HURLERS IN 5-3 VICTORY

Kirby Higbe Holds Losers to Seven Hits.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 3 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers continued to pick on the Philadelphia Phillies today, rapping a dozen hits off rookie Al Gerheauser and veteran Schoolboy Rowe to win, 5 to 3. Kirby Higbe made his second start of the season and pitched seven hit ball.

In the second inning he was touched for three safeties and two runs, but gave no hits in any other inning until the eighth, by which time Brooklyn had clinched the victory. Score:

THE GUMPS—THE HOMECOMING

Brown Stops Beech in 3d at Marigold

Clarence Brown, former Catholic Youth Organization heavyweight champion, registered his fourth straight knockout when he stopped Neville Beech, 1938 Memphis sectional Golden Gloves winner, in the third round of a scheduled 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens last night before a crowd of 1,396.

Brown had his opponent on the canvas for no count in the first round and floored him seven times with ordinary punches, three of the knockdowns coming in the second round, and four in the third.

Al Jordan, former Golden Gloves heavyweight finalist was awarded a split decision over Hubert Hood in an eight round semi-windup.

Johnny O'Brien, Calumet City middleweight, pounded out a victory over Jesse Jackson in a six round supporting contest, altho outweighed 10 pounds.

Young Ted Lewis, loop hotel bellhop, scored three knockdowns to beat Willie Moon in four rounds. In a four round opener Vecle Van, Milwaukee Negro light heavyweight, and Zack Robinson, Chicago Negro, drew.

Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, has been signed to meet Alvin Gomez in an eight round contest in Marigold Gardens next Monday. An eight round co-feature will bring together Fred Dawson and Al Reasoner. . . . Tony Kozakiewicz, Chicago light heavyweight wrestler, will oppose John Shraub on a mat card in a hall at 1638 North Halsted street tonight. . . . There also will be wrestling shows in Rainbo Fronton tomorrow, and Cicero stadium Friday. Hans Steinke and Bill Thornton will be opponents in the Fronton, while an Australian tag team match involving Charles [Gorilla] Grubmyer and Andy Rockne against Frankie Hart and Ned Taylor will top the show in Cicero.

The next boxing date in the Chicago Stadium has been changed from May 21 to May 20 or 24, because the first night game in Chicago between the White Sox and Washington, is set for May 21.

Fritzie Zivic, who dethroned Henry Armstrong as 147 pound champion three years ago, has informed Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun, Stadium co-promoters, he will be available for the opening 1943 outdoor show, planned for one of the ball parks next month.

PURDUE NINE TO FACE WABASH IN SERIES OPENER

Lafayette, Ind., May 3 [Special].—In a final tuneup for its opening Big Ten series with Michigan on Friday and Saturday, Purdue's baseball nine will meet Wabash in Crawfordsville tomorrow in the first game of a home and home series.

With the exception of Henry Stram, centerfielder, who is scheduled to report for army duty over the week-end and has returned to his home in Gary, Coach Dutch Fehring will start virtually the same lineup that opened the season with a double header victory over St. Joseph here Saturday.

DE PAUL BEATS MT. CARMEL, 7-3; ST. RITA WINS

The St. Rita High school softball team scored its third victory of the season by defeating De La Salle, 11 to 10, in a Catholic league game last night in St. Philip stadium. De Paul scored a 7 to 3 triumph over Mount Carmel on the same card.

St. George whipped Loyola, 9 to 7, in the third game on the program. Scores:

Sparta Protests Choice of Title Game Official

Chicago's Sparta soccer team, which is to meet the Morgan Football club team of Morgan, Pa., in the western finals of the national open soccer competition Sunday, has protested the selection by the national cup committee of a referee from outside Chicago. The game is to be played in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. Preliminary to the Sparta game, the Vikings, who need only one more victory to clinch this year's major league title, will meet Hansa.

Draw with Lowry Halts Guardsman's K.O. Record

New York, May 3 (AP).—Ted Lowry, 175, New Bedford, Mass., floored George Kochan, 169, United States coast guardsman from Akron, for a four count tonight while gaining a draw with the hard hitting Ohioan in an eight round bout in St. Nicholas arena. It was the first time in five starts that Kochan had failed to knock out his opponent.

It Wasn't Such Fair Weather, but —

40 Compete in Olympia Fields Meet

Members of the Illinois Professional Golfers association, who soon will be spreading the gospel in the Tribune Golf school, fraternized with divot diggers of the Chicago Club Managers association yesterday at Olympia fields.

Despite chilly weather, some 40 competed in an 18 hole round over No. 1 course for gross and net prizes, the latter being based on the Peoria system of handicapping. Selective drives were followed by alternate shots.

Matteson Brothers Second.

Gunnar Nelson and S. E. Gillette topped the field from scratch with 40—39—79, seven over par. The Matteson brothers, Matt and Bud, of Ridge, trailed with 41—39—80.

Charles Tanis and Jake Fina, hosts to the party, kept Olympia Fields in the winning column with a net of 87—16—71.

Other net winners were Maurie White and Nick Hugel, La Grange, 83—10—73; Matt and Bud Matteson, Ridge, 80—6—74; Johnny Gibson and Tom Ream, Westmoreland, 82—8—74; Matt Jans and Eddie Fladoos, Racine, 82—8—74; Harry Adams, Medinah and Otto Guenther, Barrington Hills, 84—10—74, and Bruce Herd, Flossmoor, and Ed Pollack, Aurora, 90—16—74.

Plan Future Collaboration.

Both organizations will collaborate in the fall in the annual wind-up following a season in which war relief events will be the main competition. Leading scores follow:

BOSSEUT WINS BRIARWOOD.

New York, May 3 [AP].—Bosseut, William Woodward's 3 year old which finished second to Count Fleet last month, romped thru a mile and a sixteenth today for an easy victory in the Briarwood purse that opened Jamaica's final week.

Crosetti Joins Yanks; Has 16 Days to Loaf

New York, May 3 [Special]. — Frankie Crosetti reported to Manager Joe McCarthy at Yankee stadium today after a cross-country jaunt from his San Francisco home and whipped thru a three-hour third base drill that stamped him ready for immediate service.

Frankie admitted however, he might just as well be 20 pounds overweight and have bursitis in both elbows for all the good he'll be to the club for the next 16 days. Despite the humble appeal by the Yankees' front office to Commissioner K. M. Landis that the veteran's 30-day suspension be relaxed, the judge has insisted that Frankie serve the full sentence for his world series brush with Umpire Bill Summers.

All Arguments Fail.

The appeal for Crosetti's reinstatement had numerous bolstering facts. First of all, the Yanks cited the acute shortage of veteran players in the major leagues. Secondly, there was Frankie's exemplary record as a mild-mannered gentleman and good sport on the playing field. In his 11 years with the Yankees, Crosetti had experienced only one previous serious clash with an official—resulting in a three-day suspension.

Then there was the play itself which resulted in the suspension, plus a $250 fine. In the fever heat of the closely-contested third world series game, the Cardinals' Terry Moore, advancing from first on a single, was called safe at third by Summers. The peg from the outfield appeared to beat Moore to the base. The usually calm Crosetti, enraged by the decision, threw the ball to the ground and, in the ensuing argument, pushed Summers. That shove, according to Landis, was inexcusable, regardless of the motive.

He Wins Salary Bout.

The layoff also was the cause of Frankie's late arrival. The Yankee management, in offering Crosetti his contract, insisted that he be docked for the month's inactivity. Crosetti declared that his suspension was a result of his fighting for the team, and refused to take the financial rap. He held out till April 20, when, it is believed, President Ed Barrow saw things his way.

NORTH INDIANA SCHOOLS TO VIE IN TRACK TODAY

South Bend, Ind., May 3 [Special].—Track and field athletes from the 11 eastern division schools in the Northern Indiana High School conference will qualify tomorrow for the conference's annual track meet to be held in East Chicago next Saturday.

Preliminaries will be run off tomorrow afternoon in the hurdles and dashes with finals in 13 events scheduled for tomorrow night.

North Side of Fort Wayne, high school champions the last two years, is expected to repeat as the sectional winner as well as top the field in number of qualifiers. North Side is undefeated in competition this year. South Bend Central and Mishawaka are expected to offer North Side the strongest competition. Other schools which will compete tomorrow are Riley, Adams, and Washington, all of South Bend, Michigan City, Elkhart, Goshen, La Porte, and Nappanee.

The first three place winners in individual competition and the relay teams which place first or second in the half mile and mile events will qualify for the conference meet.

SEC DISCLOSES 1942 SALARIES OF EXECUTIVES

Borg-Warner President Receives $60,966.

Salaries paid by Borg-Warner corporation, Chicago, to some of its officers in 1942 were among those made public yesterday by the securities and exchange commission. The SEC's reports on corporation salaries cover only gross income, and do not disclose the net amount received by the officials after income taxes have been paid.

Borg-Warner paid $60,966 to C. S. Davis, president of the company and president and director of its Warner Gear division. The 1942 remuneration of R. C. Ingersoll, vice president and director of the corporation and president of the Ingersoll Steel and Disc division and of the Calumet Steel division, was $72,289. D. E. Gamble, vice president and general manager of the Borg & Beck division, president of the Spring division and chairman of the subsidiary Pump Engineering Service corporation, received $68,273.

Tax Exemptions Vary.

Altho the report did not show what these officials had left of the salaries after taxes, and tho exemptions vary with individual circumstances, the tax share would be large in any case.

A married person without dependents who had earned income of $60,000 in a year would pay roughly $30,140 in taxes after allowance for the post-war credit on the victory tax, treasury men said. With the same assumed status, a person with an $80,000 earned income would pay a tax of $44,448. The tax would be $23,363 on $50,000 and $11,261 on $30,000.

Borg-Warner also reported to the SEC that it paid $48,000 to P. Edwin Thomas for engineering services, $42,000 to James W. Dickey for engineering services, and $35,000 to Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. for auditing services.

Allen Receives $39,688.

SEVERAL LARGE COMPANIES VOTE USUAL DIVIDENDS

Directors of the Walgreen company, Chicago, yesterday declared regular quarterly dividends of 40 cents a share on the common stock and $1.12½ on the preferred. Standard Oil company [New Jersey] authorized its usual extra dividend of 50 cents in addition to a regular semi-annual payment of 50 cents a share on the common. Extras of 50 cents were paid in June and December of last year.

General Motors corporation declared a dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, the same amount as was paid in recent quarters.

Dividends declared yesterday:

ILLINOIS ROADS ORDERED TO CUT FREIGHT RATES

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday issued an order directing railroads to reduce freight rates between points within the state from 3 to 6 per cent in conformity with a similar order of the interstate commerce commission. The rate cut, effective May 15, will be in force until Jan. 1, 1944.

In general, the 3 per cent reduction will apply to all agricultural products, and the 6 per cent reduction will apply to manufactured products, the commission said.

The effect of the reduction is to cancel a freight rate increase granted the carriers early in 1942. At the same time, the interstate commerce commission allowed a 10 per cent increase in passenger fares, but the state commission refused to sanction this boost on the ground it was barred by a 2 cents per mile fare law in this state.

STRENGTH IN RYE CAUSES UPTURN IN OTHER GRAINS

Independent strength which developed in rye after aggressive buying of futures by houses with eastern and northwestern connections was largely responsible for a moderate upturn in other grain prices yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Rye advanced 1⅛ to 1¼ cents a bushel and closed at about the top. Wheat futures were ⅝ to 1 cent higher. Oats had an easy undertone early, but rallied to close unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. Corn futures sold at ceiling prices.

Failure of deliveries of about 5 million bushels of cash rye May 1 on May contracts to depress the market and the fact that farmers are receiving about 49 cents a bushel below parity for rye has encouraged operators to take the buying side, it was said.

October Eggs Advance on Army Buying Report

October egg futures closed 0.05 cent a dozen higher at 42.55 cents on the Chicago Mercantil exchange yesterday on reports of heavy shell egg buying by the army. The delivery at one time was up 0.10 cent to the highest levels since late March.

Two Chicago Companies to Receive Army-Navy 'E'

The war department announced yesterday the army-navy "E" award for war production has been granted to the Protectoseal company and the Vaughn Novelty Manufacturing Co., Inc., Chicago.

DEPRECIATION.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Subsequent to 1940 I stopped taking depreciation on two houses I own. My reason for doing this was to avoid reducing the cost price to such a low point that I would show a large gain on the property if sold at some future date. Must I continue to deduct depreciation? If so, what steps should I take to get credit for depreciation I did not deduct in my income tax returns for 1941 and 1942?—S. Z.

Answer: There is no requirement that you must claim a deduction for depreciation in your income tax return. However, when property subject to an allowance for depreciation is sold the owner's gain or loss, for income tax purposes, must be determined by taking into account the depreciation allowed or allowable. In other words, the fact that you have failed to claim a deduction will not enable you to avoid reducing the cost basis of the property when it is sold.

In order to get credit for depreciation applicable to 1941 and 1942 you will have to file amended income tax returns for those years.

DISSOLVED.

Please advise me if Columbia Oil and Gasoline has really disintegrated? About three years ago I bought 100 shares of this stock and later sold 50 shares at a loss. Now the company offers $1 a share. May I claim the loss for the whole amount of stock I held?—R. M.

Answer: The company didn't disintegrate, but it is dissolving as a result of stockholders' approval of a plan of dissolution. Stockholders who surrender their common stock certificates to the Corporation Trust company, 15 Exchange place, Jersey City, N. J., will receive $1 per share.

You may file an amended income tax return for the year in which you sold the 50 shares. The capital loss deductible for that year will be determined by the income tax law in effect at that time. On the remaining 50 shares you will have a long term capital loss, 50 per cent of which is deductible from 1943 income under the present income tax law.

PRICES OF HOGS CLIMB DESPITE HEAVY RECEIPTS

Market for Other Types of Live Stock Dips.

Apprehension over the President's statement that the government not only intends to prevent further price advances, but plans to lower some meat prices, caused heavier farm selling of live stock thruout the nation yesterday. The movement to market was particularly heavy in regions served by the Chicago stockyards.

The yards received 24,000 hogs, including direct shipments to packers, the largest Monday total in 13 weeks and the biggest for any Monday in May in three years. The supply was 46 per cent larger than a week earlier and 58 per cent above the same day last year.

Cattle Receipts Rise.

Cattlemen unloaded 14,000 head, the biggest Monday supply in five weeks. Selling by cattle raisers and feeders was 13 per cent heavier than last week and 48 per cent larger than on the same day in 1942. Sheepmen also sent in 14,000, the biggest Monday sheep and lamb receipts in 20 weeks. This was 23 per cent larger than a week ago and 27 per cent higher than a year ago.

Practically all meat animals except hogs came under price pressure. Hogs ran counter to the general trend, strong to 10 cents a hundred pounds. Top loads of hogs advanced 10 cents to $14.85, highest since last Wednesday.

Steers, Lambs Weaker.

After an uncertain opening in the market for steers and yearlings, when scattered sales were made at steady prices, a 15 to 25 cents lower trade developed.

Lamb prices declined 25 cents in a slow session.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Ben Markland

May 3, 1943.

SLOWLY but surely the forces of spring are overcoming the north winds and low temperatures which have tried to maintain winter's grip on the farm landscape.

Spring beauties now are carpeting the east wood lot of the Wheaton farm, about 10 days behind last year's schedule. Their pale pink petals provide the most striking sign of the new season, with the bright green honeysuckle bushes a close second and the widely spaced splotches of rue anemone placing third in the list of spring symbols. Near the northwest corner of the east woods are several patches of anemones, their green cloverlike leaves and white flowers making a striking contrast to the ground cover of the dead oak leaves.

Dogtooth Violets Late.

The dogtooth violets are the slowpokes in this year's wildflower parade. They usually appear the second week in April and are out in full force by April 18 to 20. When we were on the farm on April 29 not a single one of these members of the lily family was in flower. Everywhere we found the distinctive mottled leaves of green and purple, but with cool winds whistling thru the oak trees the dogtooth violets could not be persuaded to appear.

This week they surely should make their debut.

About half of the bluebird nesting houses erected around the farm orchards in early April are occupied, and at least one pair of these attractive birds has decided to pass up the artificial homes for one of nature's own. While hiking thru the east woods the other day we saw a pair of bluebirds, and after standing quietly for about 10 minutes discovered their nesting site.

Nest in Dead Stump.

It was in the dead stump of an old willow tree a few feet from the shore of the creek which winds thru the wood lot. Bluebirds take readily to manmade nesting boxes, and there are 18 of these around the farm, but this one pair of visitors decided to be independent and find their own nesting hole — perhaps the start of a "back to nature" movement among the bluebirds.

The haughty peacock which has been living with the turkeys and chickens in the poultry yard puts on a real show for his neighbors every day. This is the first season that the peacock has had his full array of tail feathers, and he makes use of these attractive decorations during his back yard style show. When he spreads these three foot feathers, arches his brilliant green neck, and struts up and down the poultry greensward, the White Rock chickens, and the Holland turkeys gaze in wonderment. This display of feathered superiority is held at high noon almost every day.

The GARDEN

THE time for planting cabbage seedlings has arrived. Cabbages may be planted any time after April 15 in Illinois, except along the shore of Lake Michigan where gardeners usually have to wait until the first two weeks in May. The tender of the sample plots on the Wheaton farm put his first cabbage sets in the ground on April 20. Jersey Queen variety was used.

Cabbage plants should be placed from 18 to 24 inches apart in the row, with the rows at least two feet apart. Plants are available from most seed dealers and greenhouses, and many grocery stores sell them at this time of the year. It is preferable to plant cabbages on an overcast day or after sundown to enable the plants to establish their roots before the sun strikes. The soil around each plant should be watered as the plants are put in the ground, but it is best not to water the leaves.

In taking the seedlings from the greenhouse flats, cut a cube of soil around each plant and transfer the entire cube into the garden. The seedlings never should be pulled from the flat.

CHICAGO AREA TO GET NEW JOB FREEZE ORDER

3 States Included in McNutt Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—A new job freezing plan restricting the rights of essential workers to change jobs, regardless of the pay rates involved, will be imposed on all of Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin within a week, Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the war man power commission said today.

William H. Spencer.

McNutt disclosed at a press conference that the program is being drafted by the Chicago regional WMC office, headed by William H. Spencer.

Features of Order.

The three-state job freezing order, he added, will follow the pattern already adopted in stabilization plans recently ordered for a total of 36 states, and will include these features:

1. No worker, man or woman, in one of the 35 industries designated as essential by WMC will be permitted to change to another essential job without first obtaining a release from his employer or the local office of the United States employment service. This restriction will apply whether the job shift involves the same rate of pay, higher pay, or lower pay. The essential industries include agriculture.

2. The WMC order of April 18 completely forbidding job changes by essential workers for higher pay in most of the three state area, including Chicago, will be eased to permit such transfers if a release is obtained from the old employer or the USES. Such releases are now authorized only in specific communities, such as the Calumet area, where local WMC job stabilization plans have been adopted.

May Include Further Controls.

McNutt said the program for the three state region may include additional hiring controls, but that the actual order will be issued shortly by Spencer after consultation with management-labor representaives in the area.

Under questioning, McNutt disclosed that the WMC has abandoned its plans for a new national job freezing plan and has decided to leave further hiring controls, for the present, in the hands of regional and local WMC offices.

He explained that programs simliar to the one planned for the Chicago region are also planned within a week for two other regions, embracing nine states and that this will place essential workers in all 48 states under some form of "job stabilization." Job freezes have already been imposed, most of them last week, for 36 states, he said.

It is possible, other WMC officials said, that the forthcoming program may restrict job changes by workers in nonessential as well as essential industries.

Local Programs Unaffected.

The so-called three state job freeze for Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin will not conflict with stabilization programs already in force in local areas in the region, such as the Calumet area, officials said.

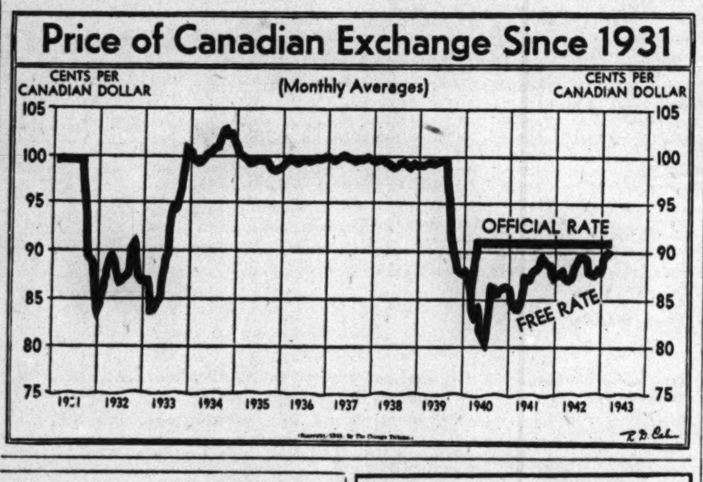
Local plans are now in force, besides in the Calumet area, in Springfield-Decatur, and Rockford, Ill.; Evansville, Indianapolis, and South Bend-La Porte-Michigan City, Ind.; and Milwaukee and Beloit, Wis., according to WMC records.

The easing of the present ban on shifts by essential workers for higher pay is expected to include a provision that such changes may be made thruout the three states if a release is granted by the old employer or the USES.

The program is also expected to permit such releases if the worker can show the job change would relieve "personal hardship."

Union Securities to Buy Colorado Milling Company

New York, May 3 [Special].—The Union Securities corporation today announced it was negotiating for the purchase of Colorado Milling and Elevator company. It is planned to elect as president Guy A. Thomas of Minneapolis, former chairman of the Commander Larrabee Milling company. Union Securities plans a public offering of the securities of the company which has 26 flour mills and 184 elevators or warehouses in eight states.



Liberty Ship Joseph Medill Is Launched

Panama City, Fla., May 3 [Special].—At simple launching ceremonies here today, the Joseph Medill, fifth Liberty cargo ship to be built at the Wainwright yards of the J. A. Jones Construction company, slid down the ways to become part of the maritime commission's war time merchant fleet.

Named for an early publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the ship was sponsored by Miss Ellen Pearson of Washington, D. C., a great-great-granddaughter of the noted editor.

Assisted by Employé.

Shipyard workers paused briefly while the yard's 50 piece band played a concert and Harry G. Fannin, mayor of Panama City, spoke. Miss Pearson was assisted as co-sponsor by a young woman employé of the shipyard selected for the honor on her attendance and efficiency record.

The yard is under contract with the maritime commission to deliver 33 Liberty ships by Jan. 1, 1944, and 55 Victory ships by 1945.

H. V. Appen, general manager of the yard, said the ship's name was selected by the maritime commission in accordance with its policy of naming Liberty ships after outstanding persons who have figured in the history of the United States.

Listed Among Pioneers.

Joseph Medill's name was among 25 names of pioneer newspaper publishers compiled by the commission for use in naming ships, according to the Washington office of the commission. About 10 of these names have been used so far, it was said. Other lists compiled for the same purpose include pioneers of other professions, famous inventors, and doctors, patriots, and signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Joseph Medill was at the helm of THE TRIBUNE during the Civil war, when he stanchly supported President Lincoln and the Union cause, and he remained in active control of the newspaper's policies until his death in 1899. He was mayor of Chicago from 1871 to 1873.

RAIL PROBLEMS BECOMING MORE CRITICAL—GAVIN

New York, May 3 (AP). — F. J. Gavin, president of the Great Northern Railway company, said today the problem of obtaining the necessary materials, supplies, and man power for railroads was becoming increasingly more critical.

He told stockholders in his annual report that carriers expect further increases in traffic before the peak of war requirements is reached. Gavin reported Great Northern freight traffic in 1942 was 65 per cent more than in 1929 and was handled with 300 fewer locomotives and 5,000 fewer freight cars.

Net income of $29,054,021 was the largest in the railroad's history.

Elect Former Office Boy R. and J. Dick President

Clifton, N. J., May 3 (AP).—Robert Reid of Clifton, who left grammar school in 1917 to become a $4.50 a week office boy for the R. and J. Dick company, today was appointed president of the firm, one of the country's largest manufacturers of industrial belting. He succeeds the late Benjamin Keiley.

TRIAL OF TWO MUNITION FIRM OFFICIALS OPENS

Baltimore, Md., May 3 (AP).—Government witnesses testified in federal court today that two former officials of Triumph Explosives, Inc., obtained about $85,000 of the munition firm's funds by making nine checks payable to a secretary, who told the court she cashed them and turned the money over to the two men.

The two men—Joseph Ben Decker and Gustav H. Kann—went on trial before Judge William C. Coleman and a jury on charges of using the mails to defraud. The government alleged five of the nine checks were sent by mail to a Pittsburgh, Pa., bank.

The trial is the first of a scheduled series of prosecutions growing out of an alleged $1,400,000 war contract fraud at the plant.

OFFER SYLVANIA ELECTRIC STOCK TO PUBLIC TODAY

'Ever Normal' Pocketbook, Dream of OWI

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

How billions of dollars of government debt will be converted into mass purchasing power after the war is described in a booklet called "Battle Stations for All," released by the office of war information.

An unidentified OWI writer contributes to the booklet a scheme to which is given the intriguing label "The ever-normal pocketbook."

The writer explains that there is no necessity of accepting the idea that economic depression inevitably follows war. There is the possibility of such a depression he concedes, but only if "bad thinking" is allowed to prevail.

Basis of Peace Prosperity.

Dollars now being invested in war bonds by individuals and the social security reserves that the government is accumulating—and investing in war bonds—will be the basis of the post-war prosperity described by the OWI writer.

"There is no reason for economic defeatism," the writer asserts. "Our future lies in our hands. We are confronted with the choice of laying aside surplus spending power now in taxes and bond investments and savings, or letting inflation destroy not only this surplus but a great deal more."

The writer acknowledges the OWI's indebtedness to the department of agriculture for the ever-normal pocketbook idea. It is patterned after the ever-normal granary program "which insures us adequate food supplies and keeps prices on an even keel," he explains.

Called Aid in Battle.

Every dollar drawn off now in increased social security taxes advocated by the President will be repaid to workers in social security. Furthermore, the extension now of social security to workers outside the program will contribute to the fight against inflation and help make "freedom from want" a reality," the writer declares.

The writer envisages the greatest demand in history after the war for civilian goods the manufacture of which is now largely suspended. The demand will be world-wide, he says.

"In our own country, people will want all the things that they are doing without now—new automobiles, new refrigerators, new washing machines, new clothes. To prime this great production pump, purchasing power will have to be properly distributed."

Funds to Prime Pump.

Without getting down to exact procedure the writer points out that there will be billions of dollars of public savings in war bonds that will be available to prime the pump. Presumably the bond holders will exercise their option to ask the treasury to redeem their securities, freeing funds for consumer spending.

There were approximately 18 billion dollars of war savings bonds outstanding on March 31 on which holders may ask redemption prior to maturity. They constitute about 16 per cent of the total interest bearing debt. By the war's end this percentage will be enlarged if the treasury is successful in achieving wider public ownership of its securities.

View Is Not Shared.

Many fiscal authorities have regarded with misgivings the treasury policy of building up a large demand liability such as the savings bonds constitute. They forsee with concern what the OWI writer hails with approval, the conversion of the securities into cash for consumer spending.

In a foreword to the booklet the OWI explained that it had been prepared in coöperation with the many regular government departments including the treasury department and federal reserve board. Specific indorsement of the ever-normal pocketbook idea by these agencies was not claimed.

IT'S TAXES, PAY VS. PRICES AND DIVIDEND: OLDS

Tells Stockholders of Dilemma.

Hoboken, N. J., May 3 (AP).—Any material increase in taxes or wages in the steel industry would have to be met from money that might otherwise go to stockholders, or by higher prices for steel products, Chairman Irving S. Olds asserted today at the annual meeting of United States Steel corporation.

"The earnings over the years of any basic industry such as steel should be sufficient after taxes and other costs to pay a reasonable amount to the owners of the business, to attract additional capital when required, and to permit retaining enough money out of earnings to provide for technological progress and to take care of future demands," said Olds.

Does More, Earns Less.

Altho the corporation's output of rolled and finished steel last year exceeded its rated capacity, he said earnings dropped $44,350,000 and a balance of $11,785,884 was carried forward for future needs, compared with $56,138,390 in 1941.

"Employment costs embracing wages, salaries, social security taxes, and pensions increased in 1942 to 25 per cent above 1941," Olds said. "Federal, state, and local taxes were 21 per cent greater."

Olds reiterated the management view of recent charges of improper testing of steel ship plates, listed production records, and declared that the soft coal dispute could have resulted in a "serious curtailment" of operations. He said there were no "sinister" motives nor financial gains in the case.

He's a Little Pressed.

One stockholder, J. N. Blackman, praised Olds' explanation and said stockholders had full confidence in the management. He spoke critically of recent statements by John L. Lewis, coal labor leader, that industrial profits were too high, and cited heavily increased taxes and the comparatively small amounts paid to stockholders in recent years.

Answering a question as to why individual directors failed to purchase more stock, Olds commented: "Speaking of myself, I would like to ask you how I could accumulate enough money to make a substantial investment in this corporation. I have been its chairman for three years and after I have paid my taxes I have been a little bit pressed to meet my living expenses."

Stockholders reëlected the present board of directors.

OTHER MEETINGS HELD

Stockholders of the American Viscose corporation, Wilmington, Del., were told yesterday at their annual meeting that operations should continue to be favorable for the remainder of 1943, subject to such unpredictable factors as material shortages and increased operating costs.

All officers of the Coca-Cola company were reëlected at the annual directors meeting in Wilmington, Del. E. J. Forio of Atlanta, Ga., and H. B. Nicholson of New York were named new vice presidents, and Pope F. Brook of Atlanta, counsel. Earlier, stockholders reëlected all directors.

John F. Betts of Gammack & Co. and Charles W. McConaughy, were elected directors of the Tubize Chatillon corporation at the annual meeting of stockholders in New York.

Schram Urges Vigilance Against Inflation After War

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3 [Special].—The nation faces a serious danger of inflation in the early post-war period unless certain steps are taken soon, Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock exchange, declared today. He maintained, however, that inflation as serious as this country experienced during and after the first World war was not likely as long as the war continues.

Emil Schram.

Addressing a meeting of the Town Hall, Schram asserted "it is vastly important if we wish to avert inflation to be better prepared for peace than we were for war."

War creates a psychologoy that is a great restraining influence, he said, and money is cherished because it provides a sesnse of security.

Moral Letdown Expected.

"But once the war is over," he continued, "there is bound to be a moral letdown. Many will not only spend their idle cash, but many may even cash their unmatured bonds rather than buy more, thus further increasing the demand for goods."

The problem is to mop up excess buying power by finding something for idle dollars to do, he said, and if all available surplus funds were saved and invested in government bonds, there could be no inflation because there would be no pressure of idle funds.

The stock exchange president suggested the first step to counteract the menace of idle money after the war should be the "studied cultivation of incentive to invest idle dollars in productive activities. Risk investments in this country and risk investments abroad must be made attractive."

"Switch Back Not Far Off."

He urged a rapidly increasing supply of reasonably priced consumption goods and warned against a prolonged period of chronic shortages after the war ends.

Asserting that the time is not far off when it no longer will be necessary to switch men from civilian industries to war plants and when it will be possible to begin to move labor and facilities back to the manufacture of civilian goods, Schram said:

"By six months after the final peace we ought to be fairly well converted. By the time the deferred demand for consumption goods is fairly well caught up we will be ready for a building boom which should extend the period of good business."

STREET CAR AND 'L' APRIL TRAFFIC RISES; BUSES CARRY FEWER

Traffic on the elevated lines and the street car system during April increased over the volume of a year earlier, but bus travel declined, company reports disclosed yesterday. The bus decline was attributed to tire conservation regulations requiring a 15 per cent cut in mileage.

The elevated [Chicago Rapid Transit company] carried 14,381,588 fare paying passengers, compared with 13,713,516 in April, 1942, an increase of 4.87 per cent. For the four months ended with April, the number was 58,487,783, against 55,260,467, up 5.84 per cent.

Chicago Surface Lines reported 69,724,508 passengers, a gain of 9.97 per cent over the 63,404,174 carried in April, 1942. Four month volume was up nearly 10 per cent at 278,663,899, against 253,496,420.

Chicago Motor Coach company carried 5,821,468 passengers, 3.6 per cent fewer than the 6,037,184 in the corresponding 1942 month. Four month traffic was up 1.3 per cent at 22,789,923 against 23,090,886.

BOSS GETS LESS THAN WORKERS; WLB ENDS THAT

Approval of a wage increase permitting overtime pay for 128 foremen, assistant foremen and supervisors in the Milwaukee, Wis., plant of Ampco Metal, Inc., was announced yesterday by Robert K. Burns, regional war labor board chairman.

Burns said the increase is retroactive to March 1, 1943. Final action in the case was taken prior to the "hold the line" executive order issued April 8, he said.

Ampco asked approval of the raise after it had placed its employés on a nine hour work day and began paying time and one-half for all work over 40 hours a week. Under that arrangement supervisory employés in most departments were receiving less pay than their subordinates, Burns said.

RAILROAD WAGE HEARING ENTERS ITS FINAL STAGE

Another test of the national wage policy—involving all the importance but none of the drama of the mine pay dispute—moved toward its final phase yesterday.

A federal emergency fact finding board heard the start of closing arguments in the case of 15 nonoperating railroad brotherhoods which are demanding increases of 20 cents an hour, with a 70 cent minimum, for 900,000 workers.

Frank Mulholland of Toledo, union counsel, asserted it was not true that the brotherhoods continued to seek raises just because they had asked for them before the government's wage stabilization program was arranged.

"Here we have orderly procedure supplanting direct action," he said.

William Joyner, counsel for the railroads, told the board that 104,000 railroad workers were receiving a minimum wage of 46 cents an hour, but said they were section men who lived in areas where 46 cents met or exceeded the prevailing wage.

OFFER GENERAL MOTORS PLAN TO MODIFY BONUS

New York, May 3 (AP).—General Motors corporation, in a proxy statement for the stockholders' meeting May 25, said today modifications of its bonus plan were sought to provide a more comprehensive and concrete foundation for its administration.

"The purpose is not in any way to change the basic principle by which, after 7 per cent is earned for stockholders on net capital, nine-tenths of the balance of the net earnings are available for stockholders and one-tenth for bonus," the statement said.

Previously bonuses were paid solely in General Motors stock and in instalments. Under the modification plan, the bonuses would be paid immediately after they were determined by the award committee, and could be paid in cash, stock, or both.

STOCKS MAKE BROAD UPTURN ON BIG VOLUME

Investor Demand, Coal Truce Aid.

New York, May 3 (AP).—Buying power returned to the stock market today in the wake of the coal labor truce, and a wide assortment of issues pushed up fractions to more than a point, many to peaks for 1 to 3 years. Some rose 2 to 3 points.

An advancing trend appeared at the opening, but the move soon was stemmed by profit cashing. Bidding expanded later, however, and most issues closed at or near the day's tops. Trading was the fastest in nearly a month as low priced issues turned over in blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares. Volume totaled 2,349,090 shares, the most since April 9, and compared with 1,358,890 last Friday.

Expect Use of Idle Funds.

Steels and stocks of other companies which would have been hit by the fuel shortage were in front thruout. Aside from the apparent alleviation of the mining crisis, Wall street observers believed that the ending of the government bond drive would bring further idle funds into corporate securities.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 0.6 at 50.2, a new top since April 25, 1940, in the largest day's rise since March 29. The market also was one of the broadest this year.

Aiding the oils was the declaration by Standard [N. J.] of the usual 50 cent extra dividend. Encouragement also was derived from the speedy oversubscription of a special offering of 43,650 shares of Phelps Dodge at 26⅜.

HIGH PRICED BONDS RISE.

New York, May 3 (AP).—Bond market prices rose in most departments today, with rails and selected utilities in the lead.

With the close of the second war loan drive and the lifting of restraints upon institutional and other investment managers, heavy buying in some of the higher priced bonds in all groups was an outstanding feature. American Telephone 3s of 1956 rose 1⅛ to a new high at 114½.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange on turnover of 47,000 shares. The more actively traded issues included RCA, up ¾ to a new 1943 high of 12⅛; Chicago corportion, down ⅛; Miller & Hart, up ⅛ to a new high of 2⅜; Yates American Machine, up 1 to a new high of 7¼, and Commonwealth Edison, up ⅛.

50 YEARS OF SERVICE

Chicago City Bank 1893
Corner Englewood and Halsted Streets

GROWING up with Englewood and helping Englewood grow—that, in brief, has been the history of the Chicago City Bank and Trust Company.

From its earliest beginning Englewood's growth has been rapid. Today it is one of the most prosperous business communities of its size in the country. Last year its retail establishments—numbering well over 300—did a retail volume of over $60,000,000.

This bank is proud to have played a part in the development and growth of Englewood and the greater Southtown area which it now serves. Our own progress over the period of years could never have been possible without the friendly cooperation and patronage of this great community.

May 4, 1943, marks a half century of increasing service to the community without interruption, through periods of prosperity and depression, during War and Peace. We pledge—in the years to come—to devote our every effort to a continuation of this same cooperative service to our customers and friends.

TRACK TO BE IMPROVED.

Trustees of the Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin railroad have been authorized by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to spend approximately $500,000 for improvements on tracks from Laramie avenue in Chicago to Aurora.

FPC RULE OVER UTILITY STOCK DEAL IS UPHELD

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—The Supreme court today ruled that the federal power commission has authority over a power company operating in one state but which sells electric energy to another company for transmission across a state line.

The National Association of Railroad Utilities commissioners had contended that the Circuit court decision upheld by the high court would "bring under the jurisdiction of the federal commission a very large proportion of the important intrastate electric utilities in the several states in disregard of the intent of congress and in violation of the right of the states to regulate their internal affairs."

Justice Stanley Reed delivered this 6 to 3 opinion on litigation to determine whether the New Jersey Power and Light company had to obtain FPC permission to acquire 341,350 shares of common stock of Jersey Central Power and Light company.

The federal commission contended its permission must be obtained because Jersey Central was a "public utility" subject to commission control. The federal power act provides that one public utility cannot acquire stock in another public utility without FPC approval.

Jersey Central maintained that its electric connection, for transmission of power to Public Service Electric and Gas company, was entirely within New Jersey. Public Service interconnected with the Staten Island Edison corporation, which sold electricity in New York.

The court also held that truck drivers employed by private carriers were not covered by the overtime provisions of the federal wage-hour act up to May 1, 1940, when the interstate commerce commission decided it should regulate the maximum hours of such employés.

The wage-hour administration filed a brief contending that congress had intended for the wage-hour law to apply until the interstate commerce commission took over.

6,000 ARE IDLE IN WALKOUT AT BIG FORD PLANT

Detroit, Mich., May 3 (AP).—A Ford Motor company spokesman said nearly 6,000 employés in several buildings of the Ford Rouge plant were idle today because of an "organized refusal" to work by maintenance men in the production foundry.

The UAW-CIO and the company announced late today a joint investigation of the stoppage would begin tomorrow. Thousands of workers were sent home because they lacked materials and supplies.

The company said the walkout began on the midnight shift, apparently in protest against operation of the swing shift system, altho no grievance notices had been filed.

SOCIAL SECURITY EXTENSION COST HELD EXCESSIVE

Further extension of compulsory social security, as contemplated in the recent report of the national resources planning board, was declared unnecessary and excessively costly, by E. H. O'Connor, executive director of the Insurance Economics society, in a talk before a luncheon of the City Club of Chicago yesterday in the La Salle hotel.

"Compulsory insurance would cost 15 to 20 per cent of national income," O'Connor asserted, "and would strangle risk taking and initiative." He said the new plan is conspicuous for its failure to make an estimate of the cost, and that additional 100,000 government employés would be required to administer the expanded program.

Results of the old age and survivorship insurance and unemployment insurance programs do not justify extension of government insurance into the health and accident field, O'Connor asserted. He declared that unemployment insurance has never been tested by a period of severe depression, and that expenses of the bureau of old age and survivorship insurance in the fiscal year 1942 amounted to 24 cents for every dollar paid out in benefits.

Executives and Managers.

PERMANENCY
RADIO RESEARCH

EXPANSION of largest marketing research organization [employing over 700 salaried individuals] has created several openings in its field staff.

Our nation-wide marketing research work provides a management service for manufacturers of essential consumer goods and offers both stability and advancement during and after the war.

Field positions are permanent and start with a salary of $172.50 per month. Continued expansion affords unusual opportunities to increase earnings substantially in supervisory and management work. Both merit and length of service determine advancement, and all positions are based on salary only.

These positions mean location away from Chicago, with COMPLETE moving expenses borne by our company.

At present a car is essential, but further rationing of tires and gas will NOT affect our field operations. Automobile operating costs are covered by a fixed monthly allowance plus mileage. In addition to the car allowance, full travel expenses are paid.

Capacity to organize, handle details, and accept unusual responsibility with extremely limited supervision is essential. Mechanical aptitude or technical training, or knowledge of radio is helpful. While our field work does NOT entail selling, it does require the ability to meet all types of people easily. Consideration for a position in our field staff is also based upon character, integrity, and sound business background.

The several successful applicants will be sent to our own training school for a two month intensive course in our radio research methods. FULL SALARY is paid during training.

Please let us have a complete outline of your business experience, education, technical training, marital and draft status, age, religion. Please include your telephone number. Desirable ages are 25 to 40.

These positions mean long hours and hard work, but offer security, advancement, and PERMANENT association with an outstanding organization.
ADDRESS A R 464, TRIBUNE.

ASSISTANT SAFETY DIRECTOR

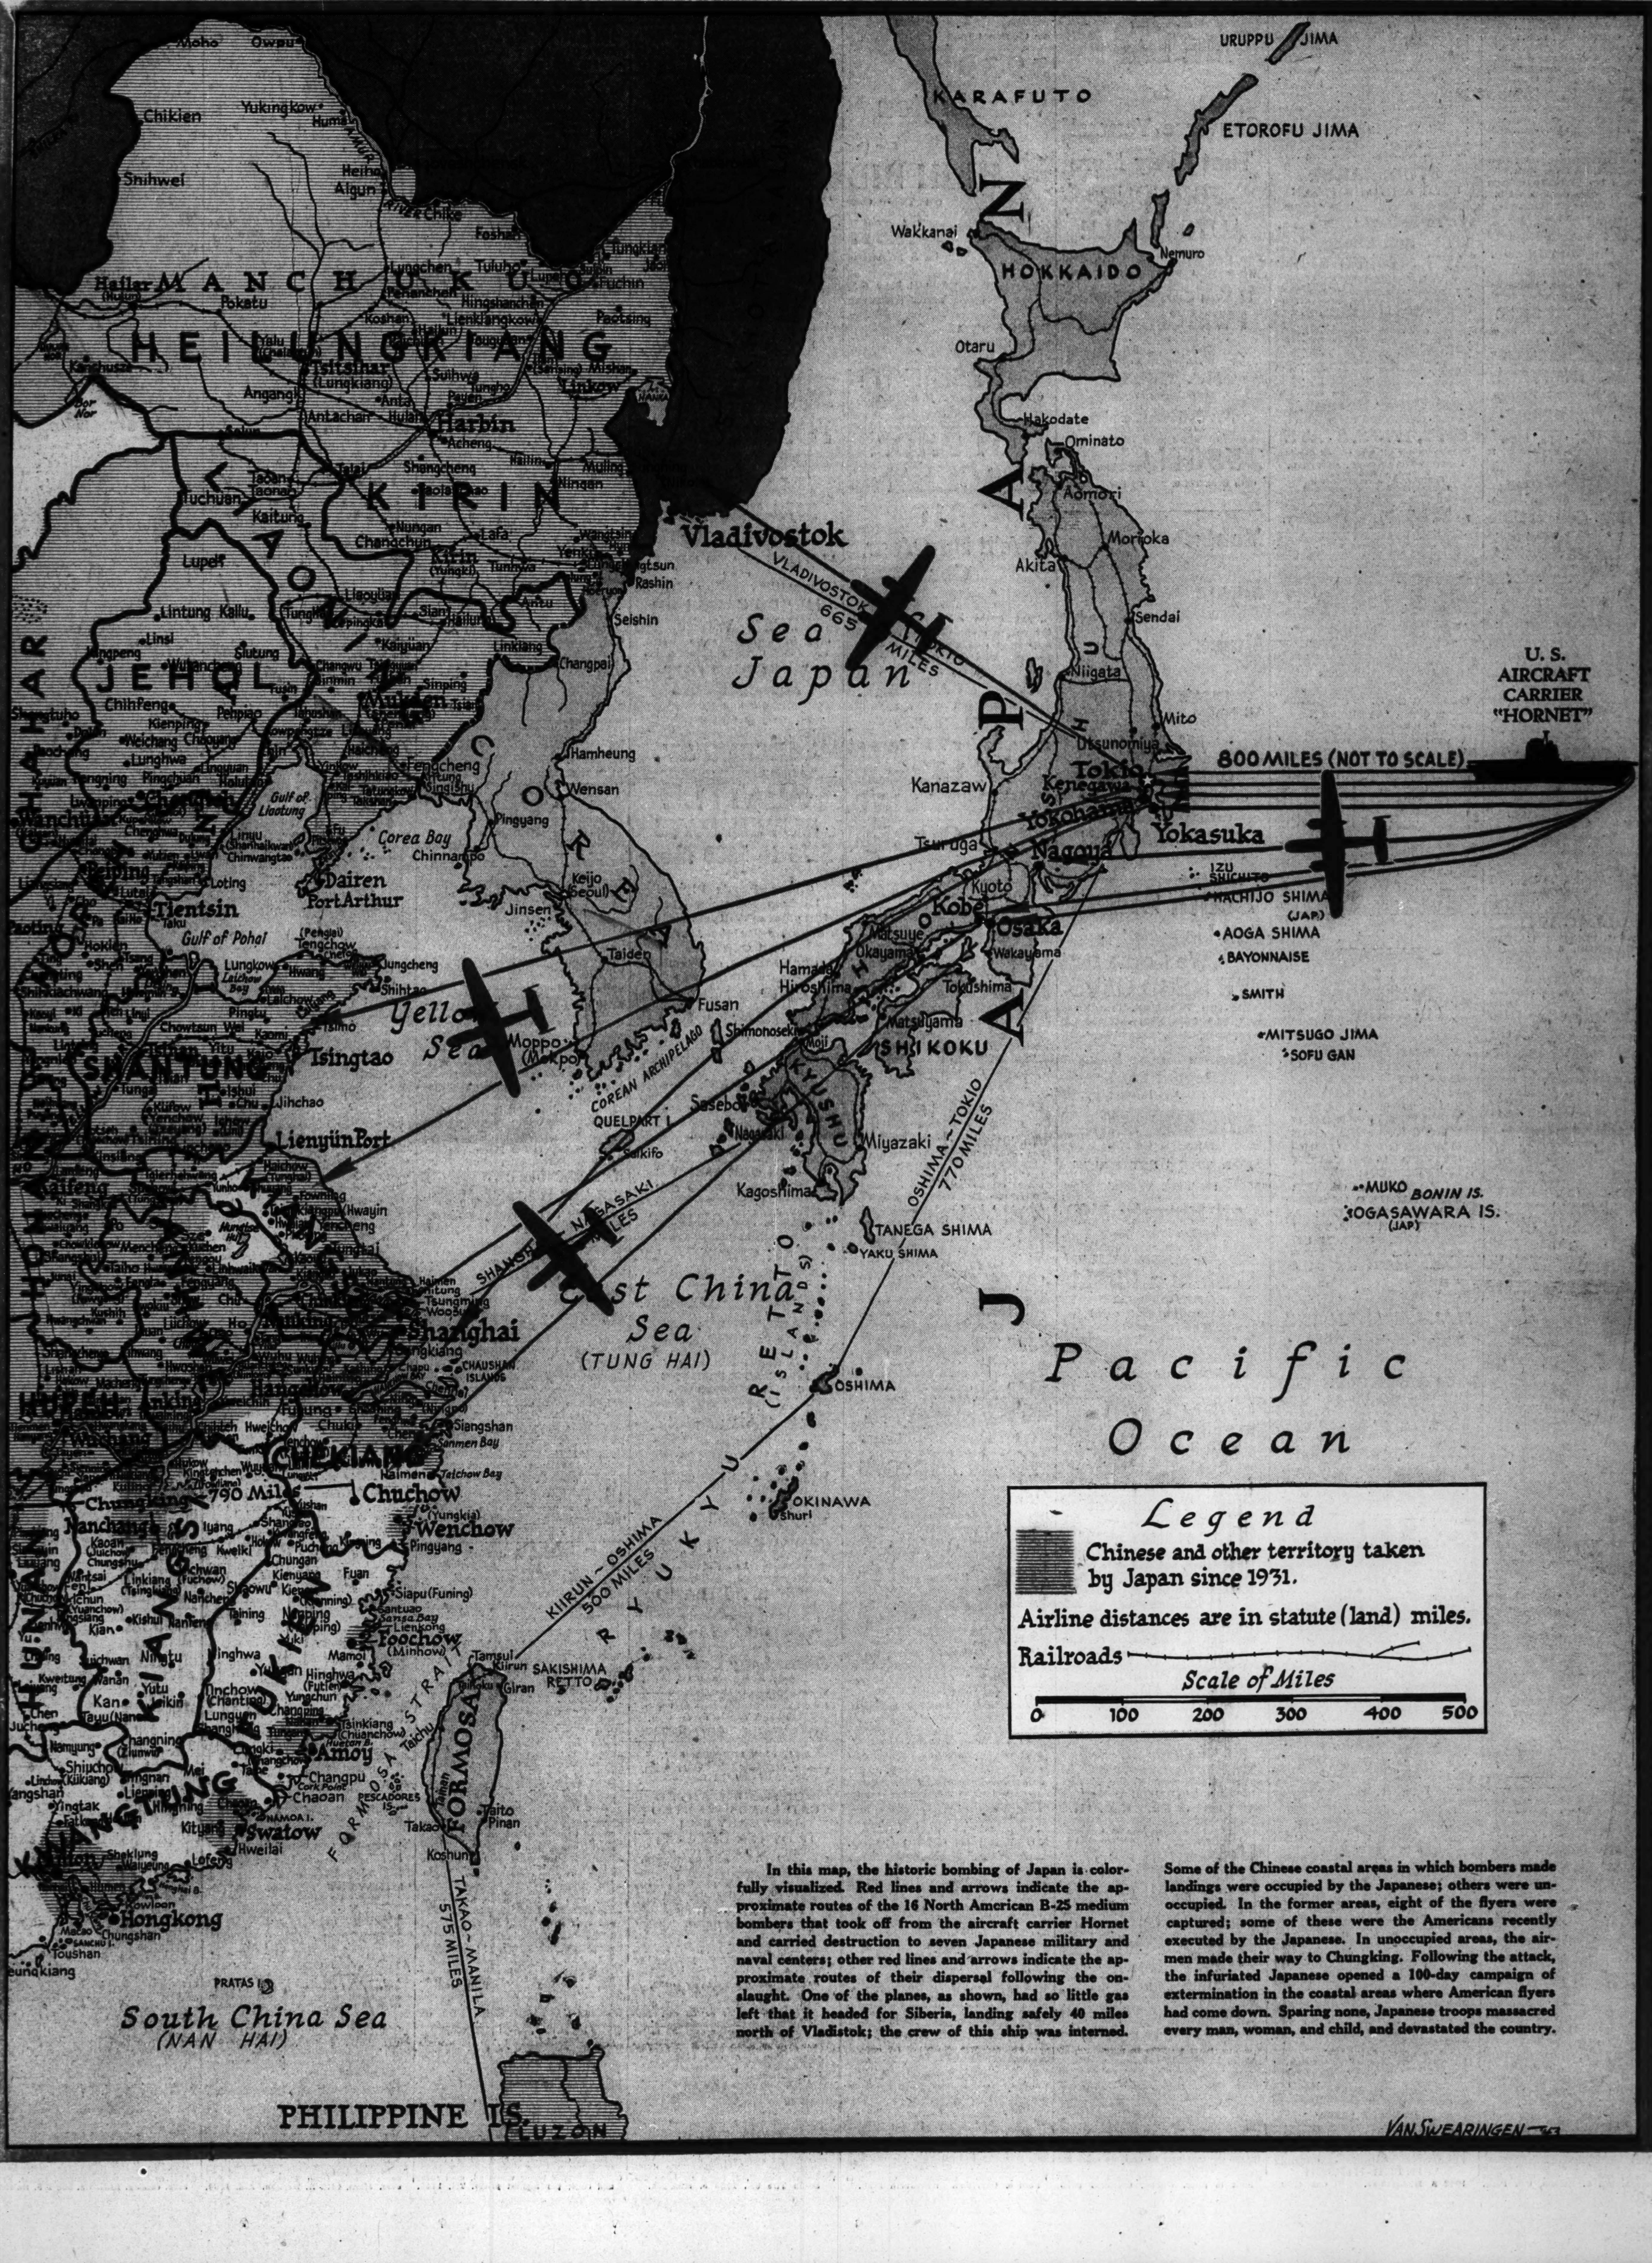
BOMBING OF JAPAN VISUALIZED IN COLOR



In this map, the historic bombing of Japan is colorfully visualized. Red lines and arrows indicate the approximate routes of the 16 North American B-25 medium bombers that took off from the aircraft carrier Hornet and carried destruction to seven Japanese military and naval centers; other red lines and arrows indicate the approximate routes of their dispersal following the onslaught. One of the planes, as shown, had so little gas left that it headed for Siberia, landing safely 40 miles north of Vladistok; the crew of this ship was interned. Some of the Chinese coastal areas in which bombers made landings were occupied by the Japanese; others were unoccupied. In the former areas, eight of the flyers were captured; some of these were the Americans recently executed by the Japanese. In unoccupied areas, the airmen made their way to Chungking. Following the attack, the infuriated Japanese opened a 100-day campaign of extermination in the coastal areas where American flyers had come down. Sparing none, Japanese troops massacred every man, woman, and child, and devastated the country.
